PRELIMINARY REMARKS,

CHIEFLY REGARDING

THE LIFE OF THE AUTHOR,

AND

CHARACTER OF THE WORK.

So little is known, with respect to Henry the Minstrel, that I can scarcely pretend to add any thing to the meagre account which has been given of him by former writers. As we cannot certainly fix the time, we can form no conjecture even as to the place, of his birth. Almost all that can be viewed as an historical record concerning him, is that with which we are supplied by Major. Integrum librum, he says, Guillelmi Vallacei Henricus, a natiuitate luminibus captus, meae infantiae tempore cudit; et quæ vulgo dicebantur, carmine vulgari, in quo peritus erat, conscripsit; (ego autem talibus scriptis solum in parte fidem impertior); qui historiarum recitatione coram principibus victum et vestitum quo dignus erat nactus est. Hist. Lib. IV. c. 15. "Henry, who was blind from his birth, in the time of my infancy composed the whole Book of William Wallace; and committed to writing in vulgar poetry, in which he was well skilled, the things that were commonly related of him. For my own part, I give only partial credit to writings of this description. By the recitation of these, however, in the presence of men of the highest rank, he procured, as he indeed deserved, food and raiment."

This account, as it merely respects the recitation of his poem, is not inconsistent with what Henry himself says, when he asserts his independence in the composition of it, and declares that the motive by which he was chiefly actuated, was a patriotic desire to preserve the memory of the illustrious deeds of Wallace from oblivion.

All worthi men at redys this rurall dyt,
 Blaym nocht the buk, set I be wnperfyt.
 I suld hawe thank, sen I nocht trawaill spard ;
 For my laubour na man hecht me reward ;
 Na charge I had off king nor othir lord ;
 Gret harm I thocht his gud deid suld be smord.

 And fenyeid nocht for frendschip nor for fais.
 Costis herfor was no man bond to me ;
 In this sentence I had na will to be, &c.

Wallace, B. XI. v. 1432.

Mr. Pinkerton has given 1470 as the date when it may be supposed that Henry appeared in the character of an author. It is generally admitted, indeed, that Major was born in the year 1469. Henry, by reason of his blindness, could not himself have written his poetical effusions; and it may reasonably be supposed, from his dependent and ambulatory mode of life, that he could not employ an amanuensis properly qualified for the task. Hence may we account for the obscurity, and even for the apparent absurdity, of some passages in his work. Bating these imperfections, his descriptions are often so vivid, and his images so just, that he undoubtedly ranks higher, as a poetical writer, than either Barbour or Wyntown, who had all the advantages of a liberal education, such, at least, as the times could afford.

Mr. Pinkerton has thus expressed his sentiments concerning this work: "It has great merit for the age, and is eminently curious. The language in a few places is not sense. When, by altering a word or two, the sense may be restored, attention to this will not only be allowable, but laudable in any proper editor; especially when we consider the singularity of the case, and that the poem is very good sense everywhere, save in perhaps a dozen lines at most." List of Scottish Poets, xc.

The late elegant author of Specimens of Early English Poets has remarked; "That a man born blind should excel in any science is extraordinary, though by no means without example; but that he should become an excellent poet, is almost miraculous; because the soul of poetry is description. Perhaps, therefore, it may be easily assumed, that Henry was not inferior in point of genius either to Barbour or Chaucer, nor indeed to any poet of any age or country." Ellis's Spec. Vol. I. p. 354.

As the venerable Minstrel could not himself have written his poem, succeeding ages have never had it in their power to view him in his proper character. It is unquestionable, however, that he has not, in any edition hitherto published, appeared to such advantage as he might have done. Almost every editor, from the time of Andro Hart downward, used the same unpardonable liberty with his work as with that of Barbour, in attempting to render it more intelligible, by substituting for terms, which had become obsolete, or were going into desuetude, others more generally known. Thus, from gross misapprehension, the very sense of the poet was often lost. Even the edition of Perth, A. 1790, which professes to be an exact transcript from the MS., is still more inaccurate than that of the year 1714.

Although, from his disastrous circumstances, the principal fountain of knowledge was shut up to poor Henry, it is evident that he had made trial of every other within his reach. Knowing the facts of his blindness, itinerary life, and oral publication of his poetry, the generality of readers, it may be presumed, have previously formed a contemptuous idea of the author, as if he had been a common ballad-singer, and have either read his book under the influence of this prepossession, or thrown it aside as unworthy of their attention. But it should be recollected, that the rank of a bard or minstrel was once very high among our forefathers; and that, although it had considerably fallen in repute by the time that Henry flourished, he did nothing that was deemed unworthy of the character when at its highest elevation. The language of Major has, it would appear, been understood according to the prejudices of our own time, not according to the sense which it must still have borne even in that age in which Henry lived, notwithstanding the Act of James II. A. 1449, against "bardis, or vthers siclyke rinnaris about." Acts, Parl. X. c. 21. "He procured food and raiment by the recitation of his compositions." Is this any thing different from what was invariably accounted the privilege of minstrels? Did Henry recite his poetry to the vulgar; did he stroll through cities, towns, or villages with this view? Not a hint of this kind is given; the very reverse is implied in the specification made by the historian. He recited his compositions "in vulgar poetry" indeed, but it was coram principibus, "in the presence of princes," or "men of the highest rank." Major uses the most honourable term that he could select, to show that even the most exalted in the kingdom did not deem themselves degraded by admitting the Minstrel into their presence, or by listening to his poetical narrative. He indeed says; Quæ vulgo dicebantur, carmine vulgari, in quo peritus est, conscripsit; but he does not mean by this to affix a stigma on Henry's style of writing. The use of the term vulgari, if not merely a paronomasia on the preceding one vulgo, can signify nothing more than that Henry did not write, as he himself did, in the language of the learned, which would have been lost even on men of the highest rank in that age. He does not mean to say that the diction of the Minstrel was low, and thus adapted merely to the vulgar; for then men of all ranks spoke in the same manner: but that his work, as being a collection of what was commonly related in Scotland concerning Wallace, was composed in the vernacular tongue. When he uses the phrase, in quo peritus est, he is not to be understood as uttering so gross a solecism, as to say that Henry was well skilled in the language of the lower classes, but that he was an adept in Scottish poetry; for it is evident that in quo more immediately refers to carmine. He designs to throw as little discredit on him by the phrase, victum et vestitum nactus est. For all that he could mean to assert by it is, that as the tables of the great were open to him, where, in former times at least, a minstrel had the prerogative of an honourable seat, he had also, by established custom from time immemorial, as good a right to claim the raiment allotted to his vocation as the baron had to exact military service from his vassals. Hence, when speaking of this procurement, he qualifies his language by the following insertion,—quo dignus erat; applicable not merely to the hereditary claim of minstrels, but to the peculiar merit of Henry as sustaining this character.

I will not pretend to exculpate Henry from the charge of credulity. Far more, however, has been said as to his ignorance than can be well supported. We have no other standard of the measure of his knowledge than his own work; and this, there is every reason to think, much disfigured by unavoidable corruptions. But even judging from this, we have sufficient evidence that, from his early years, he must diligently have used all the means of information which were properly within his reach. He seems to have been pretty well acquainted with that kind of history which was commonly read in that period. He alludes to the history of Hector, of Alexander the Great, of Julius Cæsar, Book VIII. 845, 886, 961, &c., and to that of Charlemagne, whose army, at Ronceval in Navarre, being betrayed by Ganelon, was defeated by the Saracens, Book VIII. 1256. XI. 837. V. Dict. de Trevoux, vo. Rounevoux. With the romances that were most popular in that age he was perhaps as well acquainted as Barbour. He seems to have been familiar with that of Alexander; as, like the latter, he refers to Gaudifer, Book X. 342. V. Note on The Bruce, B. II. 468.

His acquaintance with the popular romances is perhaps still more apparent from his style of writing. As it abounds, much more than that of Barbour, with poetical allusions to the face of nature, which the poor Minstrel had never beheld, to the change of the seasons, to the supposed influence of the planets or of the constellations; it is more richly strewed with the more peculiar phraseology of the writers of romance; whence a stranger to our chronology might be induced to view the Life of Wallace as of an older date than The Bruce, although nearly a century later. We meet with a variety of terms or phrases in Wallace, which, from the difference of his habits, do not seem to have been familiar with the good Archdeacon of Aberdeen, as frekis, frekis on fold; bane and lyre; brycht, and frely of fassoun, for a fair maid, &c. &c.

It is necessary to observe, that the Minstrel's mode of expression is often very elliptical. In order to understand his meaning, the reader must therefore recollect, that he very commonly omits the pronouns, whether personal or relative. This, to those who are not familiar with the ancient style, has given him an air of absurdity, and has induced the idea of his being far more illiterate than we can reasonably suppose him to have been. Let us take an example or two among many.

The defendouris, was off sa fell defens,
Kepynt thar toun with strenth and excellens.—B. VIII. 803.

The principal assertion is not, that the defenders were powerful in defence; but that they, being so powerful in defence, guarded their town well. The reader must supply quha, or who, after defendouris:

The mar, kepyt the port of that willage,
Wallace knew weill, and send him his message.—B. IV. 359.

“Wallace was well acquainted with the mayor, who kept the port of that village.”

The only means that occurred to me for rendering the sense of such elliptical passages more obvious, was to throw in a comma; as, after The mar, in the passage quoted.

It cannot be denied that the feelings of the reader are often harrowed up by the coarse description which the Minstrel gives of the warlike deeds of his hero, and by the delight which he seems to take in those merciless scenes in which the English were the immediate sufferers. But great allowance must be made for him, not merely from the barbarism of the time in which he wrote, and from his want of such opportunities of refinement as even Barbour enjoyed, but from the soreness which every thorough Scotchman still felt, in consequence of the unpardonable treachery, violence, and ferocity of Edward the First, and of those employed under him, and the disgraceful stigma they had endeavoured to fix on a nation that had been always independent and always extremely jealous of its liberty. If the manners of the age do not form a sufficient apology for the cruelty ascribed to Wallace himself; it should be recollected that Scotland had no other chance of liberation from the usurpation of Edward than by the diminution of the number of the invaders, and that it was impossible for a few partisans to retain prisoners. Old Wyntown honestly defends Wallace on the grounds of the provocation given to him, and of his owing the English nothing.

In all England thare wes noucht thane
As Willame Walays swa lele a mane.

Quhat he dyd agayne that natyown,
 Thai made hym prowocatyown :
 Na to thame oblyst nevyr wes he
 In fayth, falowschype, na lawté :
 For in hys tyme, I hard well say,
 That fykkil thai ware all tyme of fay.

Cronykil, B. VIII. c. 20, v. 9.

There is a prayer at the beginning of the poem, which had been prefixed by the transcriber. It is thus given in Perth edition, Notes, p. 1.

Jesu, salvator! ex Jussu mihi exponere, ad
 Finem dignum, prædictum Librum, atque benignum.

The first line has been injured in the binding of the MS.; but it would seem that it should rather be read thus :

Jhesu saluator, tu sis michi auxiliator,
 Ad finem dignum librum perduc atque benignum.

In all the editions of this work which I have seen, it is divided into twelve books; which are subdivided into chapters or sections, with rubrics prefixed, pointing out the principal matter of each division. I have observed the plan of the MS., which confines the work to eleven books, without any rubrics. Some, indeed, are marked on the margin; but evidently in a different hand-writing, by some early proprietor of the MS.

Mr Pinkerton has said; The first and best edition I have yet seen is, imprentit at Edinburgh, be Robert Lekprevik, at the expensis of Henrie Charteris; and ar to be sauld in his buith, on the north syde of the gait abone the throne [trone?] Anno Do. MD. LXX. 4to. black letter. A fine copy of this edition is in the British Museum among Queen Elizabeth's books: this has no title-page; but the second title is, The Actis and Deidis of the illuster and vailyeand Campioun Schir William Wallace, Knight of Ellerslie." List of Scottish Poets, xc, xci.

This edition I have never had an opportunity of inspecting.

The oldest that I have seen, after every possible inquiry, is an imperfect one in quarto, formerly the property of Mr George Paton, of the Customs here, now in my possession. It wants the title-page, part of the first leaf, and the last sheet, which must have contained about fifteen pages, besides being imperfect in one or two other places. The title, printed on page first, seems to have been the same with the second title of Edit. 1570, with this difference, that in mine Wallace is denominated "the maist illuster," &c. Besides that of 1570, Mr Pinkerton mentions only another edition in 4to, Edin. 1594. I have therefore ventured to quote this as the edition of that year.

Dr Mackenzie seems either to have been unacquainted with any prior edition, or to have preferred this to that of 1570; although, from his known character as a writer, it is most probable that he had never compared the editions to which he refers. "This book, he says, "being highly esteem'd amongst the vulgar, has had many impressions; but the best are these, viz. that printed in the year 1594, and Andrew Hart's, in the year 1620, both printed at Edinburgh, and that at Glasgow in the year, 1699." &c.

Besides the edition of 1594, I have compared the MS. with Hart's, 1620; and with one printed by Gedeon Lithgow, Edinburgh, 1648, which I have not seen mentioned by any writer. It is a neat edition, in small 8vo, black letter, pp. 343, in the square form of our more early publications. It has an introduction, entitled The Printer to the Reader, considerably larger than that prefixed to Hart's, as it extends to nineteen pages. This contains an abridgment of the History of Scotland from the portentous death of Alexander III. A. 1285, to the year 1318. I have also consulted the Edinburgh edition of 1673, printed by Andrew Anderson, in twelves, pp. 252. This is considerably inferior in execution to the one last mentioned, although it seems to have been taken from it, with some slight changes of the orthography. The introduction to the former is reprinted verbatim; but there is added, after the Table of Contents, a poetical address of "Scrimger to Wallace, by reason of the false Menteith captive at London," and the reply of "Wallace to Scrimger, his Baner-man." The following page contains a curious wood-cut of Wallace in armour, with his bow and quiver.

Mr Pinkerton mentions also editions at Edinburgh 1601, Aberdeen 1630, and Glasgow 1665, in 8vo. He adds; "There are many editions of the present [eighteenth] century, but bad. The very worst is that of Edinburgh, 1758, 4to., which the printer very expertly reduced to modern spelling, and printed in black letter, and in quarto; being exactly, in every point, the very plan which he ought not to have followed. The same sagacious personage gave Barbour's Poem in the same way; and neither selling, (how could they?) the booksellers sometimes tear out the title, and palm them upon the ignorant as old impressions." List of Scot. Poets, ut sup.

This is the edition which is here quoted in the Notes as that of 1714. For I have been assured, on good authority, that this edition, as well as that of The Bruce, was printed by Robert Freebairn, printer to his Majesty, in the year 1714 or 1715; but that, as he engaged in the rebellion in the year last mentioned, before the work was ready for publication, they were suffered to lie in a bookseller's ware-house till A. 1758, when they were published, either without titles, or with titles bearing the false date of this year. As to the merit of these editions, I am under the necessity of differing from Mr Pinkerton. To me, the editions printed by Freebairn appear more correct than any of the preceding ones, and his Wallace even preferable to the Perth edition, A. 1790; as, bating the liberty used with regard to the orthography, they, in a great variety of instances, give the sense of the original writers more accurately, having evidently been collated with the MSS. of The Bruce and Wallace in the Advocates' Library.

I flattered myself, that I might have had it in my power to have enriched this work by some valuable communications from the British Museum. Although, through the good offices of the Earl of Aberdeen, one of the trustees of this national repository, search has been made, nothing of importance has been discovered in regard to this period of our history. Henry Ellis, Esq. of the Museum, who, in the most obliging manner, offered every assistance in his power, has in a letter addressed to his Lordship, furnished two extracts from MSS., which have a claim to attention, at least as matters of curiosity. I shall take the liberty of communicating them in his own language:—

“I find nothing in the King’s, the Cottonian, or the Harleian Collections; but among the Donation Manuscripts, No. 4934, (in the first volume of Francis Peck’s Collections for a Supplement to Dugdale’s Monasticon), is a transcript of ‘Prioris Alnwicensis de Bello Scotico apud Dumbarr, tempore Regis Edwardi I. Dictamen, sive Rithmus Latinus quo de Willielmo Wallace, Scotico illo Robin Whood, plura, sed invidiose, canit.’ It is somewhat in the manner of Walter de Mapes, as your Lordship will perceive by the following specimens; and consists of sixty stanzas.

“There is another manuscript in the same collection, No. 1226, without a title-page, but apparently a composition of the time of King Charles the First, principally relating to the period of Scottish history in question. The work is divided into two books, and as it is possible that Dr Jamieson may know what it is from its contents, I will trouble your Lordship with the heads of the different chapters, the numbers of which are irregular.

‘How Williame Wallace past to St Johnstone, and of the strange Combattis he had withe Englismen in that Journay.’ Chap. 3.

‘How William Wallace past in the sowthe Contrie and wone Lowmabane, and of his ficht with Englis men in the way, and how he tuik the Castell of Craford.’ Chap. 4.

‘How the Englishemen bound trwis withe Wallace,’ &c. Chap. 6.

‘How William Wallace slew Mackfadyean and his hoill armye,’ &c. Chap. 7.

‘Of the most famous battell at Estirwilling Brige,’ &c. Chap. 8.

‘Of the famous Journay and Wictories that William Wallace had into England,’ &c. Chap. 9.

‘How William Wallace past into France,’ &c. Chap. 10.

‘Of the great Wictories that S^r William Wallace had after he come forthe of France.’ Chap. 11.

‘How the Lord Steward encowntred King Edward,’ &c. Chap. 12.

“The second part of the work begins,

‘Of the most famous Wictories that the Lord Fraser had against the Englishmen.’ Chap. 1.

‘How S^r William Wallace was betrayed by the false Mentithe.’ Chap. 5.

‘Of the famos raigne of King Robert de Bruise.’ Chap. 6.

‘How King Edward 3 of England inwadit Scotland, and was expellet again.’ Chap. 7.

“Several chapters follow, ‘Of Love,’ ‘The politick Law,’ &c.”

He also mentions a volume in the Cotton Library, marked Claud. D. VII. in which the 13th article is a chronicle written, or rather compiled, with additions, by a Canon of Lanercost priory, illustrative of the ravages in Cumberland towards the latter end of the reign of Edward the First. Several extracts having been made from this for the use of Mr Lysons, he found them extremely valuable, and containing more for his purpose than could be found in print.

Being anxious to bring forward every authentic information that

I could possibly collect concerning Wallace, I lately transmitted to Mr Ellis a few queries, especially regarding the Lanercost MS., which had occurred to me in consequence of his former obliging communication; and, while I feel myself deeply indebted to him for the trouble he has taken, and for the promptness of his reply, I cannot pretend to give the substance of it in any language so appropriate as that which he has himself used.

“ I must tell you that the Chronicle of Lanercost is a manuscript of peculiar intricacy in its contractions. The first mention which I find in it of William Wallace is in 1297, fol. 208 b. ‘ Vix sex mensium tempus elapsum extitit a gravi sacramento supradicto quo se Albanacti fidelitati ac subjectioni Regis Anglorum astrinxerant, cum rediviva perfidorum malitia ad alias versutias ingenium acuit. Nam presul Ecclesiæ Glascuensis proprio agnomine dictus Robertus Wyscardus, semper in proditione primus, cum senescallo primæ’ (the word primæ is dotted under as if to be erased,) ‘ terræ nomine Jacobo, novam sibi finxerunt audâciam, quinimo novam proditionis famam, fidem Regi præstitam manifeste infringere non audentes, quendam virum sanguineum Wills. Waleis, qui prius fuerat in Scotia princeps latronum, contra Regem insurgere fecerunt et Papam in sui adjutorium congregare.’

“ Then follows the battle of Stirling, in which the notice of the slain contains the following anecdote: ‘ Inter quos cedit thesaurarius Angliæ Hugo de Kersyngham, de cujus corio ab occipite usque ad talum Wills. Waleis latam corrigiam sum fecit, ut inde sibi faceret cingulum ensis sui.’ The subsequent entrance of the Scots into Northumberland is of course noticed, but generally, and without any mention of Wallace’s name. The mention of the retreat of the English to Berwick opens the account of transactions under the year 1298. It is there said, ‘ Wills. Waleis non tenuit eis fidem.’

“ The Chronicle next mentions, that Edward having settled

a truce with the King of France returned, and collecting his army, marched towards Scotland. 'In festo autem beatæ Mariæ Magdalenæ occurrerunt ei Scoti apud Faukirk cum toto robore suo, duce eorum Willelmo Waleis superius nominato.' The defeat is then detailed in few words. Some wretched Latin verses follow, of which I give you the only specimen concerning Wallace, viz.—

'Sub duce de genere gens Scotia degeneravit,
Quæ famam temere foedusque fidem violavit.
Postquam Willelmus Wallens nobilitavit,
Nobilitas prorsus Scottorum degeneravit.'

"Such are the scanty materials relating to Wallace's history in the Chronicle of Lanercost.

"In 1306, fol. 211 b, we read, 'Dominus autem Symon Freser Scottus adductus London, prius fuit tractus, postea suspensus, tertio decapitatus, et caput ejus positum super pontem London juxta caput Willelmi Waleis.' In the same year the Earl of Athol's head (Comes de Athetel) was placed above that of William Wallace; and in 1307 it is said, 'In die autem sancto Paschæ Dungallus factus est miles, et infra eandem septimanam captus est dominus Johannes Waleis et ad Regem apud Karl. adductus, qui misit eum London ut ubi caperet idem judicium quod prius acceperat frater suus Willelmus.'" Fol. 212.

We have a similar account in the St Albans Chronicle.

"How Johne, that was Wyllyam Waleys brother, was put to dethe.

"As the gretteste masteyrs of Scotlonde were thus doon to euyll dethe, and destroyed for theyr falsnesse, Johan. that was Wyllyam Waleys brother, was take and doon vnto deth, as Syr Johan erle of Alethes [Athol] was." Sign. q. vi. b. Edit. 1502.

This account, as regarding Johannes Waleis, must certainly be viewed as a mistake of the writers of these Chronicles. It has originated, perhaps, from the circumstance of two brothers of Robert Bruce, Thomas and Alexander, being made prisoners by Macdowal at Lochrian in Galloway, 9th February, 1306-7, and carried to Edward at Carlisle, who ordered them to instant execution. Or it may respect Sir Reginald Crawford, the cousin of Wallace, who was made prisoner with them, and subjected to the same fate. Matthew of Westminster says that their heads were placed on the gates of Carlisle. V. Dalrymple's Annals, II. 19.

The other queries were;—If, from any of the MSS. in the British Museum, there is ground to suppose that Wallace had ever fought with King Edward in England? If any thing occurs that might have given rise to the story, told by Henry, of an interview with the English queen? If there is any hint as to Wallace having opposed the English in Guienne? If there is any proof that Sir John Menteith was concerned in delivering up Wallace to the English? And if it appears that Menteith acted in concert with Aymer de Valence? To these Mr Ellis gives the following answer:—

“Except at the battle of Falkirk, I see no reason to think that Wallace was ever personally opposed to Edward the First; certainly not during his incursion in 1297, as Edward was then in France. The story of his meeting the queen at St Albans must be a fiction. It is too singular a circumstance, if it had happened, to remain totally unnoticed in any of the English annals. I can find no mention of Wallace's being in Guienne. I think it was not likely that he should be found there. Scotland and the Border gave him full employ for his short career. No concert is at all noticed in the Lanercost MS. between Aymer de Valence and Sir John Menteith.”

His important communication, in regard to the concern that Menteith himself had in the base transactions referred to, will be found among the proofs which I have collected on this subject, in the Note on Book XI. ver. 948, p. 402.

Having made some inquiries as to the manuscript No. 1226, formerly mentioned, and suggested that, from its orthography, it seems to claim a date prior to the age of Charles the First; Mr Ellis has favoured me with the following reply:—

“The manuscript in the same collection, Num. 1226, is entirely in prose. It occupies about a hundred leaves in small quarto; but is not paged. From the orthography, the manuscript may be somewhat older than I had supposed. It certainly is not before the time of James the First. I think you are correct in supposing it a copy from Henry the Minstrel. In an address ‘To the moist cortews Reader,’ the author says, ‘al thoche this famous historie hathe beine republished heir to foir by hime which deserws great thankis for so worthie a work, yit the gathering of the said historie in a smaller compass may gif moir content vnto some readers,’ &c. From another passage it should seem that additions are interspersed; but evidently without either distinction or authorities.”

Mr Ellis also informs me, that the only old edition of Wallace, in the Museum, besides that of 1570, is the one printed at Aberdeen, in 1630, small octavo.

 In Aperill fra him he bownd to wend.
 365 Bot gud service he dide him with plesance,
 As in that place was worthi to awance.

 Till Erewyn wattir fysche to tak he went;
 370 Sic fantasye fell in his entent.
 To leide his net, a child furth with him yeid;
 But he, or nowne, was in a fellowne dreid.
 His suerd he left, so did he neur agayne;

 405 The suerd flaw fra him a fur breid on the land.
 Wallas was glad, and hynt it sone in hand;
 And with the swerd awkwart he him gawe
 Wndyr the hat, his crage in sondre drawe.
 Fol. 5 a Be that the layff lychtyt about Wallas;
 410 He had no helpe, only bot Goddis grace.
 On athir side full fast on him thai dange;
 Gret perell was giff thai had lestyng lang.
 Apone the hede in gret ire he strak ane;
 The scherand suerd glaid to the colar bane.
 415 Ane othir on the arme he hitt so hardely,

 The tothir twa fled to thar hors agayne;
 He stekit him was last apone the playne.
 Thre slew he thar, twa fled with all thair mycht
 420 Eftir thar lord; bot he was out of sycht,
 Takand the mure, or he and thai couth twyne.

 And cryit; "Lord, abide; your men ar martyrit down
 "Rycht cruelly, her in this fals regioun.

- 425 “ Fyve of our court her at the wattir baid,

 “ We ar chapyt, bot in feyld slayne are thre.”
 The lord speryt; ‘ How mony mycht thai be?’
 “ We saw bot ane that has discumfyst ws all.”

 ‘ Sen ane yow all has putt to confusioun.
 ‘ Quha menys it maist, the dewyll of hell him droun;
 ‘ This day for me, in faith, he beis nocht socht.’
 Quhen Wallas thus this worthi werk had wrocht,

 Gaif our that crafft, he yeid to fysche no mar;
 Went till his eyne, and tauld him of this dede.
 And he for wo weyle ner worthit to weide;

EXPLICIT LIBER PRIMUS,
 ET INCIPIT SECUNDUS.

BUKE SECUND.

- YONG Wallace fulfillit of hie curage;
 In pryss of armys desirous and sauage;
 Thi waslage may neur be forlorn,
 Thi deidis are knawin, thocht that the warld had suorn:
 5 For thi haile mynde, labour and besynes,
 Was set in wer, and werray rychtwisnes;
 And felloune loss of thi deyr worthi kyn.
 Fol. 5 b The rancour more remaynde thi mynd with in.
 It was his lyff, and maist part of his fude,
 10 To se thaim sched the byrnand Sothroun blude.
 Till Auchincruff with outyn mar he raid,
 And bot schort tyme in pess at he thar baid.
 Thar duelt a Wallas, welcummyt him full weill;
 Thocht Ingliss men thar of had litill feille.
 15 Bathe meite and drynk at his wille he had thar.
 In Laglyne wode, quhen that he maid repayr,
 This gentill man was full oft his resett;
 With stuff of houshald strestely he thaim bett.
 So he desirit the toune of Air to se,
 20 His child with him; as than na man had he.
 Ay next the wode Wallace gert leiff his horss;
 Syne on his feit yeid to the merkat corss.
 The Persye was in the castell of Ayr
 With Ingliss men, gret nowmber and repayr:
 25 Our all ye toune rewlyng on thair awne wiss,
 Till mony Scot thai did full gret suppriss.

- Aboundandely Wallace amang thaim yeid;
 The rage of youth maid him to haf no dreid.
 A churll thai had, that felloune byrdyngis bar;
 30 Excedandlye he wald lyft mekill mar
 Than ony twa that thai amang thaim fand;
 And als be wss a sport he tuk in hand:
 He bar a sasteing in a boustous poille:
 On his braid bak of ony wald he thoile,
 35 Bot for a grot, als fast as he mycht draw.
 Quhen Wallas herd spek of that mery saw,
 He likyt weill at that mercat to be,
 And for a strak he bad him grottis thre.
 The churll grantyt, of that proferr was fayn.
 40 To pay the siluer Wallas was full bayne.
 Wallas that steing tuk wp in till his hand;
 Full sturdely he coud befor him stand,
 Wallace, with that, apou the bak him gaif,
 Till his ryg bayne he all in sondyr draif.
 45 The carll was dede: of him I spek no mar.
 The Ingliss men semblit on Wallace thair,
 Feill on the feld of frekis fechtand fast;
 He vnabasyt, and nocht gretlie agast,
 Vpon the hed ane with the steing hitt he,
 50 Till bayn and brayn he gert in pecis fle.
 Ane othir he straik on a basnat of steille,
 The tre to raiff and fruschit euiredeille.
 His steying was tynt, the Ingliss man was dede;
 For his crag bayne was brokyn in that stede.
 55 He drew a suerd at helpit him at neide,
 Throuch oute the thickest of the press he yeid;
 And at his horss full fayne he wald haif beyne.
 Twa sarde him maist that cruell war and keyne.
 Wallace raturnd as man of mekyll mayne;
 Fol. 6 a 60 And at a straik the formast has he slayne.

- The tothir fled, and durst him nocht abide;
 Bot a rycht straik Wallace him gat that tid;
 In at the guschet brymly he him bar;
 The grounden suerd throuch out his cost it schar.
- 65 Fyve slew he thar, or that he left the toune:
 He gat his horss, to Laglyne maid him boune,
 Kepyt his child, and leyt him nocht abide;
 In saufté thus on to the wod can ride.
 Feille folowit him on hors, and eik on futte,
- 70 To tak Wallace: bot than it was no butte;
 Couert of treis sawit him full weille.
 Bot thar to bid than coude he nocht adeille
 Gud ordinance, that serd for his estate,
 His cusyng maid at all tyme, ayr and late,
- 75 The Squier Wallace in Auchincruuff that was;
 Baith bed and meite he maid for thaim to pass,
 As for that tyme that he remanyt thar;
 Bot sar he langit to [se] the toune of Ayr.
 Thedyr he past apon the mercate day;
- 80 Gret God gif he as than had beyne away!

His emys serwand to buy him fysche was send,
 Schir Ranald Craufurd, schirreff than was kend.
 Quhen he had tane of sic gud as he bocht,
 The Perseys stwart sadly him socht,

85 And said; "Thow Scot, to quhom takis thow this thing?"
 'To the schirreff,' he said. "Be hewynnys king,
 "My lord sall haiff it; and syne go seke the mar."
 Wallace on gaitte ner by was walkand thar:
 Till him he yeid, and said; 'Gud freynd, pray I the,

90 'The schirreffis serwand thow wald lat him be.'
 A hetfull man the stwart was of blude;
 And thought Wallace chargyt him in termys rude.
 "Go hens, the Scot, the mekill dewill the speid;

- " At thi shrewed wss thow wenys me to leid."
 95 A huntyn staff in till his hand he bar;
 Thar with he smat on Willyham Wallace thair.
 Bot for his tre litill sonyhé he maid,
 Bot be the coler claucht him with outyn baid.
 A felloun knyff fast till his hart straik he;
 100 Syn fra him dede schot him doun sodanlé:
 Catour sen syne he was, but weyr, no mar.
 Men of armess on Wallace semblit thar,
 Four scor was sett in armyss buskyt boune,
 On the merket day, for Scottis to kepe the toune.
 105 Bot Wallace bauldlye drew a suerd of wer,
 In to the byrneis the formast can he ber,
 Throuch out the body stekit him to dede;
 And syndry ma, or he past of that stede.
 Ane othir awkwart a large straik tuk [he] thar,
 110 Abown the kne, the bayne in sondir schar.
 The thrid he straik throuch his pissand of maile,
 The crag in twa; no weidis mycht him wail.
 Fol. 6 b Thus Wallace ferd als fers as a lyoun.
 Than Inglissmen, that war in bargane, boune
 115 To kepe the gait with speris rud and lang;
 For dynt of suerd thai durst nocht till hym gang.
 Wallace was harnest on his body weyle;
 Till him thai socht with hedis scharp of steyle,
 And fra his strenth enwerounde him about;
 120 Bot throu the press on a side he went out,
 On till a wall that stude by the se syde;
 For weyle or wo thar most he nedis abide.
 And off thar speris in pecis part he schar.
 Than fra the castell othir help come mar.
 125 Atour the dike thai yeid on athir side,

 Than wist he nocht of no help, bot to de;

- To wenge his dede amang thaim louss yeid he,
 On athyr part in gret ire heward fast.
- 130 Hys byrnyst brand to byrstyt at the last,
 Brak in the heltis, away the blaid it flaw;
 He wyst na wayne, bot out his knyff can draw.
 The fyrst he slew, that him in hand has hynt;
 And othir twa he stekit with his dynt.
- 135 The remanand with speris to him socht,
 Bar him to ground, than forthir mycht he nocht.
 The lordis bad that thai suld nocht him sla;
 To pyne him mar thai chargyt him to ta.
 Thus in thar armyss, supposs that he had suorne,

 Thus gud Wallace with Inglissmen was tane,
 In falt of helpe, for he was him allayne:
 He coud nocht cheyss, sic curage so hym bar,
 Frewill fortoun thus broucht him in the snar;
- 145 And falss Inweye, ay contrar rychtwisnes,
 That wiolent god full of doubilnes.
 Thai feneyit goddis Wallace neuir knew:
 Gret rychtwisness him ay to mercy drew.
 His kyn mycht nocht him get for na kyn thing,
- 150 Mycht thai hawe payit the ransoune of a king.
 The more thai bad, the mor it was in wayne.
 Off thar best men that day sewyn has he slayne.

 Leyff I him thar in to that paynfull sted.
- 160 Gret God abowe till him send sum ramede!
 The playne compleynt, the pittows wementyng!

- “ Alas,” thai said, “ how suld our lyff endur?”
165 “ Be fortoun armess has left him in thrillage:
Fol. 7 a “ The flour of youth in till his tendir age.
“ Lefand as now a chiftane had we nane,
“ Durst tak on hand, bot yong Wallace alayne.
“ This land is lost; he caught is in the swar,
170 “ The Apersé of Scotland left in cayr!”

- Barrell heryng and wattir thai him gawe,
Quhar he was set in to that vgly cawe.
Sic fude for him was febill to commend.
Than said he thus; ‘ All weildand God, resawe
175 ‘ My petows spreit and sawle amang the law!
‘ My carneill lyff I may nocht thus defend.
‘ Our few Sothroune on to the dede I drawe.

‘ For off my lyff ellys no thing I roucht.
‘ O wareide suerd, of tempyr neuir trew,
190 ‘ Thi fruschand blaid in presoune sone me threw:
‘ And Inglissmen our litill harm has tayne.
‘ Off ws thai haiff wndoyne may than ynew;
‘ My faithfull fadyr dispitfully thai slew,

- 195 ' Is this thi dait, sall thai our cum ilkane?
 ' On our kynrent, deyr God, quhen will thow rew;

 ' All worthi Scottis, almychty God yow leid,

- 200 ' In presoune heir me worthis to myscheyff.
 ' Sely Scotland, that of helpe has gret neide,

 285 Bot gudely meytis scho graithit him at hir mycht.
 And so befel in to that sammyn tid,

 With the mynystir, quhilk was a worthi man:
 290 He wsynt offt to that religious place.
 The peple demyt of witt mekill he can;
 And so he told, thocht at thai bliss or ban,
 Quhilk hapnyt suth in many diuerss cace,

 300 This man ansuerd; "Of litill hard I meyn."

 "Wallas," he said, "ye wist tayne in that steid;

 Fol. 8 b 'In lychtlyness tyll hyr thai grant it thair.
 320 'Our the watty on till hir houss him brocht,

 Yhit Thomas said; "Than sall I leiff na mar,
 "Giff that be trow, be God, that all has wrocht."
 The mynister herd quhat Thomas said in playne.
 325 He chargyt him than; 'Go, speid the fast agayne
 'To that sammyn houss, and werraly aspye.'
 The man went furth, at byddyng was full bayne;
 To the Newtoun to pass he did his payn,
 To that ilk houss; and went in sodanlye.
 330 About he blent on to the burd him bye.

Scho had him wp to Wallace by the dess;
 He spak with him, syne fast agayne can press
 With glaid bodword, thar myrthis till amend.

- 345 He told to thaim the first tithingis was less.

 350 ‘So gud off hand agayne sall neur be kend.’

All worthi men, that has gud witt to waille,

 Bot Bruce was knawin weyll ayr off this kynrik;
 For he had rycht, we call no man him lik.
 Bot Wallace thriss this kynrik conquest haile,
 In Ingland fer socht battaill on that rik.

- 360 I will ratorn to my mater agayne.
 Quhen Wallace was ralesched off his payne,

 365 In to that place he wald na langar byde.

 Fol. 9 a 370 Quhen thai war gayne, na wapynnys thar he saw
 To helpe him with, quhat auentur mycht befaw.
 A rousty suerd in a noik he saw stand,
 With outyn belt, but boss, bukler, or band.
 Lang tyme befor it had beyne in that steid;
 375 Ane agyt man it left quhen he was dede.
 He drew the blaid, he fand it wald bitt weill;
 Thocht it was foule, nobill it was of steyll.

 380 To Schyr Ranald as than he wald nocht fair;

 305 Schir Ranald wist he mycht thaim nocht ganestand ;
 Off lord Persye he has resaut this band.
 Perseys war trew, and ay off full gret wail,

 Schir Ranald bownyde vpon the morne but baid,

 So he him fand bownand to his dyner.
 Quhen thai had seyne this gud knyght was so ner,
 Weyle he him knew, and tauld thaim quhat he was ;
 Meruaille he had quhat gart him hiddyр pass,

 King Eduuardis self could nocht get bettir wyn
 Than thai had thar, warnage and wensoune
 Off bestiall in to full gret fusioun.
 Syn eftir mett, he schew thaim of hys deide,
 320 How he had beyne in to so mekill dreid.

 So said Adam the ayr of Rycardtoun;
 And Kneland als grantyt to thair opynyoun.
 With thair consent Wallace this pess has tayne,

 Ane Inglissman, on the gait, saw he play
 At the scrymmagis a bukler on his hand.

 For danger syne to Laglyne wode thai raid.
 Twenty and nyne thai left in to that steide,
 400 Off Sothroun men that bertynit war to dede.
 The ramaynand agayne turnyt that tide;
 For in the woode thai durst nocht him abyde.
 Towart the tounne thai drew with all thair mayn,

 Quhen he hard tell of thair gret grewance,

- ‘ Rycht laith I war, deyr wncle, you to greiff;

 ‘ And warn you als or that I fra you pass.’
 His eyne and he thus weill accordyt was.
 435 Wallace with him maid his continuance;
 Ilk wicht was blyth to do till him plesance.
 In Corsby thus he resyd thaim amang
 Thai sextene dayis, suppos him thought it lang.
 Thocht thai mycht pless him as a prince or king,
 440 In his mynde yit remanyt ane othir thing.
 He saw his enemys maistris in this regioun,
 Mycht nocht him pless thocht he war king with croune.
 Thus leyff [I] him with his der freyndis still;

 The changing coursse quihilk makis gret deference;
 And lewyss had lost thair colouris of plesence.
 All warldly thing has nocht bot a sesoune;
 10 Both erbe and froyte mon fra hewyn cum doun.
 In this ilk tyme a gret consell was sett
 In to Glaskow quhar mony maistris mett,
 Off Ingliss lordis, to statute this cuntré.
 Than chargyt thai all schirreffis thar to be.
 15 Schir Ranald Crawford behowide that tyme be thar,
 For he throw rycht was born schirreff of Ayr.
 His der neuo that tyme with hym he tuk,

 For he na time suld be fra hys sycht,

 Thai cutt the brayss and leyt the harness faw.
 40 Wallace was ner; quhen he sic reueré saw,
 He spak to thaim with manly contenance.
 In fayr afforme, he said, but wariance;
 'Ye do vs wrang, and it in tyme of pess;
 'Off sic rubry war suffisance to cess.'
 45 The Sothron schrew in ire ansuerd him to;
 "It sall be wrocht as thow may se ws do.
 "Thow gettis no mendis; quhat wald thow wordis ma
 Sadly awisit Wallace remembrith him thar
 On the promyss he maid his eyme befor:
 50 Resoun him rewlyt, as than he did no mor.
 The horss thai tuk for awentur mycht befall,
 Laid on thar sowme, syne furth the way couth call.
 Thar tyryt sowmir so left thai in to playne.
 Wallace raturnd towart the court agayne;
 55 In the mursyde sone with his eyme he mett,
 Fol. 14 b And tauld how thai the way for his man sett:
 "And war noucht I was bonde in my legiance,
 "We partyt noucht thus for all the gold in France.
 "The horss thai reft quhilk suld your harness ber."
 60 Schir Ranald said; 'That is bot litill der.

- ' We may get horsse and [vthir] gud in playne;
 ' And men be lost, we get neur agayne.'
 Wallace than said; " Als wisly God me sawe,
 " Off this gret myss I sall amendis hawe;
 65 " And nothir latt for pess na your plesance.
 " With witness her I gif vp my legiance:
 " For cowardly ye lik to tyne your rycht;
 " Your selff sone syne to dede thai think to dycht."
 In wraith thar with away fra him he went.
- 70 Schyr Ranald was wiss, and kest in his entent;
 And said I will byde at the Mernys all nycht:
 So Inglissmen may deyme ws no wnrycht,
 Gyff ony be deide befor ws vpon cass,
 That we in law may bide the rychtwisnass.
- 75 His lugging tuk; still at the Mernyss baid;
 Full gret murnyng he for his neuo maid.
 Bot all for nocht; quhat mycht it him awaill?
 As in till wer he wrocht nocht his consaill.
 Wallace raid furth, with him twa yemen past;
- 80 The sowmer man he folowid wondyr fast;
 Be est Cathcart he our hyede thaim agayne.
 Than knew thai weille that it was he in playne,
 Be horsse and weide, that argownd thaim befor.
 The fyve to thaim retornde with outyn mor.

 A burnyst brand he bradyt out that tyde.
 The maistir man with sa gud will straik he,
 Bathe hatt and hede he gert in sondyr fle,
 Ane othir fast apon the face he gaiff,
- 90 Till dede to ground, but mercy, he him draiff.
 The thrid he hyt with gret ire in that steid;
 Fey on the feld he has him left for deid.
 Wallace slew thre; by that his yemen wicht,
 The tothir twa derfly to dede thai dycht.

- 95 Syne spoilyeid thai the harnaiss or thai wend,
 Off siluer and gold aboundandlye to spend.
 Jowellis thai tuk, the best was chosyn thar,
 Gud horss and geyr; syne on thair wayis can fayr.
 Than Wallace said; " At sum strenth wald I be."
- 100 Our Clid that tyme thar was a bryg of tre;
 Thiddir thai past in all thair gudlye mycht:
 The day was gayne, and cummyn was the nycht.
 Thai durst nocht weylle ner Glaskow still abide;
 In the Lennox he tuk purposs to ryde.
- 105 And so he dyde, syne lugyt thaim that nycht,
 As thai best mowcht, quhill that the day was brycht.
- Fol. 15 a Till ane ostrye he went, and soïorned thar
 With trew Scottis, quhilk at his freindis war.
 The consaill mett rycht glaidly on the morn;
- 110 Bot fell tithingis was brocht Persie beforene.
 His men war slayne, his tresour als bereft
 With fell Scottis, and thaim na jowellis left.
 Thai demede about off that derff doutouss cass;
 The Sothren said; " Forsuth, it is Wallas."
- 115 The schirreffis court was cumand to the toune,
 And he as ane for Scot of most renoune.
 Thai gert go seik Schyr Ranald in that rage;
 Bot he was than yeit still at herbryage.
 Sum wiss men said; " Heroff na thing he kend:
- 120 " The men war slayne rycht at the townis end."
 Schyr Ranald come by ten houris of the day.
 Befor Persye than seir men brocht war thai:
 Thai folowit him of felouny that was wrocht;
 The siyss of this couth say to him rycht nocht.
- 125 Thai demede about of that feill sodeyne cass,
 Befor the juge thar he denyit Wallas;
 And so he mycht, he wist nocht quhar he was.
 Fra this consaill my purposs is to pass,

Off Wallace spek, in wyldirnes so wyde ;
 130 The eterne God his gouernour be and gyde !

Styll at the place four dayis he soiorned haill,
 Quhill tithingis come till hym fra thair consaill.
 Than statute thai, in ilk steide of the west,
 In thar boundis Wallace suld haiff no rest.

135 His der wncle gret ayth thai gert him suer,
 That he, but leiff, suld no freindschipe him ber :
 And mony othir was full woo that day.

Robert the Boide stall of the tounne his way ;
 And Kneland als, befor with him had beyne.
 140 Thai had leuir haif seyne him with thair eyne,
 Leyffand in lyff, as thai knew him befor,
 Than of cler gold a fyne mylyone and mor.
 Boid wepyt sor, said ; “ Our leidar is gayne,
 “ Amang our fays he is set him allayne.”

145 Than Kneland said ; ‘ Fals fortoun changis fast ;
 ‘ Gret God sen we had euir with him past !’
 Edward Litill in Annadyrdail is went,
 And wait rycht nocht of this newe jugément.
 Adam Wallace baid still in Ricardtounne.

150 So fell [it] thus with Wallace of renoune ;
 He with power partyt merwalusly,
 Be fortune chance ourturnys doubilly.
 Thar petuouss mene as than couth nocht be bett ;
 Thai wyst no wyt quhar that thai suld him get.

155 He left the place, quhair he in luyng lay ;
 Till erle Malcome he went vpon a day.
 The Lennox haile he had still in his hand ;
 Till king Eduuard he had nocht than maid band.
 That land is strait, and maisterfull to wyn ;

160 Gud men of armyss that tyme was it within.
 The lord was traist, the men sekыр and trew ;

- With waik power thai durst him nocht persew.
 Rycht glaid he was of Wallace cumpany,
 Welcummyt him fayr with worschipe reuerandlye ;
 165 At his awne will desyryt, gyff he walde
 To byde thair still maistyr of his houshald ;
 Off all his men he suld haile chyftayne be.
 Wallace ansuerd ; “ That war yneuch for me.
 “ I can nocht byde, my mynde is sett in playne
 170 “ Wrokyt to be, or ellis de in the payne.
 “ Our wast contré thar statute is so strang,
 “ Into the north my purpos is to gang.”
 Stewyn of Irland than in the Lennox was
 With wicht Wallace ; he ordynyt him to pass,
 175 And othir als that borne war off Argill.
 Wallace still thair residence maid a quhill,
 Quhill men it wist, and semblit sone him till.
 He chargyt nayne bot at thair awne gud will ;
 For thai war strang : yeitt he couth nocht thaim dreid,
 180 Bot resawit all in weris thaim to leid.
 Sum part off tham was in to Irland borne,
 That Makfadyan had exilde furth before :
 King Eduuardis man he was suorn, of England,
 Off rycht law byrth, supposs he tuk on hand.
 185 To Wallace thar come ane that hecht Fawdoun ;
 Malancoly he was of complexioun,
 Hewy of statur, dour in his contenance,
 Soroufull, sadde, ay dreidfull but plesance.
 Wallace resawit quhat man wald cum him till ;
 190 The bodelye ayth thai maid him with gud will
 Before the erle, all with a gud accord ;
 And him resawyt as captane and thair lord.
 His speciall men, that cum with him fra hayme,
 The tayne hecht Gray, the tothir Kerlé be nayme,
 195 In his seruice come fyrst with all thair mayne,

To Lowdoun hill quhar that Fenweik was slayne.
 He thaim comandyt ay next him to persew;
 For he thaim kend rycht hardye, wiss and trew.
 His leyff he tuk rycht on a fair maner.

- 200 The gud erlle than he bad him gyftis ser:
 Wallace wald nayne, bot gaiff of his fell syss,
 To pour and rych, vpon a gudlye wiss.
 Humyll he was, hardy, wiss and fre,
 As off rychess he held na propyrte.
 205 Off honour, worschipe, he was a merour kend;
 Als he off gold had boundandlye to spend.
 Wpon his fayis he wan it worthely.
 Thus Wallace past, and his gud chewalry.
 Sixty he had off lykly men at wage;
 210 Through the Lennox he led thaim with curage.
 Aown Lekkie he lugyt thaim in a waille.
 A strenth thar was quhilk thai thocht till assaill.

- On Gargownno was byggyt a small peill,
 That warnyst was with men and wittail weill,
 215 Within a dyk, bathe closs, chawmer, and hall;
 Capteyne tharoff to nayme he hecht Thrilwall.
 Thai led Wallace quhar that this byggynge wass;
 He thocht to assaill it, ferby or he wald pass.
 Twa spyiss he send to wesly all that land:
 220 Rycht laith he was the thing to tak on hand,
 The quhilk, beforce, that suld gang hym agayne;
 Leur had he throw awentur be slayne.
 Thir men went furth as it was large mydnycht;
 About that houss thai spyt all at rycht.
 225 The wachman was hewy fallen on sleipe;
 The bryg was doun at that entré suld keipe;
 The lauboreris latt rakleslye went in.
 Thir men retornede, with outyn noyess or dyn,

- To thair maistir; told him as thai had seyne.
 230 Than grathit sone thir men of armyss keyne;
 Sadlye on fute on to the houss thai socht,
 And entryt in, for lattyn fand thai nocht.
 Wicht men assayed, with all thair besy cur,
 A loklate bar, was drawyn ourthourth the dur;
 235 Bot thai mycht nocht it brek out of the waw.
 Wallace was grewyt quhen he sic tary saw.
 Sumpart amowet, wraithly till it he went;
 Be forss off handis it raist out of the stent;
 Thre yerde off breide alss off the wall puld out.
 240 Than merweld all his men that war about,
 How he dide mair than twenty off thaim mycht.
 Syne with his fute the yett he straik wp rycht,
 Quhill braiss and band to byrst all at anyss.
 Ferdely thai raiss, that war in to thai wanyss.
 245 The wachman had a felloune staff of steill,
 At Wallace strake, bot he kepyt hym weill.
 Rudely fra him he reft it in that thrang,
 Dang out his harnyss, syne in the dik him flang.
 The remaynand be that was on thair feit;
 250 Thus Wallace sone can with the capteyn meite.
 That staff he had, hewy and forgyt new,
 With it Wallace wpon the hede him threw,
 Quhill bayn and brayn all in to sondyr yeid.
 His men entryt, that worthy war in deid,
 255 In handis hynt, and stekit of the layff.
 Wallace commaundede thai suld na wermen saiff.
 Twenty and twa thai stekit in that steid.
 Wemen and barnyss, quhen that the men war deide,
 He gert be tayn, in closs houss kepyt weill,
 260 So thai wytht out thar off mycht haiff no feill.
 Fol. 16 b The dede bodyes thai put sone out of sycht;
 Tuk wp the bryg or that the day was lycht.

- In that place baid four dayis or he wald pass;
 Wist nane with out how at this mater wass:
- 265 Spoilyeide that steid, and tuk thaim ganand ger;
 Jowellis and gold away with thaim thai ber.
 Quhen him thocht tyme, thai ischede on the nycht;
 To the next woode thai went with all thair mycht.
 The captenys wiff, wemen, and childer thre,
- 270 Pass quhar thai wald, for Wallas leit thaim be.
 In that forest he likit nocht to bide:
 Thai bownyt thaim atour Forth for to ride.
 The moss was strang, to ryde it was no but:
 Wallas was wicht and lychtyt on his fute.
- 275 Few horss thai had, litill thar off thai roucht:
 To sawe thar lywes feill strenthis oft thai socht.
 Stewyn of Irland he was thair gyd that nycht
 Towart Kyncardyn, syne restit thar at rycht
 In a forest, that was bathe lang and wide,
- 280 Rycht fra the moss grew to the wattir syde.
 Eftre the sone Wallas walkit about
 Vpon Tetht side, quhar he saw mony rout
 Off wyld bestis wauerand in wode and playne.
 Sone at a schot a gret hart hass he slayne;
- 285 Slew fyr on flynt, and graithit thaim at rycht;
 Sodeynly thar fresche venesoun thai dycht.
 Wictaill thai had, bathe breid, and wyne so cler,
 With othir stuff yneuch at thair dyner.
 His staff of steill he gaiff Kerly to kepe;
- 290 Syn passit [thai] our Tetht wattir so depe.
 In to Straithern thai entrit sodeynly;
 In couert past, or Sothren suld thaim spy.
 Quhen at thai fand of Scotlandis aduersouris,
 With out respyt cummyn was thair fatell houris.
- 295 Quham euir thai mett, was at the Ingliss fay,
 Thai sparyt nane that was off Ingliss blude;

- To dede he yeid thocht he war neur so gude.
 Thai sawyt nothir knycht, squier, nor knaiff;
 300 This was the grace that Wallace to thaim gaiff;
 Bot wastyt all be worthynes off wer,
 Off that party that mycht weild bow or sper.
 Sumpart be slycht, sum throw force thai slew;
 Bot Wallace thocht thai stroyit nocht half enew.
 305 Siluer thai tuk, and als gold at thai fand,
 Othir gud ger full lychtly yeid be hand;
 Cuttyt throttis, and in to cuwyss thaim kest,
 Put out of sycht, for that him thocht was best.
 At the Blakfurd, as at thai suld pass our,
 Fol. 17 a 310 A squier come, and with him bernyss four,
 Till Doun suld ryde; and wend at thai had beyne
 All Inglissmen, at he befor had seyne.
 Tithingis to sper he howid thaim amang.
 Wallace thar with swyth out a [gude] suerd swang;
 315 Vpon the hede he straik with so gret ire,
 Throu bayne and brayn in sondyr schar the swyr.
 The tothir four in handis sone war hynt,
 Derfly to dede stekit or thai wald stynt.
 Thar horss thai tuk, and quhat thaim likit best;
 320 Spoilyeid thaim bar, syne in the brook thaim kest.
 Off this mater no mor tary thai maid,
 Bot furth thar way passit with outyn baid.
 Thir werlik Scottis, all with one assent,
 Northt so our Ern through out the land thai went:
 325 In Meffan woode thair luyng tuk that nycht.
 Vpon the morn, quhen it was dayis lycht,
 Wallace raiss wp, went to the forest side,
 Quhar that he sawe full feill bestis abide,
 Off wylde and tayme walkand haboundandlye.
 330 Than Wallace said; "This contré likis me.
 "Wermen may do with fud at thai suld haiff;

“ Bot want thai meit, thai rak nocht of the laiff.”

Off dyet fayr Wallace tuk neur kepe;

Bot as it come, welcum was meit and sleip.

335 Sum quhill he had gret sufficiencye within;

Now want, now has; now losis, now can win;

Now lycht, now sadd; now blisful, now in baill;

In haist, now hurt; now sorroufull, now haill;

Nowe weildand weyle; now calde weddyr, now hett;

340 Nowe moist, now drowth; now wauerand wynd, now weit.

So ferd with hym for Scotlandis rycht full ewyn,

In feyle debait six yeris and monethis sewyn.

Quhen he wan peess, and left Scotland in playne,

The Inglissmen maid new conquest agayne.

345 In frustyr termys I will nocht tary lang.

Wallace agayne wnto his men can gang,

And said; “ Her is a land of gret boundance,

“ Thankit be God of his hye perwyans.

“ Sewyn of yow feris graith sone, and ga with me;

350 “ Rycht sor I long Sanct Jhonstoun for to se.

“ Stewyn of Irland als, God of hewyn the saiff,

“ Maister leiddar I mak the of the laiff.

“ Kepe weill my men, latt nane out [of] thi sycht,

“ Quhill I agayn sall cum with all my mycht.

355 “ Byde me sewyn dayis in this forest strang:

“ Yhe may get fude, supposs I duell so lang.

“ Sumpart yhe haif, and God will send ws mair.”

Thus turnyt he, and to the toune couth fair.

Fol. 17 b The mar, kepyt the port of that willage,

360 Wallace knew weill, and send him his message.

The mar was brocht, saw him a gudlye man;

Rycht reuerandlye he has resawyt thaim than.

At him he speryt, all Scottis gyff thai be.

Wallace said; “ Ya, and it is peess trow we.”

- 365 'I grant,' he said, 'that likis ws wondyr weill:
 'Trew men of peess may ay sum frendschipe feill.
 'Quhat is your nayme? I pray yow tell me it.'
 "Will Malcomsone," he said, "sen ye wald witt.
 "In Atryk forest has my wonnyng beyne:

 "Now I desyr this north land for to se,
 "Quhar I mycht find bettyr duellyng for me."
 The mar said; 'Schyr, I sper nocht for nane ille;
 'Bot feill tithingis oft syiss is brocht ws till
- 375 'Off ane Wallace, was born in to the west.

 'Out of the trewis, forsuth, we trow he be.'
 Wallace than said; "I her spek of that man;
- 380 "Tithingis off him to you nane tell I can."
 For him he gert ane innys graithit be,

 Hys stwart Kerlye brocht thaim in fusioun

- 385 Alss Inglissmen to drynkyn wald him call,
 And commownly he delt nocht thar withall.
 In thar presence he spendyt resonably,
 Yheit for him self he payit ay boundandlye.
 On Scottis men he spendyt mekill gud,

- 395 His sone Schyr Jhon than duelt in to the toune,
 Vndyr capteyn to Schyr Garrard Heroune.
 The wemen alss he wysyt at the last;
 And so on ane hys eyne he can to cast,

In the south gait, of fassoun fresche and fayr.

400 Wallace to hir maid preualye repair.

So fell it thus, of the toun or he past,
At ane accorde thai hapnyt at the last.

 "And that may sone be warnyng to the laiff.
 "All forss in wer do nocht but gouernance."
 Wallace was few; bot happy ordinance

- 445 The Inglissmen merweild quhat thai suld be;
 But fra thai saw thai maid [thaim] for mellé,

 Bathe bayne and brayn he byrst throw all the weid;
 Thus Wallace hand deliuerit thaim off dreid.
 Yeitt feill on fold was fechtand cruelly:

 In to the stour did cruelly and weill;
 And Kerlé alss with his gud staff of steill.
 The Inglissmen, fra thar cheftayne was slayne,

 For weill thai wend the flearis was thar lord;
 To tak him in thai maid thaim redy ford,
 Leit down the bryg, kest wp the yettis wide.
 The frayit folk entrit, and durst nocht byde:
- 485 Gud Wallace euir he folowit thaim so fast,

 Quhen him thought tyme, thai put out of that place.
- 505 Quhen thai had tayne quhat he likit to haiff,
 Straik doun the yettis and set in fyr the laiff ;
 Out off wyndowis stanssouris all thai drew ;
 Full gret irne wark in to the wattir threw ;
 Burdyn duris and lokis, in thair ire,
- 510 All werk of tre, thai brynt wp in a fyr :
 Fol. 19 a Spylt at thai mycht, brak brig and bulwark doune.
 To Schortwode schawe in haist thai maid thaim boune ;
 Chesyt a strenth, quhar thai thar lugyng maid,
 In gud offer a quhill thar still be baid ;
- 515 Yit in the toune no wit of this had thai.
 The contré folk, quhen it was lycht of day,
 Gret reik saw ryss, and to Kynclewyn thai socht :
 Bot wallis and stane, mar gud thar fand thai nocht.
 The captennis wiff to Sanct Jhonstoun scho yeid,
- 520 And to Schyr Garrate scho tauld this felloune deid ;
 Alss till hyr son quhat hapnyt was be cass.
 Than demyt thai all that it wass wicht Wallas ;
 Off for tyme thar he spyit had the toune.
 Than charyt thai all, thai suld be redy boune.
- 525 Harnest on hors in to thair armour cler,
 To seik Wallace thai went all furth in feyr,
 A thousand men weill garnest for the wer,
 Towart the woode rycht awfull in offer,
 To Schortwode schaw, and set it all about,
- 530 Wytht fyve stailis that stalwart was and stout ;
 The sext thai maid a fellon range to leid,
 Quhar Wallace was full worthi ay in deid.

The strenth he tuk, and bade thaim hald it still,
On ilka syde, assailye quha sa will.

- 535 Schyr Jhon Butler in to the forrest went
With twa hundreth, sor mowit in his entent ;
His fadris dede to wenge him giff he mocht,
To Wallace sone with men of armyss socht.
A cleuch thar was, quharoff a strenth thai maid
540 With thuortour treis, [and] bauldly thar abaid.
Fra the ta side thai mycht ische till a playne,
Syn through the wode to the strenth pass agayn.
Twenty he had that nobill archaris war,
Agayne sewyn scoyr of Ingliss bowmen sar.
545 Four scoyr of speris ner hand thaim baid at rycht,
Giff Scottis ischit to help thaim at thair mycht.
On Wallace sett a bykkyr bauld and keyn ;
A bow he bair was byg and weyll beseyn,
And arrouss als, bath lang and scharpe with aw ;
550 No man was thar that Wallace bow mycht draw.
Rycht stark he was, and in to souir ger,
Bauldly [he] schott amang thai men of wer.
Ane angell hede to the hukis he drew,
And at a schoyt the formast sone he sleu.
555 Yngliss archaris, that hardy war and wicht,
Amang the Scottis bykkerit with all thair mycht ;
Thar awfull schoyt was felloun for to byd,
Off Wallace men thai woundyt sor that tid.
Few off thaim was sekyr of archary ;
560 Bettyr thai war, and thai gat ewyn party,
In feild to byde, othir with suerd or speyr.
Wallace persaut his men tuk mekill deyr :
He gart thaim change, and stand nocht in to steid ;
He kest all wayis to saiff thaim fra the dede.
565 Full gret trauaill vpon him self tuk he ;
Off Sothron men feill archaris he gert de,

- Off Longcaschyr bowmen was in that place.
 A sar archar ay waytit on Wallace,
 At ane opyn, quhar he vsyt to repair :
 570 At him he drew a sekir schot and sar,
 Undyr the chyn, through a coler of steill,
 On the left side, and hurt his halss sumdeill.
 Atonaide he was, bot nocht gretlye agast ;
 Out fra his men on him he folowit fast ;
 575 In the turnyng, with gud will hass him tayne
 Vpon the crag, in sondyr straik the bayne.
 Feill of thaim ma na freyndschip with him fand ;
 Fyfteyn that day he schot to dede of hys hand.
 Be that his arrous waistyt war and gayne ;
 580 The Ingliss archaris forsuth thai wantyt nayne :
 With out thai war thar power to ranew,
 On ilka side to thaim thai couth persew.
 Wylyham Loran com with a boustouss stail,
 Out of Gowry, on Wallace to assaill ;
 585 Neuo he was, as it was knawin in playn,
 To the Butler befor that thai had slayn ;
 To wenge his eyne he come with all his mycht.
 Thre hundreth he led of men in armyss brycht ;
 To leide the range on fute he maid him ford.
 590 Wallace to God his conscience fyrst remord,
 Syne comfort thaim with manly contenance ;
 " Yhe se," he said, " gud schiris, thar ordinance ;
 " Her is no choss, bot owdir do or de.
 " We haiff the rycht, the happyar may it be,
 595 " That we sall chaipe with grace out of this land."
 The Loran, by that, was redy at his hand.
 Be that it was eftir nown of the day,
 Feill men of witt to consaill sone yeid thai.
 The Sothron kest scharply at ilka side,
 600 And saw the wood was nothir lang no wide.

Lychtly thai thought he suld hald it so lang :
 Fywe hundreth maid throu it on fute to gang,
 Sad men off armess that war off eggyr will ;
 Schyr Garratis self with out the woode baid still.

605 Schyr Jhon Butler the ta sid chesyt he,
 The tothyr Loran with a fell menyhe.
 Than gud Wallace, that of help had gret neid,
 Was fyfty men in all that felloun dreid.
 Ane awfull salt the Sothren son began,

610 About the Scottis socht mony likly man,
 With bow, and sper, and swerdis stiff of steill :
 On athir side no frendschip was to feill.
 Wallace in ire a burly brand can draw,

ol. 20 a Quhar feill Sothron war semblit vpon raw,

615 To fende his men with his deyr worthi hand :
 The folk was fey that he befor him fand.
 Throw the thikkest of the gret preiss he past,
 Vpon his enemyss hewand wondyr fast.
 Agayne his dynt na weidis mycht awaill ;

620 Quham so he hyt was dede with outyn fail.
 Off the ferses full braithly bair he down,
 Befor the Scottis that war of gret renoun.
 To hald the strenth thai preist, with all thair mycht,
 The Inglissmen, that worthi war and wicht.

625 Schir Jhon Butler relewit in agayne,
 Swndryt the Scottis and did thaim mekill payn ;
 The Loran alss that cruell was and keyn.
 A sar assay forsuth thar mycht be seyn.
 Than at the strenth thai mycht no langer bide,

630 The range so strang come wpon athir syde.
 In the thikkest woode thar maid thai felle defens,
 Agayn thair fayis so full of wiolens :
 Yit felle Sothron left the lyff to wed.

- Till a new strenth Wallace and his men fled ;
 635 On aduersouris thai maid full gret debait,
 Bot help thaim self, no socour ellis thai wait.
 The Sothron als war sundryt than in twyn ;
 Bot thai agayne to gidder sone can wyn :
 Full sutellye thar ordinance thai maid,
 640 The rang agayne bownyt but mar abaid.
 The Scottis war hurt, and part of thaim war slayn ;
 So fair assay thai couth nocht mak agayn.
 Be this the host approchand was full ner ;
 Thus wrandly thai held thaim wpon ster.
 645 Quhen Wallace saw the Sothroune was at hand,
 Him thocht no tym langar for to stand.
 Rycht manfully he graithit has his ger ;
 Sadly he went agayne the men of wer.
 Throw out the stour full fast fechtand he socht,
 650 With Goddis grace to wenge him gif he mocht.
 Vpon the Butler awfully straik he ;
 Saiffgarde he gat wndir a bowand tre ;
 The bowcht in twa he straik, aboune his hede,
 Alss to the ground, and feld him in that stede.
 655 The hail pouer wpon him com so fast,
 At thai beforce reskewit him at the last.
 Loran was wa, and thidder fast can draw.
 Wallas retornd, sa sodeynly him saw :
 Out at a syde full fast till him he yeid ;
 660 He gat no gyrth for all his burnyst weid :
 With ire him straik on his gorgeat off steill,
 The trensand blaid to persyt euirydeill
 Throu plaitt and stuff, mycht nocht agayn it stand ;
 Derffly to dede he left him on the land.
 Fol. 20 b 665 Hym haif thai lost, thocht Sotheren had it suorn ;
 For his crag bayne was all in sondyr schorn.
 The worthi Scottis did nobilly that day

- About Wallace, till he was woun away.
 He tuk the strenth magre thar fayis will;
 670 Abandonly in bargan baid thar still.
 The scry sone raiss, the bald Loran was dede :
 Schyr Garrat Heroun tranontit that stede,
 And all the host assemblit him about.
 At the north side than Wallace ischet owt,
 675 With him his men, and bownyt him to ga,
 Thankand gret God at thai war partyt sa.
 To Cargyll wood thai went that samyn nycht.
 Sewyn of his men that day to dede was dycht :
 In feld was left of the Sothren sex scoyr ;
 680 And Loran als, thair murnyng was the mor.
 The rang in haist thai rayit sone agayne :
 Bot quhen thai saw thair trauaill was in wayne,
 And he was past, full mekill mayne thai maid
 To rype the wood, bath wala, slonk, and slaid,
 685 For Butleris gold Wallace tuk off befor ;
 Bot thai fand nocht, wald thai seke euirmor.
 Hys horss thai gat, and nocht ellis of thair ger.
 With dulfull mayn retorned thir men of wer
 To Sanct Jhounston, in sorou and gret cayr.
 690 Off Wallace furth me likis to spek mair.

- The secunde nycht the Scottis couth thaim draw
 Rycht priwaly agayne to Schortwod schaw ;
 Tuk wp thair gud, quhilk was put owt of sycht,
 Cleithing and stuff, bathe gold and siluer brycht.
 695 Vpon thar fute, for horsis was thaim fra ;
 Or the son raiss, to Meffen wood can ga.
 Thar twa dayis our thar luyng still thai maid ;
 On the thrid nycht thai mowit but mar abaid.
 Till Elkok park full sodeynly thai went :
 700 Thar in that strentht to bide was his entent.

- Than Wallace said, he wald go to the toun ;
 Arayit him weill in till a preistlik gown.
 In Sanct Jhonstoun disgysyt can he fair,
 Till this woman the quhilk I spak of ayr.
 705 Off his presence scho rycht reiosit was ;
 And sor adred how he away suld pass.
 He soiornt thar fra nowne was of the day
 Quhill ner the nycht, or that he went away.
 He trystyt hyr quhen he wald cum agayne,
 710 On the thrid day ; than was scho wondyr fayne.
 Yeitt he was seyn with enemyss as he yeid ;
 To Schyr Garraid thai tald off all his deid,
 And to Butler, that wald haiff wrokyn beyne.
 Than thai gart tak that woman brycht and scheyne,
 715 Accusyt hir sar of resset in that cass :
 Feyll syiss scho suour, that scho knew nocht Wallass.
- Fol. 21 a
- Than Butler said ; “ We wait weyle it was he ;
 “ And bot thou tell, in bayle fyre sall thou de.
 “ Giff thou will help to bryng yon rebell doune,
 720 “ We sall the mak a lady off renoun.”
 Thai gaiff till hyr baith gold and siluer brycht ;
 And said, scho suld be weddyt with ane knycht,
 Quham scho desirit, that was but mariage.
 Thus tempt thai hir, throu consaill and gret wage,
 725 That scho thaim tald quhat tyme he wald be thar.
 Than war thai glad ; for thai desirit no mar
 Off all Scotland, bot Wallace at thair will.
 Thus ordaynyt thai this poyntment to fullfill.
 Feyle men off armes thai graithit hastelye
 730 To kepe the yettis, wicht Wallas till aspye.
 At the set trist he entrit in the toune,
 Wittand no thing of all this falss tresoune.
 Till hir chawmer he went but mair abaid.
 Scho welcummyt him, and full gret plesance maid.

- 735 Quhat at thai wrocht, I can nocht graithly say ;
 Rycht wnperfyt I am of Venus play :
 Bot hastelye he graithit him to gang.
 Than scho him tuk, and speryt giff he thocht lang ;
 Scho askit him that nycht with hir to bid.
- 740 Sone he said ; “ Nay, for chance that may betide ;
 “ My men ar left all at mysrewill for me.
 “ I may nocht sleipe this nycht quhill I thaim se.”
 Than wepyt scho, and said full oft ; ‘ Allace
 ‘ That I was maide, wa worthe the courssit cass !
- 745 ‘ Now haiff I lost the best man leiffand is ;
 ‘ O feble mynd, to do so foull a myss !
 ‘ O waryit witt, wykkyt and wariance,
 ‘ That me hass brocht in to this myschefull chance !
 ‘ Allace,’ scho said, ‘ in warld that I was wrocht !
- 750 ‘ Giff all this payne on my self mycht be brocht !
 ‘ I haiff seruit to be brynt in a gleid.’
 Quhen Wallace saw scho ner of witt couth weid,
 In his armess he caught hir sobrelly,
 And said ; “ Der hart, quha hass mysdoyne ocht, I?”
- 755 ‘ Nay, I,’ quoth scho, ‘ hass falslye wrocht this trayn,
 ‘ I haiff you sald ; rycht now yhe will be slayn.’
 Scho tauld [to] him hir tresoun till ane end,
 As I haiff said ; quhat nedis mair legend?
 At hir he speryt, giff scho forthocht it sar.
- 760 “ Wa, ya,” scho said, “ and sall do euirmar.
 “ My waryed werd in warld I mon fullfill ;
 “ To mend this myss I wald byrne on a hill.”
 He comfort hir, and baide hir haiff no dreide.
 ‘ I will,’ he said, ‘ haiff sumpart off thi weid.’
- 765 Hir gowne he tuk on hym, and courchess als.
 Fol. 21 b ‘ Will God, I sall eschape this tresoune falss.
 ‘ I the forgyff.’ With outyn wordis mair
 He kissyt hyr, syne tuk his leiff to fayr.

- Hys burly brand, that helpyt him offt in neid,
 770 Rycht priwalye he hid it wndyr that weid.
 To the south yett, the gaynest way, he drew ;
 Quhar that he fand off armyt men enew.
 To thaim he tald, dissemblyt [in] contenance ;
 “ To the chawmer, quhar he was vpon chance,
 775 “ Speid fast,” he said, “ Wallace is lokit in.”
 Fra him thai socht with outyn noyiss or dyn,
 To that sammyn hous ; about thai can thaim cast.
 Out at the yett [than] Wallas gat full fast,
 Rycht glaid in hart ; quhen that he was with out,
 780 Rycht fast he yeide, a stour paiss and a stout.
 Twa him beheld, and said ; “ We will go se ;
 “ A stalwart queyne, forsuth, yon semys to be.”
 Him thai folowit throwe the South Ynche thai twa.
 Quhen Wallace saw with thaim thar come na ma,
 785 Agayne he turnede, and has the formast slayn.
 The tothir fled ; than Wallas, with gret mayn,
 Vpon the hede, with his suerd, has him tayne ;
 Left thaim bathe dede, syne to the strenth is gayne.
 His men he gat, rycht glaid quhen thai him saw ;
 790 Till thair defens in haist he gart thaim draw ;
 Deuoydyde him sone of the womannys weid :
 Thus chapyt he out of that felloun dreid.

EXPLICIT LIBER QUARTUS,
 ET INCIPIT QUINTUS.

BUKE FYFTE.

- THE dyrk regioun apperand wondyr fast,
 In Nouember, quhen October was past,
 The day faillit, throu the rycht courss worthit schort;
 Till banyst men that is no gret comfort,
 5 With thair power in pethis worthis gang;
 Hewy thai think quhen at the nycht is lang.
 Thus Wallas saw the nychtis messynger;
 Phebus had lost his fyry bemyss cler.
 Out of the wood thai durst nocht turn that tyd,
 10 For aduersouris that in thair way wald byde.
 Wallace thaim tauld that new wer wes on hand;
 The Inglissmen was off the toune cummande.
 The dure thai brak, quhar thai trowyt Wallace wass;
 Quhen thai him myst, thai bownyt thaim to pass.
 15 In this gret noyis the woman gat away,
 But to quhat steide I can nocht graithlye say.
 The Sothroun socht rycht sadlye fra that stede
 Throu the South Ynch, and fand thair twa men dede.
 Thai knew be that Wallace was in the strenth.
 20 About the park thai set on breid and lenth,
 With sex hundreth weill graithit in thar armess,
 All likly men, to wreke thaim of thair harmess.
 A hundreth men chargit, in armes strang,
 To kepe a hunde that thai had thaim amang;
 25 In Gyllisland thar was that brachell brede,

- Sekyr off sent to folow thaim at fiede.
 So was scho vsyt on Esk and on Ledail;
 Quhill scho gat blude no flëyng mycht awaill.
 Than said thai all, Wallace mycht nocht away,
 30 He suld be tharis for ocht at he do may.
 The ost thai delt in diuerss part that tyde.
 Schyr Garrat Herroun in the staill can abide;
 Schyr Jhon Butler the range he tuk him till,
 With thre hundre quhilk war of hardy will;
 35 In to the woode apon Wallace thai yeid.
 The worthi Scottis that wer in mekill dreid,
 Socht till a place for till haiff yschet out,
 And saw the staill enwerounyt thaim about.
 Agayne thai went with hydwyss strakis strang,
 40 Gret noyiss and dyne was rayssit thaim amang.
 Thar cruell deide rycht merwaluss to ken,
 Quhen fourtie macht agayne thre hundyr men.
 Wallace so weill apon him tuk that tide,
 Throw the gret preyss he maid a way full wide;
 45 Helpand the Scottis with his der worthi hand:
 Fell faymen he left fey vpon the land.
 Yheit Wallas lost fyfteyn in to that steid;
 And fourtie men of Sothroun part war dede.
 The Butleris folk so fruscht was in deid,
 50 The hardy Scottis to the strenthis throw thaim yeide.
 On to Tay side thai hastyt thaim full fast,
 In will thai war the wattir till haiff past.
 Halff couth nocht swym that than with Wallas wass;
 And he wald nocht leiff ane, and fra thaim pass.
 55 Bettir him thocht in perell for to be
 Wpon the land, than willfully to se
 His men to droun, quhar reskew mycht be nayne.
 Agayne in ire to the feild ar thai gayne.
 Butler be than had putt his men in ray,

- 60 On thaim he sett with ane awfull hard assay,
 On athir side with wapynnys stiff off steill.
 Wallace agayne no frendschipe lett thaim feill.
 Bot do or de, thai wist no mor socour;
 Thus fend thai lang in to that stalwart stour.
- 65 The Scottis chyftayne was yong, and in a rage,
 Vsyt in wer, and fechtis with curage.
 He saw his men off Sothroun tak gret wrang,
 Thaim to raweng all dreidles can he gang:
 For mony off thaim war bledand wondyr sar.
- 70 He couth nocht se no help apperand thar,
 Bot thair chyftayne war putt out off thair gait;
 The bryme Butler so bauldlye maid debait.
 Throu the gret preyss Wallace to him socht:
 His awful deid he eschewit as he mocht.
- 75 Vndyr ane ayk, wyth men about him set:
 Wallace mycht nocht a graith straik on him gett:
 Yeit schede he thaim, a full royd slope was maid.
 The Scottis went out, no langar thar abaid.
 Stewyn off Irland, quhilk hardy was and wicht,
- 80 To helpe Wallace he did gret preyss and mycht;
 With trew Kerlé, douchty in mony deid;
 Wpon the grounde feill Sothroun gert thai bleid.
 Sixty war slayne of Inglissmen in that place,
 And nyne off Scottis thair tynt was throuch that cace.
- 85 Butleris men so stroyit war that tide,
 In to the stour he wald no langar bide.
 To get supple he socht on to the stail:
 Thus lost he thar a hundreth of gret waill.
 As thai war best arayand Butleris rout,
- 90 Betuex parteys than Wallace ischit out;
 Sexteyn with him, thai graithit thaim to ga;
 Off all his men he had lewynt no ma.
 The Inglissmen has myssyt hym; in hy

- The hund thai tuk, and folowit haistely.
- 95 At the Gask woode full fayne he wald haiff beyne;
 Bot this sloth brache, quhilk sekyr was and keyne,
 On Wallace fute folowit so felloun fast,
 Quhill in thar sicht thai prochit at the last.
 Thar horss war wicht, had soiorned weill and lang
- 100 To the next woode twa myl thai had to gang,
 Off vpwith erde; thai yeid with all thair mycht;
 Gud hope thai had for it was ner the nycht.
 Fawdoun tyryt, and said, he mycht nocht gang.
 Wallace was wa to leyff him in that thrang.
- 105 He bade him ga, and said the strenth was ner;
 Bot he tharfor wald nocht fastir him ster.
 Wallace in ire on the crag can him ta
 With his gud suerd, and strak the hed him fra.
 Dreidless to ground derfly he duschit dede.
- 110 Fra him he lap, and left him in that stede.
 Sum demys it to ill, and othyr sum to gud;
 And I say her, into thir termys rude,
 Bettir it was he did, as thinkis me.
 Fyrst, to the hunde it mycht gret stoppyn be.
- 115 Als Fawdoun was haldyn at [gret] suspicioun;
 For he was haldyn of brokill complexioun.
 Rycht stark he was, and had bot litill gayne.
- Fol. 23 a Thus Wallace wist: had he beyne left allayne,
 And he war fals, to enemyss he wald ga;
- 120 Gyff he war trew, the Sothroun wald him sla.
 Mycht he do ocht bot tyne him as it was?
 Fra this questioun now schortlye will I pass.
 Deyme as yhe lest, ye that best can and may;
 I bott raherss as my autour will say.
- 125 Sternys, be than, began for till apper,
 The Inglissmen was cummand wondyr ner;

- Fyve hundreth haill was in thair chewalry:
 To the next strenth than Wallace couth him hy.
 Stewyn off Irland, wnwitting of Wallas,
 130 And gud Kerlé, baid still ner hand that place,
 At the mur syde, in till a scrogghy slaid,
 Be est Dipplyne quhar thai this tary maid.
 Fawdoun was left besid thaim on the land;
 The power come, and sodeynly him fand:
 135 For thair sloith hund the graith gait till him yeid,
 Off othir trade scho tuk as than no heid.
 The sloith stoppyt, at Fawdoune still scho stude;
 Nor forthir scho wald, fra tyme scho fand the blud.
 Inglissmen dempt, for ellis thai couth nocht tell,
 140 Bot at the Scottis had fochtyn amang thaim sell.
 Rycht wa thai war that losyt was thair sent.
 Wallace twa men amang the ost in went;
 Dissemblit weylle, that no man suld thaim ken,
 Rycht in affer, as thai war Inglissmen.
 145 Kerlé beheld on to the bauld Heroun,
 Vpon Fawdoun as he was lukand doune,
 A suttell straik wpwart him tuk that tide,
 Wndir the chokkeis the grounden suerd gart glid,
 By the gude mayle bathe halss and his crag bayne
 150 In sondyr straik; thus endyt that cheftayne.
 To grounde he fell, feile folk about him thrang,
 Tresoune! thai criyt, traytouris was thaim amang.
 Kerlye with that fled out sone at a side;
 His falow Stewyn than thocht no tyme to bide.
 155 The fray was gret, and fast away thai yeid,
 Lawch towart Ern; thus chapyt thai of dreid.
 Butler for woo off wepyng mycht nocht stynt.
 Thus raklesly this gud knyght [haiff] thai tynt.
 Thai demyt all that it was Wallace men,
 160 Or ellis him self, thocht thai couth nocht him ken.

- " He is rycht ner, we sall him haif but fail;
 " This febill woode may him litill awaill."
 Fourtie thar past agayne to Sanct Jhonstoun,
 With this dede corss, to berysing maid it boune.
 165 Partyt thar men, syne diuerss wayis raid;
 A gret power at Dipplyn still thar baid.
 Fol. 23 b Till Dawryoch the Butler past but let;
 At syndry furdis the gait thai wmbeset;
 To kepe the wode quhill it was day [thai] thoct.
 170 As Wallace thus in the thik forrest socht,
 For his twa men in mynd he had gret payne;
 He wist nocht weill giff thai war tayne or slayne,
 Or chapyt haile be ony jeperté.
 Threttene war left with him, no ma had he.
 175 In the Gask hall thair luyng haif thai tayne;
 Fyr gat thai sone, bot meyt than had thai nane.
 Twa scheipe thai tuk besid thaim of a fauld,
 Ordanyt to soupe in to that ssembly hauld;
 Graithit in haist sum fude for thaim to dycht:
 180 So hard thai blaw rude hornyss wpon hycht.
 Twa sende he furth to luk quhat it mycht be;
 Thai baid rycht lang, and no tithingis herd he,
 Bot boustouss noyis so brymly blew and fast:
 So othir twa in to the woode furth past.
 185 Nane come agayne, bot boustously can blaw.
 In to gret ire he send thaim furth on raw.
 Quhen he allayne Wallace was lewynt thar,
 The awfull blast aboundyt mekill mayr.
 Than trowit he weill thai had his luyng seyne;
 190 His suerd he drew of nobill mettall keyne,
 Syn furth he went quhar at he hard the horne.
 With out the dur Fawdoun was him beforne,
 As till his sycht, his awne hed in his hand;
 A croys he maid, quhen he saw him so stand

- 195 At Wallace in the hed he swaket thar;
 And he in haist sone hynt [it] by the hair,
 Syne out agayne at him he couth it cast;
 In till his hart he was gretlye agast.
 Rycht weill he trowit that was no spreit of man;
- 200 It was sum dewill, at sic malice began.
 He wyst no waill thar langar for to bide,
 Vp through the hall thus wicht Wallace can glid,
 Till a closs stair; the burdis raiff in twyne,
 Fyftene fute large he lap out of that in.
- 205 Wp the wattir sodeynlye he couth fair;
 Agayne he blent quhat perance he sawe thair.
 Him thocht he saw Faudoun that hugly syr;
 That haill hall he had set in a fyr;
 A gret raftre he had in till his hand.
- 210 Wallace as than no langar walde he stand,
 Off his gud men full gret meruail had he,
 How thai war tynt throuch his feyle fantasé.

 235 Bot gret curage in his mynd euir draiff,

 'A trew man, Schyr, thocht my wiagis be layt;
 245 'Erandis I pass fra Doun to my lord,
 'Schir Jhon Sewart; the rycht for [till] record,
 'In Doune is now, new cummyn fra the king.'
 Than Butler said; "This is a selcouth thing.
 "Thou leid all out, thow has beyne with Wallace;
 250 "I sall the knaw, or thou cum of this place."
 Till him he stert the courser wondyr wicht,

 Ane Inglissman saw thair chiftayne wes slayn;
 260 A sper in reyst he kest with all his mayne,

 Ane othir sone doune fra his horss he bar,
 270 Stampyt to grounde, and drownyt with outyn mar.
 The thrid he hyt in his harness of steyll,

 He saw na waill no langar thar to byd.
 275 His burnyst brand braithly in hand he bar.
 Quham he hytt rycht, thai folowit him no mar.
 To stuff the chass feyll frekis folowit fast ;

 Or he was horst, rydaris about him kest ;

 Sad men in deid wpon him can renew ;
 290 With retornyng that nycht twenty he slew.
 The forseast ay rudely rabutyt he,
 Kepynt hys horss, and rycht wysely can fle ;
 Quhill that he cum the myrkest mur amang.

 295 Wallace on fute tuk him with gud entent ;

 And left him thus besyde the standand stanyss ;
 For Sotheron men no gud suld off him wyn.

345 Refreschit he wes with meyte, drynk, and with heit;

Als he was glaid for reskew off thaim twa;

Off thair feris leyffand was left no ma.

Thai tald him that Schyr Garrat wes dede;

410 How thai had weyll eschapyt of that stede.

pl. 26 a Till Quenysferry, or that the day was brycht;

How a trew Scot, for kyndnes off Wallace,

Brocht thaim sone oure, syne kend thaim to that place:

415 Als Kerlé wüst, gyff Wallace leyffand war,

Nere Dwnypace that he suld fynd him thar.

The persone gart gud purwiance for thaim dycht.

In the Torwode thai lugyt all that nycht;

Quhill the woman, that Wallace north had send,

420 Retornd agayne, and tald him till ane end,

Quhat Inglissmen in the way scho fand dede:

Feyll was fallyn fey in mony syndry stede.

The horss scho saw that Wallace had berefft,

And the Gask hall standand as it was left,

425 With out harme, nocht sterd off it a stane;

 Schir Jhon ansuerd; 'I will your consaill do;
 Fol. 26 b 460 'Quhen yhe se tyme, send priwalé me to:
 'Than I sall cum with my powér in haist.'
 He him betuk on to the haly Gaist,

- Out off Dundaff he and thir four couth found;
 465 In Bothwell mur that nycht remaynyt he,
 With ane Craufurd that lugyt him preualé.
 Wpon the morn to the Gilbank he went;
 Rasauit was with mony glaid entent:
 For his deyr eyme, yong Auchinlek, duelt thar,
 470 Brothyr he was to the schirreff off Ayr.
 Quhen auld Schyr Ranald till his dede wes dycht,
 Than Auchinlek weddyt that lady brycht,
 And childyr gat, as storyess will record,
 Off Lesmahago, for he held off that lord.
 475 Bot he wes slayne, gret peté wes the mar,
 With Perseys men, in [to] the toun of Ayr.
 His sone duelt still, than nynetene yeris off age,
 And brokit haille his fadris heretage.

 480 To lord Persie, as hys brodyr had maid.

 A messynger sone throw the contré yeid,

 The captayn dede off it and Saynt Jhonstoun;
 The Loran als, at Schortwod schawis scheyn;
 In to that land, gret sorow has beyne seyn
 Throuch wicht Wallace, that all this deid has done;
 490 "The toun he spyit, and that forthocht we sone.
 "Butler is slayne, with douchty men and deyr."
 In aspre spech the Persye than can speyr;
 "Quhat worth of him? I pray you graithlye tell."
 'My lord,' he said, 'rycht thus the case befell.
 500 'We knaw for treuth he was left him allayne;
 'And, as he fled, he slew full mony ayne.

- ' The horsse we fand, that him that gait couth ber;
 ' Bot of hym self no othyr word we her.
 ' At Styrl yng bryg we wait he passit nocht;
 505 ' To dede in Forth he may for vs be brocht.'
 Lorde Persye said; " Now suthlye that war syne;
 " So gud of hand is nayne this warld within.
 " Had he tayne pess, and beyne our kingis man,
 " The haill empyr he mycht haiff cōquest than.
 510 " Gret harme it is, our knyghtis that ar ded;
 " We mon ger se for othir in thair sted.
 " I trow nocht yeit at Wallace losyt be:
 Fol. 27 a " Our clerkys sayis, he sall ger mony de."
 The messynger said; ' All that suth has beyne;
 515 ' Mony hundreth, that cruell war and keyne,
 ' Sene he begane, ar lost with out ramede.'
 The Persye said; " Forsuth he is nocht ded;
 " The crukis off Forth he knawis wondyr weylle;
 " He is on lyff, that sall our natioune feill.
 520 " Quhen he is strest, than can he swym at will;
 " Gret strenth he has, bathe wyt and grace thartill."
 A messynger the lord charyt to wend;
 And this commaunde in wryt with him he send.

 525 Off Sanct Jhonstoun, and all thai landis braid.
 In till Kynclewyn thar duelt nane agayne;
 Thar wes left nocht bot brokyn wallis in playne.
 Leiff I thaim thus reulland the landis thar;
 And spek I will off Wallace glaid weillfar.
 530 He send Kerlé to Schyr Ranald the knyght,
 Till Boyd and Blayr that worthi war and wicht,
 And Adam als, his cusyng, gud Wallace;
 To thaim declarde of all this paynfull cass.
 Off his eschape out off that cumpany,
 535 Rycht wondyr glaid was this gud chewalry:

Fra tyme thai wyst that Wallace leiffand was,
 Gude expensis till him thai maid to pass.
 Maister Jhone Blayr was offt in that message,
 A worthy clerk, bath wyss and rycht sawage.

- 540 Lewyt he was befor in Paryss toune.
 Amang maistris in science and renoune.
 Wallace and he at hayme in scule had beyne;
 Sone eftirwart, as verité is seyne,
 He was the man that pryncipall wndirtuk,
 545 That fyrst compild in dyt the Latyne buk
 Off Wallace lyff, rycht famouss of renoune;
 And Thomas Gray persone off Libertoune.
 With him thai war, and put in story all,
 Offt ane or bath, mekill of his trauaill;
 550 And tharfor her I mak off thaim mencioune.
 Master Jhone Blayr to Wallace maid him boune;
 To se his heyle his comfort was the mor,
 As thai full oft togyddyr war befor.
 Syluer and gold thai gaiff him for to spend;
 555 Sa dyde he thaim frely, quhen God it send.
 Of gud weylfayr as than he wantyt nane.
 Inglissmen wyst he was left him allane.
 Quhar he suld be was nayne off thaim couth say,
 Drownyt or slayne, or eschapyt away:
 560 Tharfor off him thai tuk bot litill heid;
 Thai knew him nocht, the less he was in dreid.
 pl. 27 b All trew Scottis gret fauour till him gaiff,
 Quhat gude thai had he mysterit nocht to craiff.

The pess lesty, that Schyr Ranald had tayne;
 565 Thai four monethis it suld nocht be out gane.
 This Chrystismess Wallace ramaynyt thar,
 In Laynrik oft till sport he maid repair.
 Quhan that he went fra Gilbank to the toune,

- And he fand men that was off that falss nacioune,
 570 To Scotland thai dyde neuir grewance mar ;
 Sum stekyt thai, sum throttis in sondyr schar.
 Feill war sone dede, bot nane wyst quha it was ;
 Quham he handlyt he leyt no forthir pass.
 Thar Hesylyrg duelt, that curssyt knycht to waill :
 575 Schyrreff he was off all the landis haill,
 Felloune, owtrage, dispitfull in his deid ;
 Mony off him tharfor had mekill dreid.
 Merwaill he thocht quha durst his peple sla,
 With out the toune he gert gret nowmir ga.
 580 Quhen Wallace saw that thai war ma than he,
 Than did he nocht but salust curtaslé.
 All his four men bar thaim quietlik,
 Na Sotheron couth deme thaim myss, pur no rik.
 In Lanryk duelt a gentill woman thar,
 585 A madyn myld, as my buk will declar,
 Off auchteyn yeris ald or litill mor off age ;
 Alss born scho was till part off heretage.
 Hyr fadyr was off worschipe and renoune,
 And Hew Braidfute he hecht of Lammyngtouné,
 590 As feyllé othyr was in the contré calld ;
 Befor tyme thai gentill men war off ald.
 Bot this gud man, and als his wiff wes ded.
 The madyn than wyst off no othyr rede,
 Bot still scho duelt on trewbute in the toune,
 595 And purchest had king Eduuardis protectione ;
 Serwandys with hyr, off freyndis at hyr will.
 Thus leyffyt scho without desyr off ill ;
 A quiet houss, as scho mycht hald in wer,
 For Hesylyrg had done hyr mekill der ;
 600 Slayne hyr brodyr, quhilk eldast wes and ayr.
 All sufferyt scho, and rycht lawly hyr bar ;
 Amyabill, so benyng, war, and wyss,

Curtass and swete, fulfillt of gentrys,
Weyll rewlyt off tong, rycht haill of contenance,

605 Off wertuous scho was worthi till awance ;
Hummylly hyr led, and purchest a gud name,
Off ilkyn wicht scho kepyt her fra blame.

ol. 28 a Trew rychtwyss folk a gret fauour hir lent.
Apon a day, to the kyrk as scho went,

610 Wallace hyr saw, as he his eyne can cast.
The prent off luff him punyeit at the last,
So asprely, throuch bewté off that brycht,
With gret wness in presence bid he mycht.
He knew full weyll hyr kynrent and hyr blud,

615 And how scho was in honest oyss and gud.
Quhill wald he think to luff hyr our the laiff,
And othir quhill he thocht on his dissaiff,
How that hys men was brocht to confusioun,
Throw his last luff he had in Saynct Jhonstoun.

620 Than wald he think to leiff and lat our slyd :
Bot that thocht lang in hys mynd mycht nocht byd.
He tauld Kerlé off his new lusty baille,
Syne askit hym off his trew best consaill.

“Maister,” he said, “as fer as I haiff feyll,
625 “Off lyklynes it may be wondyr weill.
“Sen ye sa luff, tak hir in mariage ;
“Gudlye scho is, and als has heretage.
“Supposs at yhe in luffyng feill amyss,
“Gret God forbede it suld be so with this.”

630 ‘To mary thus I can nocht yeit attend :
‘I wald of wer fyrst se a finaill end.
‘I will no mor allayne to my luff gang ;
‘Tak tent to me, or dreid we suffer wrang.
‘To proffer [luff] thus sone I wald nocht preffe ;

635 ‘Mycht I leyff off, in wer I lik to leyff.
‘Quhat is this luff? no thing bot folychnes ;

- ' It may reiff men bathe witt and stedfastnes.'
 Than said he thus; ' This will nocht graithly be,
 ' Amors and wer at anys to ryng in me.
 640 ' Rycht suth it is, stude I in blis off luffe,
 ' Quhar dedis war I suld the bettir pruff.
 ' Bot weyle I wait, quhar gret ernyst is in thocht,
 ' It lattis wer in the wysest wys be wrocht;
 ' Less gyf it be, bot only till a deid:
 645 ' Than he that thinkis on his luff to speid,
 ' He may do weill, haiff he fortoun and grace.
 ' Bot this standis all in ane othir cass;
 ' A gret kynryk with feill fayis our set,
 ' Rycht hard it is amendis for to get 650 ' At anys of thaim, and wyrk the obserwance
 ' Quhilk langis luff, and all his frewill chance.
 ' Sampill I haif; this me forthinkis sar:
 ' I trow to God it sall be so no mar.
 ' The trewth I knaw off this, and hyr lynage;
 Fol. 28 b 655 ' I knew nocht hyr, tharfor I lost a gage.'

To Kerlé he thus argownd in this kynd:
 Bot gret desyr remaynyt in till his mynd,
 For to behald that frely off fassoun.
 A quhill he left, and come nocht in the toun;
 660 On othir thing he maid his witt to walk,
 Prefand giff he mycht off that languor slalk.
 Quhen Kerlé saw he sufferit payne for thi,
 " Der schyr," he said, " ye leiff in slogardy;
 " Go se youre luff, than sall yhe get comfort."
 665 At his consaill he walkit for to sport,
 On to the kyrke quhar scho maid residence.
 Scho knew him weille; bot, as of eloquence,
 Scho durst nocht weill in presens till him kyth,
 Full sor scho dred or Sotheron wald him myth:

- 670 For Hesilryg had a mater new begone,
 And hyr desirde in mariage till his sone.
 With hir madyn thus Wallace scho besocht
 To dyne with hyr, and prewaly hym brocht
 Throuch a garden scho had gart wyrk off new :
- 675 So Ingliss men nocht off thair metyng knew.
 Than kissit he this gudlé with plesance ;
 Syne hyr besocht rycht hartly of quentance.
 Scho ansuerd hym, with humyll wordis wise ;
 “ War my quentance rycht worthi for till pryse,
- 680 “ Yhe sall it haiff, als God me saiff in saille.
 “ Bot Inglissmen gerris our power faill,
 “ Throuch violence of thaim and thair barnage,
 “ At has weill ner destroyit our lynage.”
 Quhen Wallace hard hyr plenyé petously,
- 685 Agrewit he was in hart rycht gretumly.
 Bathe ire and luff him set in till a rage ;
 Bot nocht forthi he soberyt his curage.
 Off his mater he tald, as I said ayr,
 To that gudlye, how luff him strenyeit sar.
- 690 Scho ansuerd him rycht resonably agayne,
 And said ; “ I sall to your seruice be bayne,
 “ With all plesance, in honest causis hail ;
 “ And I trast yhe wald nocht set till assaill,
 “ For yhoure worschipe, to do me dyshonour,
- 695 “ And I a maid ; and standis in mony stour,
 “ Fra Inglissmen to saiff my womanheid ;
 “ And cost has maid to kepe me fra thar dreid.
 “ With my gud will I wyll no lemman be
 “ To no man born, tharfor me think suld yhe
- 700 “ Desyr me nocht bot intill gudlynes.
 “ Perchance ye think I war to law perchass
 “ For tyll attend to be your rychtwyss wyff.
 ol. 29 a “ In your seruice I wald oyss all my lyff.

- “ Her I beseik, for your worschipe in armys,
 705 “ Yhe charge me nocht with no wngudly harmys;
 “ Bot me defend, for worschipe off your blude.”
 Quhen Wallace weyll hyr trew tayll wnderstud,
 As in a part hym thocht it was resoun,
 Off hyr desir tharfor till conclusioun,

- 745 Wallace on him he set ane awfull dynt,
 Through basnet stuff, that na steill mycht it stynt ;
 Derffly to dede he left him in that place.
 The fals knycht thus eschapit through this cace.
 And Robert Boid has with a captayne mett
- 750 Off Berweik, than a sad straik on him set

But the consent off thaim that duelt within.

On the bak sid a roch and wattir was;

Wallace him knew a lord and full worthi;

At his consaill he wrocht full stedfastly.

475 Starkar he was, gyff thai had battaill seyn;

For he befor had in gud jornays beyn.

A man off strenth, that has gud wit with all,

62 b A haill regioun may comfort at his call:

As manly Ectour wrocht in till his wer;

480 Agayn a hundreth cowntyty was his sper.

Bot that was nocht through his strenth anerly;

Thir ensampyllis war noble for to ken.

 With that he turnd, and till his ost can wend.
 510 This ilk commaund to Berweik sone he send,
 With gud Ramsay, that was a worthi knycht.
 The ost but mar full awfully he dycht ;
 Began at Tweid, and spard nocht at thai fand ;
 Bot brynt befor throuch all Northummyrland.
 515 All Duram toun thai brynt wp in a gleid.
 Abbays thai spard, and kyrkis quhar thai yeid.
 To York thai went but baid, or thai wald blyn ;
 To byrn and sla off thaim he had na syne.
 Na syn thai thocht, the samyn thai leit ws feill ;
 520 Bot Wilyam Wallace quyt our quarell weill.
 Fortrace thai wan, and small castellis kest down ;
 With aspre wapynnys payit thair ransoune.
 Off presonaris thai likit nocht to kep ;
 Quhom thai our tuk, thai maid thair freyndis to wepe.
 525 Thai sawft na Sotheroun for thair gret riches ;
 Off sic koffre he callit bot wretchitnes.
 Fol. 63 a On to the yettis and faboris off the toun
 Braithly thai brynt, and brak thair byggyngis doun ;
 At the wallys assayed fyfetene dayis ;
 530 Till king Eduuard send to thaim, in this wayis,
 A knycht, a clerk, and a squier of pes ;
 And prayit him fayr off byrnyng [for] to cess ;
 And hecht battaill, or fourty dayis war past,
 Souerance so lang, gyff him likit, till ass.

- 35 And als he sperd, quhy Wallace tuk on hand
 The felloun stryff, in defens off Scotland.
 And said, he merweld on his wyt for thy,
 Agayn Englande was off so gret party;
 "Sen ye haiff maid mekill off Scotland fre.
- 340 "It war gret tym for to lat malice be."
 Wallace has herd the message say thair will;
 With manly wytt rycht thus he said thaim till:
 'Yhe may knaw weill that rycht ynewch we haiff;
 'Off his souerance I kep nocht for to craiff.
- 545 'Be caus I am a natyff Scottis man,
 'It is my dett to do all that I can
 'To fend our kynrik out off dangeryng.
 'Till his desyr we will grant to sum thing;
 'Our ost sall cess, for chans that may betid,
- 550 'Thir fourty dayis, bargane for till bid.
 'We sall do nocht, less than it mowe in yow;
 'In his respyt my selff couth neur trow.'
 King Eduuardis wrytt wndir his seill thai gaiff,
 Be fourty dayis that thai suld battaill haiff.
- 555 Wallace thaim gaiff his credence off this thing.
 Thair leyff thai tuk, syne passit to the king,
 And tauld him hail how Wallace leit thaim feill,
 "Off your souerance he rekis nocht adeill;
 "Sic rewlyt men, sa awfull off affer,
- 560 "Ar nocht crystynyt, than he ledis in wer."
 The king ansuerd, and said; 'It suld be kend,
 'It cummys off witt enemyss to commend.
 'Thai ar to dreid rycht gretly in certane;
 'Sadly thai think off harmys thai haiff tane.'
- 565 Leyff I thaim thus at consell with thair king,
 And off the Scottis agayne to spek sum thing.

Wallace tranountyt on the secund day;

- Fra York thai passyt rycht in a gud aray.
 Northwest thai past in battaill buskyt boun,
 570 Thar lugeyng tuk besyd Northallyrtoun,
 And cryit his pess, thar market for till stand,
 Thai fourty dayis, for pepill off England,
 Quha that likyt ony wyttaill till sell.
 Off all thair fer was mekill for to tell.
 Fol. 63 b 575 Schyr Rawff Rymunt, captane off Maltoun was,
 With gret power ordand he nycht to pass
 On Wallace ost, to mak sum jeperté.
 Feyll Scottis men, that duelt in that cuntré,
 Wyst off this thing, and gaderyt to Wallace;
 580 Thai maid him wyss off all that suttell cace.
 Gud Lundy than till hym he callit thar,
 And Hew the Hay, off Louchowort was ayr.
 With thre thousand that worthely had wrocht,
 Syne prewaly out fra the ost he socht.
 585 The men he tuk, that come till hym off new,
 Gydys to be, for thai the contré knew.
 The ost he maid in gud quyet to be;
 A space fra thaim he buschyt prewalé.
 Schyr Rawff Rymunt with sewyn thousand com in,
 590 On Wallace ost a jeperté to begyn.
 The buschement brak, or thai the ost come ner;
 On Sotheroun men the worthi Scottis thai ster.
 Thre thousand haill was braithly brocht to ground;
 Jornay thai socht, and sekyrly has found.
 595 Schyr Rawff Rymunt was stekit on a sper;
 Thre thousand slayn, that worthi war in wer.
 The Sotheroun wyst quhen thair chyftayn wes dede;
 To Maltoun fast thai fled, and left that sted.
 Wallace folowed with his gud chewalry;
 600 Amang Sotheroun thai entrit sodeynly,
 Ingliss and Scottis in to the toun at anys.

- Sotheroun men schot, and braithly kest doun stanyis,
 Off thar awn rycht feyll thair haiff thai slayn.
 The Scottis about, that war off mekill mayn,
 05 On greicis ran, and cessyt all the toun.
 Derffly to dede the Sotheroun was dongyn doun.
 Gud Wallace thair has found full gud ryches,
 Jowellis and gold, bathe wapynnys and harnes;
 Spoulyeid the toun off wyn, and off wittail;
 10 All off send with caryagis off gret wail.
 Thre dayis still with in the toun thai baid;
 Syn brak doun werk that worthely was maid.
 Wyffis and childre thai put owt off the toun;
 Na man he sawft that was off that nacioun.
 15 Quhen Scottis had tane to turss at thair desyr,
 Wallis thai brak, syn set the layff in fyr,
 The temir werk thai brynt wp all in playn,
 On the ferd day till his ost raid agayn,
 Gert cast a dyk that mycht sum strynthyng be,
 20 To kepe the ost fra sodeyn jeperté.
 Than Inglissmen was rycht gretly agast,
 Fra north and south in to thair king thai past,
 0164 a At Pomfray lay, and held a parlement.
 To gyff battaill the lordis couth nocht consent,
 25 Less Wallace war off Scotland crownyt king.
 Thar consaill fand it war a peralous thing:
 For thocht thai wan, thai wan bot as thai war;
 And gyff thai tynt, thai lossyt England for euirmar,
 A payn war put in to the Scottis hand.
 30 And this decret thar wit amang thaim fand;
 Gyff Wallace wald apon him tak the croun,
 To gyff battaill thai suld be redy boun.
 The sammyn message till him thai send agayn;
 And thar entent thai tald him in to playn.
 35 Wallace thaim chargyt his presens till absent;

- His consaill callyt, and schawit thaim his entent.
 He and his men desyrit battaill till haiff,
 Be ony wayis, off Ingland our the laiff.
 He said; "Fyrst, it war a our hie thing,
 640 "Agayne the faith to reyff my rychtwis king.
 "I am his man, born natiff of Scotland;
 "To wer the croun I will nocht tak on hand.
 "To fend the rewm it is my dett be skill;
 "Lat God abowe reward me as he will."
 645 Sum bad Wallace apon him tak the croun.
 Wyss men said; 'Nay, it war bot derysioun,
 'To croun him king bot woice off the parlyment.'
 For thai wyst nocht gyff Scotland wald consent.
 Othir sum said, it was the wrangwis place.
 650 Thus demyt thai on mony diuerss cace.
 This knycht Cambell, off witt a worthi man,
 As I said ayr, was present with thaim than,
 Herd and ansuerd, quhen mony said thair will;
 "This war the best, wald Wallace grant thar till, 655 "To croun him king solemply for a day,
 "To get ane end off all our lang delay."
 The gud erll Malcome said, that Wallace mycht,
 As for a day, in fens off Scotlandis rycht,
 Thocht he refusyt it lestandly to ber,
 660 Resawe the croun, as in a fer off wer.
 The pepill all till him gaiff thar consent:
 Malcome off auld was lord off the parlyment.
 Yeit Wallace tholyt, and leit thaim say thair will.
 Quhen thai had demyt be mony diuerss skill,
 665 In his awne mynd he abhorryt with this thing.
 The commounis cryit, 'Mak Wallace crownyt king.'
 Than smylyt he, and said; "It suld nocht be:
 "At termys schort, ye get no mar for me.
 "Wндыr colour we mon our ansuer mak;

- 670 " Bot sic a thing I will nocht on me tak.
 64 b " I suffer yow to say that it is sa.
 " It war a scorn the croun on me to ta."
 Thai wald nocht lat the message off Ingland
 Cum thaim amang, or thai suld wndirstand.
- 675 Twa knychtis passit to the message agayn,
 Maid thaim to trow Wallace was crownyt in playn;
 Gart thaim traist weill that this was suthfast thing.
 Delyuyrit thus, thai passit to thair king;
 To Pomfrait went, and tald that thai had seyn
- 680 Wallace crownyt, quharoff the lordis was teyn,
 In barrate wox, in parlement quhar thai stud.
 Than said thai all; " Thir tithingis ar nocht gud.
 " He did so weyll in to thir tymys befor,
 " And now thair king, he will do mekill mor.
- 685 " A fortonyt man, no thing gois him agayn.
 " To gyff battaill we sall it rew apayn."
 And othir said; ' And battaill will he haiff,
 ' Or stroy our land; na tresour may ws saiff.
 ' In his conquest, sen fyrst he coud begyn,
- 690 ' He sellis nocht, bot takis at he may wyn.
 ' For Inglissmen he settis no doym bot ded;
 ' Pryce off pennys may mak ws no ramed.'
 And Wodstok said; " Yhe wyrk nocht as the wyss,
 " Gyff that ye tak the awnter, off supprice:
- 695 " For thocht we wyn that ar in till Ingland,
 " The laiff ar stark agaynys ws for to stand.
 " Be Wallace saiff, othir thai cownt bot small.
 " For thi me think this war the best off all,
 " To kepe our strynth off castell and off wall toun,
- 700 " Swa sall we fend the fek off this regioun.
 " Thocht north be brynt, bettir off sufferans be,
 " Than set all Ingland on a jeperté."
 Thai grantyt all, as Wodstok can thaim say;

- And thus thai put the battaill on delay;
 705 And kest thaim haill for othir gouernance,
 Agayn Wallace to wyrk sum ordinance.
 Thus Wallace has in playn discumfyt haill,
 Agayn king Eduuard, all his strang battaill;
 For throucht falsheid, and thar subtilité,
 710 Thai thocht he suld, for gret necessité,
 And faute off fude, to steyll out off the land.
 And this decret thair wytt amang thaim fand;
 Thai gert the king cry all thar merket down,
 Fra Trent to Tweid off throcht fayr and fre toun,
 715 That in thai boundis na man suld wittaill leid,
 Sic stuff, nor wyn, on na less payn bot deid.
 This ilk decret thai gaiff in thar parlement.
 Off Scottis forsuth to spek is myne entent.
 Wallace lay still, quhill fourty dayis was gayn,
 Fol. 65 a 720 And fyve atour; bot perance saw he nayn
 Battaill till haiff, as thair promyss was maid.
 He gert display agayne his baner braid;
 Rapreiffyt Eduuard rycht gretlye off this thing;
 Bawchillyt his seyll, blew out on that fals king,
 725 As a tyrand; turnd bak, and tuk his gait.
 Than Wallace maid full mony byggyng hayt.
 Thai rassyt fyr, brynt wp Northallyrtoun,
 Agayn throucht Yorkschyr bauldly maid thaim boun;
 Destroyed the land, als fer as euir thai rid;
 730 Sewyn myle about thai brynt on athir sid.
 Palyce thai spylt, gret towris can confound;
 Wrocht the Sotheroun mony werkand wound.
 Wedowis wepyt with sorow in thar sang;
 Madennys murnyt with gret menyng amang.
 735 Thai sparyt nocht bot wemen and the kyrk.
 Thir worthy Scottis off laubour wald nocht yrk.
 Abbayis gaiff thaim rycht largely to thair fud;

Till all kyrk man thai did no thing bot gud.
 The temporall land thai spoulyeit at thair will,
 740 Gud gardens gay, and orchartis gret thai spill.

To York thai went, thir wermen off renoun;
 A sege thai set rycht sadly to the toun.
 For gret defens thai garnest thaim within:
 A felloun salt with out thai can begyn;
 745 Gert woid the ost in four partis about,
 With wachys feyll, that no man suld wsche out.
 Abowne the toune, apon the southpart sid,
 Thar Wallace wald, and gud Lundy, abid.
 Erll Malcom syne at the west yett abaid;
 750 With him the Boid, that gud jornays had maid.
 The knycht Cambell, off Louchow [that] was lord,
 At the north yett, and Ramsay, maid thaim ford.
 Schyr Jhon the Graym, that worthy was in wer,
 Awchinlek, Crawford, with full manlik offer,
 755 At the est part bauldly thai bowne to bid.
 A thousand archaris apon the Scottis sid
 Disseueryt thaim amang the four party.
 Fyve thousand bowemen in the toun forthi,
 With in the wallis, arayit thaim full rycht,
 760 Twelf thousand and ma that sembylly was to sycht.
 Than said Wallace; "Thar yond apon a playn,
 "In feild to fecht me think we suld be bayn."
 Than sailyeit thai rycht fast on ilka sid.
 F. 65 b The worthy Scottis that bauldly durst abid,
 765 With sper and scheid, for gownnys had thai nayn,
 Within the dykys thai gert feill Sotheroun grayn.
 Arowys thai schot, als fers as ony fyr,
 Atour the wall, that flawmyt in gret ire,
 Throuch byrneis brycht, with hedys fyn off steyll.
 770 The Sotheroun blud thai leyt no frendschip feyll;

- Our schefferand harnes schot the blud so scheyn.
 The Inglissmen, that cruell was and keyn,
 Kepynt thar toun, and fendyt thar full fast.
 Fagaldys off fyr amang the ost thai cast;
- 775 Wp pyk and ter on feyll sowys thai lent;
 Mony was hurt or thai fra wallys went.
 Stanys and spryngaldis thai cast out so fast,
 And gaddys off irne, maid mony goym agast:
 Bot neurtheles, the Scottis that was with out,
- 780 The toun full oft thai set in to gret dout;
 Thar bulwerk brynt rycht brymly off the toun;
 Thar barmkyn wan, and gret gerrettis kest down.
 Thus sailyeit thai, on ilk sid, with gret mycht.
 The day was gayn, and cummyn was the nycht.
- 785 The wery ost than drew thaim fra the toun,
 Set owt wachis, for restyng maid thaim boun;
 Wysche woundis with wyn, off thaim that was wnsound;
 For nayne wes dede; in gret myrth thai abound.
 Feyll men was hurt, bot na murnyng thai maid;
- 790 Confermyt the sege, and stedfastly abaid.
 Quhen that the son on morow raiss wp rycht,
 Befor the chyftanys semblyt thai full rycht;
 And mendis thocht off the toun thai suld tak,
 For all the fens that the Sotheroun mycht mak.
- 795 Arayit agayn, as thai began afor,
 About the toun thai sailye wondyr sor,
 With felloun schot atour the wall so scheyn.
 Feill Inglissmen, that cruell was and keyn,
 With schot was slayn, for all thar targis strang;
- 800 Byrstyt helmys, mony to erd thai dang.
 Brycht byrnand fyr thai kest till euirilk yet;
 The entress thus in perall oft thai set.
 The defendouris was off so fell defens,
 Kepynt thar toun with strenth and excellens.

- 805 And thus the day thai dryff on to the nycht;
 To palyounnys bownyt mony wery wycht.
 All yrk off wer; the toun was strang to wyn,
 11. 66 a Off artailye, and nobill men with gyn.
 Quhen that thai trowyt the Scottis was all at rest,
 810 For jeperté the Inglissmen thaim kest.
 Schyr Jhon Nortoun was knawyn worthy and wycht,
 Schyr Wilyham off Leis, graithit thaim that nycht,
 With fyve thowsand welle garnest and sawage;
 Apon the Scottis thai thocht to mak scrymmage;
 815 And at [the] yet wschyt owt haistely
 On erll Malcom, and his gud chawalry.
 To chak the wache Wallace and ten had beyn
 Rydand about, and has thair cummyng seyn.
 He gert ane blaw, was in his cumpany;
 820 The redy men arayit thaim hastely.
 Feill off the Scottis ilk nycht in harnes baid,
 Be ordinance, for thai sic rewl had maid.
 With schort awyss to gyddyr ar thai went,
 Apon thair fais, quhar feill Sotheroun was schent.
 825 Wallace knew weill the erll to haisty was;
 For thi he sped him to the press to pass.
 A suerd off wer in till his hand he bar;
 The fyrst he hyt, the crag in sondyr schar.
 Ane othir awkwart apon the face tuk he;
 830 Wysar and frount bathe in the feild gert fle.
 The hardy erll befor his men furth past,
 In to the press, quhar feill war fechtand fast;
 A scherand suerd bar drawyn in his hand;
 The fyrst was fey that he befor him fand.
 835 Quhen Wallace and he was to gidder set,
 Thayr lestynt nayn agayn thaim that thai met,
 Bot othir dede, or ellis fled thaim fray.
 Be this the ost, all in [a] gud aray,

- With the gret scry assemblit thaim about;
 840 Than stud the Sotheroun in a felloun dout.
 Wallace knew weill the Inglissmen wald fle;
 For thi he preyst in the thikkest to be,
 Hewand full fast on quhat sege that he socht;
 Agaynys hys dynt fyn steyll awailyeit nocht.
 845 Wallace off hand, sen Arthour, had na mak;
 Quhom he hyt rycht was ay dede off a strak.
 That was weyll knawin in mony place; and thar
 Quhom Wallace hyt he deryt the Scottis no mar.
 Als all his men did cruelly and weyll,
 850 At com to strak; that mycht the Sotheroun feill.
 The Inglissmen fled, and left the feild playnly.
 The worthy Scottis wroucht so hardely,
 Schyr Jhon off Nourtown in that place was dede,
 Fol. 66 b And twelf hundreth, with outyn ony ramede.
 855 Thar mony was left in to the feild and slayn:
 The layff raturnyt in to the toun agayn,
 And rwyte full sar that euyr thai furth coud found;
 Among thaim was full mony werkand wound.
 The ost agayn ilkane to thar ward raid,
 860 Comaundyte wachis, and no mayr noyis maid,
 Bot restyt still quhill that the brycht day dew.
 Agayne began the toun to sailye new.
 All thus thai wrocht with full gud worthines,
 Assailyeit sayr with witt and hardines.
 865 The ostis wictaill worth scant, and failyeit fast.
 Thus lay thai thair, quhill diuerss dayis war past;
 The land waistyte, and meite was fer for to wyn:
 Bot that wyste nocht the stuff that was within;
 Thai dred full sar for thair awn warysoun.
 870 For souerance prayed the power off the toun,
 To spek with Wallace thai desyryte fast;
 And he aperyte, and speryte quhat thai ast.

The mayr ansuerd, said; "We wald gyff ransoun,
 "To pass your way, and der no mayr the toun.

875 "Gret schaym it war that we suld yoldyn be,
 "And townys haldyn off less power than we.
 "Yhe may nocht wyn ws suthlie, thocht ye bid;
 "We sall gyff gold, and yhe will fra ws rid.
 "We may gyff battaill, durst we for our king;

880 "Sen he has left, it war ane our hie thing
 "Till ws to do, with out his ordinance;
 "This toun off him we hald in gouernance."
 Wallace ansuerd; 'Off your gold rek we nocht;
 'It is for battaill that we hydder socht.

885 'We had leuir haiff battaill off England,
 'Than all the gold that gud king Arthour fand
 'On the mont Mychell, quhar he the gyand slew.
 'Gold may be gayn, bot worschip is ay new.
 'Your king promyst that we suld battaill haiff;

890 'His wrytt tharto undyr his seyll he gaiff.
 'Lettir nor band, ye se, may nocht awaill
 'Ws; for this tyme he hecht to gyff battaill.
 'Me think we suld on his men wengit be;
 'Apon our kyn mony gret wrang wrocht he:

895 'His dewyllyk deid he did in to Scotland.'
 The mayr said; "Schyr, rycht thus we wndyrstand:
 "We haiff no charge quhat our king gerris ws do;
 "Bot in this kynd we sall be bundyn yow to,
 "Sum part off gold to gyff you with gud will,

900 "And nocht efftyr to wait yow with na ill,

ol. 67 a "Be no kyn meyn, the power off this town;
 "Bot gyff our king mak him to battaill boun."

Into the ost was mony worthi man
 With Wallace, ma than I now rekyn can.

905 Bettir it was, for at his will thai wrocht,
 Thocht he wes best, no nothir lak we nocht;

- All seruit thank to Scotland euirmar,
 For manlyk wit, the quhilk thai schawit thar.
 The haill consaill thus demyt thaim amang,
 910 The toun to sege thaim thocht it was to lang;
 And nocht a payn to wyn it be no slycht.
 The consaill fand it was the best thai mycht
 Sum gold to tak, gyff that thai get no mar;
 Syne furth thar way in thar wiage thai far.
 915 Than Wallace said; " My selff will nocht consent;
 " Bot gyff this toun mak us this playne content;
 " Tak our baner, and set it on the wall,
 " (For thar power our rewme has ridyn all,)
 " Yoldyn to be, quhen we lik thaim to tak,
 920 " In till Ingland residence gyff we mak."
 This ansuer sone thai send in to the mair.
 Than thai consent, the ramayn that was thar,
 The baner tuk, and set it in the toun,
 To Scotland was hie honour and renoun.
 925 That baner thar was fra aucht houris to none;
 Thar finance maid, delyuerit gold full sone.
 Fyve thousand pund, all gud gold off Ingland,
 The ost rasawit, with wictaill haboundand.
 Baith breid and wyne rycht gladly furth thai gaiiff,
 930 And othir stuff at thai likit to haiff.
 Twenty dais owt the ost remaynit thar;
 Bot want off wictaill gert thaim fra it far.
 Yeit still off pees the ost lugyt all nycht,
 Quhill on the morn the sone was ryssyn on hycht.

 935 In Aperill amang the schawis scheyn,
 Quhen the paithment was cled in tendyr greyn,
 Plesand war it till ony creatur,
 In lusty lyff that tym for till endur.
 Thir gud wermen had fredome largely;

- 940 Bot fude was scant, thai mycht get nayn to by.
 Tursyt tentis, and in the contré raid;
 On Inglissmen full gret herschipe thai maid;
 Brynt and brak doun byggyngis, sparyt thai nocht;
 Rycht worthi wallis full law to ground thai brocht.
- 945 All Mydlame land thai brynt wp in a fyr,
 Brak parkis doun, distroyit all the schyr;
- F. 67 b Wyld der thai slew, for othir bestis was nayn;
 Thir wermen tuk off venysoune gud wayn.
 Towart the south thai turnyt at the last,
- 950 Maid byggyngis bar als fer as euir thai past.
 The commons all to London ar thai went,
 Befor the king, and tald him thar entent;
 And said, thai suld, bot he gert Wallace cess,
 Forsaik thair faith, and tak thaim till his pess.
- 955 Na herrald thar durst than to Wallace pass,
 Quharoff the king gretly agrewit was.
 Thus Eduuard left his pepill in to baill,
 Contrar Wallace he wald nocht gif battaill;
 Nor byd in feild for nocht that thai mycht say;
- 960 Gayff our the causs, to London past his way.
 At men off wit this questioun her I ass,
 Amang noblis gyff euyr ony thar was,
 So lang throw force in England lay on cass,
 Sen Brudus deit, but battaill, bot Wallace.
- 965 Gret Julius, the empyr had in hand,
 Twyss off force he was put off England.
 Wycht Arthour als, off wer quhen that he prewit,
 Twyss thai fawcht, supposs thai war myschewit.
 Awfull Eduuard durst nocht Wallace abid
- 970 In playn battaill, for all England so wid.
 In London he lay, and tuk him till his rest;
 And brak his vow. Quhilk hald ye for the best?
 Deyme as ye lest, gud men off discrecioun;

- Rycht clayr it is to ransek this questioun :
- 975 To my sentence breyffly will I pass.
 Quhen Wallace thus throw Yorkschyr jowrnat was,
 Wictaill as than was nayne left in the land,
 Bot in houssis quhar it mycht be warrand.
 The ost heroff abaissit was to bid ;
- 980 Fra fude scantyt na plesance was that tid.
 Sum bald ryd haym, sum bald ryd forthermar :
 Wallace callit Jop, and said till him rycht thar ;
 “ Thow knawis the land, quhar most aboundance is,
 “ Be thow our gyd, and than we sall nocht myss
- 985 “ Wictaill to fynd, that wait I wondir weill :
 “ Thow has, I traist, off Ingland mekill feill.
 “ The kyng and his to stark strenthis ar gayn ;
 “ Bot jeperté, now perell haiff we nayn.”
 Than Jop said ; ‘ [Schir,] be ye gydyt be me,
- 990 ‘ The bowndandest part off Ingland ye sall se.
 ‘ Off wyn and quheynt thar is in Rychmwnt schyr,
 ‘ And othir stuff off fud that ye desyr ;
- Fol. 68 a ‘ Quharoff I trow yhe sall be weyll content.’
 The ost was glaid and thiddywart thai went.
- 995 Mony trew Scot was semblyt in that land,
 To Wallace com weill ma than nyne thowsand ;
 Off presone part, sum had in lawbour wrocht,
 Fra athir part full fast till him thai socht.
 Wallace was blyth off our awn natiff kyn,
- 1000 That come till him off bail that thai war in :
 And all the ost off comforde was the blythar,
 Fra thair awn folk was multipliand the mar.

- In Richmwnt schyr thai fand a gret boundans,
 Breid, ayll and wyn, with othir purweans ;
- 1005 Brak parkis doun, slew bestis mony ane,
 Off wild and tayme, forsuth thai sparyt nane.

- Through owt the land thai past in gud aray ;
 A semberly place so fand thai in thar way,
 Quhilk Ramswaith hecht, as Jop him self thaim tald ;
 1010 Fehew was lord and captayne in that hald.
 A hundreth men was semblit in that place,
 To sawe thaim selff and thar gud fra Wallace ;
 A ryoll sted, fast by a forest sid,
 With turrettis fayr, and garrettis off gret prid,
 1015 Beildyt about, rycht lykly to be wicht,
 Awfull it was till ony mannis sicht ;
 Feill men abown on the wallis buskyt beyn,
 In gud armour, that burnyst was full scheyn.
 The ost past by, and bot wesyt that place ;
 1020 Yeit thai within on lowd defyit Wallace,
 And trumpattis blew with mony werlik soun.
 Than Wallace said ; “ Had we yon gallandis doun,
 “ On the playn ground, thai wald mor sobyr be.”
 Than Jop said ; ‘ Schyr, ye gart his brodyr de,
 1025 ‘ In harrold weid, ye wait, on Tynto hill.’
 Wallace ansuerd ; “ So wald I with gud will,
 “ Had I him selff ; bot we may nocht thaim der ;
 “ Gud men mon thoill off harlottis scorn in wer.”
 Schir Jhon the Graym wald at a bykkyr beyn :
 1030 Bot Wallace sone, that gret perell has seyn,
 Commaundit him to lat his seruice be.
 “ We haiff no men to waist in sic degré.
 “ Wald ye thaim harm, I knaw ane othir gait,
 “ How we throuch fyr within sall mak thaim hait.
 1035 “ Fyr has beyn ay full felloun in to wer,
 pl. 68 b “ On sic a place it ma do mekill der.
 “ Thar awld bulwerk I se off wydderyt ayk ;
 “ War it in fyr, thai mycht nocht stand a straik.
 “ Houssis and wod is her enewch plenté ;
 1040 “ Quha hewis best off this forest lat se.

- " Pow houssis doun, we sall nocht want adeill;
 " The auld temyr will ger the greyn byrn weill."
 At his commaund full besyly thai wrocht,
 Gret wod in haist about the houss thai brocht.
 1045 The bulwerk wan thir men off armys brycht,
 To the barmkyn had temyr apon hycht.
 Than bowmen schot to kep thaim fra the cast;
 The wall about had festnyt firis fast.
 Women and barnys on Wallace fast thai cry;
 1050 On kneis thai fell, and askit him mercy.
 At a quartar, quhar fyr had nocht ourtayn,
 Thai tuk thaim out fra that castell off stayn;
 Syn bet the fyr with brwndys brym and bauld;
 The rude low raiss full heych abown that hauld.
 1055 Barrellis off pyk for the defens was hungyn thar;
 All strak in fyr, the myscheiff was the mar.
 Quhen the brym fayr atour the place was past,
 Than thai with in mycht nothir schwt no cast.
 Als bestiall, as horsse and nowt, within,
 1060 Amang the fyr thai maid a hidwyss dyn.
 The armyt men in harnes was so hait,
 Sum doun to ground duschit but mar debait;
 Sum lap, sum fell in to the felloun fyr,
 Smoryt to dede, and brynt bathe bayn and lyr.
 1065 The fyr brak in at all opynnys about;
 Nayn baid on loft, so felloun was the dout.
 Fehew him self lap rudly fra the hycht;
 Throuch all the fyr can on the barmkyn lycht.
 With a gud suerd Wallace strak off his hed,
 1070 Jop hynt it wp, and turst [it] fra that sted.
 Fyve hundreth men, that war in to that place,
 Gat nayne away, bot dede with outyn grace.
 Wallace baid still with his power that nycht;
 Apon the morn the fyr had failyeit mycht.

- 075 Beffor the yett, quhar it was brynt on breid,
 A red thai maid, and to the castell yeid,
 Strak doun the yett, and tuk that thai mycht wyn,
 Jowellys and gold, gret riches was tharin;
 Spulyeit the place, and left nocht ellis thar,
- 080 Bot bestis, brynt bodyis, and wallis bar.
 Than tuk thai hyr, that wyff was to Fehew;
 Gaiff this commaund, as scho was women trew,
 To turss that hed to London to king Eduuard.
- F. 69 a Scho, it rasawyt with gret sorow on hart.
- 085 Wallace him selff thir chargis till hyr gaiff;
 "Say to your king, bot gyff I battaill haiff,
 "At London yettis we sall assailyie sayr;
 "In this moneth we think for to be thair.
 "Trastis, in treuth, will God, we sall nocht fail;
- 090 "Bot I rasyt throw chargis off our consaill.
 "The southmaist part off England we sall se;
 "Bot he sek pess, or ellis bargan with me.
 "Apon a tym he chargyt me on this wyss,
 "Rycht boustously to mak till him seruice:
- 095 "Sic sall he haiff, as he ws causs has maid."
 Than mowit thai with out langer abaid.
 Deliuerit scho was fra this gud chewalry,
 Towart London scho socht rycht ernystfully;
 On to the tour, but mar process, scho went,
- 100 Quhar Eduuard lay sayr murnand in his entent.
 His newois hede, quhen he saw it was brocht,
 Sa gret sorow sadly apon him socht,
 With gret wness apon his feit he stud,
 Wepand for wo for his der tendyr blud.
- 105 The consaill raiss, and prayit him for to cess;
 "We loss England, bot gyff ye purches pess."
 Than Wodstok said; 'This is my best consaill;
 'Tak pees in tyme as for our awn awaill,

- ' Or we tyme mar, yeit slaik off our curage ;
 1110 ' Ereft ye may get help to your barnage.'
 The king grantyt, and bad thaim message send ;
 Na man was thar that durst to Wallace wend.
 The queyn apperyt, and saw this gret distance ;
 Weill born scho was off the rycht blud off France ;
 1115 Scho trowit weill tharfor to speid the erar,
 Hyr selff purpost in that message to far.
 Alss scho forthocht that the king tuk on hand,
 Agayn the rycht, so oft to reyff Scotland ;
 And feill said, the wengeance hapnyt thar,
 1120 Off gret murthyr his men maid in till Ayr.
 Thus demyt thai the consaill thaim amang.
 To this effect the queyn bownyt to gang.
 Quhen scho has seyn ilk man forsak this thing,
 On kneis scho fell, and askyt at the king ;
 1125 " Souerane," scho said, " gyff it your willis be,
 " At I desyr yon chyftayn for to se.
 " For he is knawin bath hardy, wyss, and trew ;
 " Perchance he will erar on wemen rew,
 Fol. 69 b " Than on your men ; yhe haiff don him sic der,
 1130 " Quhen he thaim seis, it mowis him ay to wer.
 " To help this land I wald mak my trawail ;
 " It ma nocht scaith, supposs it do na wail."
 The lordis all off hir desir was fayn ;
 On to the king thai maid instans in playn,
 1135 That scho mycht pass. The king, with aukwart will,
 Halff in to yr, has [giffyn] consent thar till.
 Sum off thaim said, the queyn luffyt Wallace,
 For the gret woice off his hie nobilnes.
 A hardy man, that is lykly with all,
 1140 Gret fawour will off fortoun till him fall,
 Anent wemen is seyne in mony place.
 So hapnyt it in his tyme with Wallace.

- In his rysyng he was a luffar trew,
 And chesyt ane, bot Inglissmen hir slew,
 1145 Yeit I say nocht, the queyn wald on hir tak,
 All for his luff, sic trawaill for to mak.
 Now luff or leiff, or for help off the land,
 I mak raherss as-I in scriptour fand.
 Scho graithit hir apon a gudlye wiss,
 1150 With gold, and ger, and folk at hir dewiss;
 Ladyis with hir, nane othir wald thai send,
 And ald preystis, that weill the cuntré kend.
 Lat I the queyn to message redy dycht,
 And spek furth mar off Wallace trawaill rycht.
 1155 The worthy Scottis amang thar enémys raid;
 Full gret destructioun amang the Sotheron thai maid;
 Waistit about the land on athir sid:
 Na wer men than durst in thar way abid.
 Thai ransoun nane, bot to the dede thaim dycht;
 1160 In mony steid maid fyris braid and brycht.
 The ost was blith, and in a gud estate,
 Na power was at wald mak thaim debate;
 Gret ryches wan off gold and gud thaim till,
 Leyffying enewch to tak at thar awn will.
 1165 In awfull fer thai trawaill throuch the land,
 Maid byggynis bar that thai befor thaim fand;
 Gret barmkynnys brak off stedis stark and strang;
 Thir wicht wermen off trawaill thoct nocht lang.
 South in the land rycht ernystfully thai socht,
 1170 To Sanct Awbawnys; bot harm thar did thai nocht.
 The pryour send thaim wyn and wenesoun,
 Refreschyt the ost with gud in gret fusioun.
 The nycht apperyt quhen thai war at the place;
 Than herbreyt thaim fra thine a litill space;
 1175 Chesyt a sted quhar thai suld bid all nycht,
 Tentis on ground, and palyonis proudly pycht;

In till a wail, be a small rywer fayr,
 On athir sid quhar wyld der maid repayr;
 Set wachis owt, that wysly couth thaim kepe,
 Fol. 70 a 1180 To souppar went, and tymysly thai slepe.

Off meit and sleip thai cess with suffisiance.
 The nycht was myrk, our drayff the dyrkfull chance.
 The mery day sprang fra the oryent,
 With bemys brycht enlumynyt the occident.
 1185 Eftir Titan, Phebus wp rysyt fayr;
 Heich in the sper, the signes maid declayr.
 Zepherus began his morow courss,
 The swete wapour thus fra the ground resourss;
 The humyll breyth doun fra the hewyn awaill,
 1190 In euery meide, bathe fyrth, forrest, and dail;
 The cler rede amang the rochis rang,
 Throuch greyn branchis quhar byrdis blythly sang,
 With joyus voice in hewynly armony.
 Than Wallace thocht it was no tyme to ly;
 1195 He croyssit him, syne sodeynli wp raiss;
 To tak the ayr out off his palyon gais.
 Maister Jhon Blar was redy to rawess;
 In gud entent syne bownyt to the mess.
 Quhen it was done, Wallace can him aray,
 1200 In his armour, quhilk gudly was and gay.
 His schenand schoys, that burnyst was full beyn,
 His leg harnes he clappyt on so clene;
 Pullane greis he braissit on full fast;
 A closs byrny, with mony sekыр clasp;
 1205 Breyst plait, brasaris, that worthy was in wer;
 Besid him furth Jop couth his basnet ber;
 His glytterand glowis grawin on athir sid.
 He semyt weill in battaill till abid;
 His gud gyrdyll, and syne his burly brand;

- 1210 A staff off steyll he gryppyt in his hand.
 The ost him blyst, and prayit God, off his grace,
 Him to conwoy fra all mystymyt cace.
 Adam Wallace and Boid furth with him yeid,
 By a reuir, throu out a florst meid.
- 1215 And as thai walk atour the feyldis greyn,
 Out off the south thai saw quhar at the queyn,
 Towart the ost, come ridand sobyrlly;
 And fyfty ladyis was in hyr cumpany,
 Wallyt off wit, and demyt off renoun,
- 1220 Sum wedowis war, and sum off religioun;
 And sewyn preistis that entrit war in age.
 Wallace to sic did neur gret owtrage,
 Bot gyff till him thai maid a gret offens.
 Thus prochynt thai on towart thar presens.
- 1225 At the palyoun, quhar thai the lyoun saw;
 To ground thai lycht, and syne on kneis can faw;
 Prayand for pece thai cry with petous cher.
 Erl Malcom said; "Our chyftayn is nocht her."
- F. 70 b He bad hyr ryss, and said it was nocht rycht,
- 1230 A queyn on kneis till ony lavar wycht.
 Wp by the hand the gud erll has hyr tain;
 Atour the bent to Wallace ar thai gayn.
 Quhen scho him saw, scho wald haiff knelyt doune;
 In armys sone he caught this queyn with croun,
- 1235 And kyssyt hyr with outyn wordis mor;
 Sa dyd he neur to na Sotheron befor.
 "Madem," he said, "rycht welcum mot ye be;
 "How plessis yow our ostyng for to se?"
 'Rycht weyll,' scho said, 'off frendschip haiff we neid;
- 1240 'God grant ye wald off our nesis to speid.
 'Suffyr we mon, supposs it lik ws ill;
 'Bot trastis weyll, it is contrar our will.'
 "Ye sall remayn, with this lord I mon gang;

- "Fra your presens we sall nocht tary lang."
 1245 The erll and he on to the palzyon yeid,
 With gud awyss to deym mar off this deid.
 Till consell son Wallace gart call thaim to:
 "Lordys," he said, "ye wait quhat is ado.
 "Off thar cummyng my selff has na plesance;
 1250 "Herfor mon we wyrk with ordinance.
 "Wemen may be contempnyng in to wer,
 "Amang fullis that can thaim nocht forber.
 "I say nocht this be thir, nor yeit the queyn;
 "I trow it be bot gud that scho will meyn.
 1255 "Bot sampyll tak off lang tym passit by;
 "At Rownsywaill the tresoun was playnly
 "Be wemen maid, that Ganyelon with him brocht,
 "And Turké wyn; forber thaim couth thai nocht.
 "Lang wss in wer gert thaim desyr thair will,
 1260 "Quhilk brocht Charlis to fellon loss and ill.
 "The flour off France, withoutyn redempcioun,
 "Throuch that foull deid, was brocht to confusioun.
 "Commaund your men tharfor in priway wyss,
 "Apayn off lyff thai wyrk nocht on sic wyss;
 1265 "Nane spek with thaim, bot wysmen off gret wail,
 "At lordis ar, and sworn to this consaill."
 Thir chargis thai did als wysly as thai mocht;
 This ordynance throw all the ost was wrocht.

- He and the erll bathe to the queyn thai went,
 1270 Rasawyt hyr fayr, and brocht hyr till a tent;
 To dyner bownyt als gudly as thai can;
 And serwit was with mony likly man.
 Gud purwyance the queyn had with hyr wrocht;
 Fol. 71 a A say scho tuk off all thyng at thai brocht.
 1275 Wallace persawyt, and said; "We haiff no dreid:
 "I can nocht trow ladyis wald do sic deid,

- " To poyoun men, for all Ingland to wyn."
 The queyn ansuerd; ' Gyff poyoun be tharin,
 ' Off ony thyng quhilk is brocht her with me,
 280 ' Apon my self fyrst sorow sall ye se.'
 Sone aftir meit, a marchell gart [all] absent,
 Bot lordis, and thai at suld to consaill went.
 Ladyis apperyt in presens with the queyn.
 Wallace askyt, quhat hyr cummyng mycht meyn.
 285 ' For pess,' scho said, ' at we haiff to yow socht;
 ' This byrnand wer in baill has mony brocht.
 ' Ye grant ws pees, for him that deit on tre.'
 Wallace ansuerd; " Madeym, that may nocht be.
 " Ingland has doyne sa gret harmys till ws,
 290 " We may nocht pass, and lychtly leiff it thus."
 ' Yeiss,' said the queyne, ' for crystyn folk we ar.
 ' For Goddis saik, sen we desyr no mar,
 ' We awcht pess.' " Madeym, that I deny.
 " The perfytt caus I sall yow schaw for quhy;
 295 " Ye seke na pess bot for your awn awaill.
 " Quhen your fals king had Scotland grippytt hail,
 " For nakyn thing that he befor him fand,
 " He wald nocht thoill the rycht blud in our land;
 " Bot rest thar rent, syn put thaim selff to ded:
 300 " Ransoun off gold mycht mak [us] na ramed.
 " His fell fals wer sall on him selff be seyn."
 Than sobyrly till him ansuerd the queyn;
 ' Off thir wrangis amendis war most fair.'
 " Madeym," he said, " off him we ask no mar,
 305 " Bot at he wald byd ws in to battaill;
 " And God be juge, he kennys the mater hail."
 ' Sic mendis,' scho said, ' war nocht rycht gud, think me:
 ' Pess now war best, and it mycht purchest be.
 ' Wald yhe grant pess, and trwys with ws tak,
 310 ' Through all Ingland we suld gar prayeris mak

- ' For yow, and thaim at in the wer war lost.'
 Than Wallace said; "Quhar sic thing cummys throuch bos
 " Prayer off fors, quhar so at it be wrocht,
 " Till ws helpis [othyr] litill, or ellis nocht."

 The king rasauit it with a lycht attend,

 Bot for his saik that had him hydder brocht;
 For gold or land ellis he gat it nocht.
 “ Wallace,” he said, “ I had leuir off gud land,

405 “ Bot I wald wyt how that merwell befell.”

 Than he rahersyt quhat hapnyt on that day,
 As ye befor in my autor hard say.

Quhen the gud king had herd this sudan cass
 410 Apon the se, be forsicht off Wallace,
 The king him held rycht worthi till awans ;
 He saw in hym manheid and gouernans.
 So did the queyn, and all thir othir lordis ;
 Ilk wicht off hym gret honour than recordis.

415 He purchest pes, for all the power hail,
 Fyfteyn hundreth was left in the Rochail ;
 Gert cry thaim fre, trew serwandis to the king,
 And neur agayn fauty in sic thing.

Quhen Thomas was restoryt to his rycht,
 420 Off hys awin hand the king has maid him knycht.
 Eftir he gaiff stayt to his nerrest ayr ;
 And maid him selff with Wallace for to fayr.
 Thus he was brocht fra naym off reyff, throu cace,

425 Thus leyff I thaim in worschip and plesance,

 Towart that steid full sadly Wallace wrocht,
 Be ony wyss assailye gyff he mocht,

 This was nocht to thaim weill knawyn in that contré,
 The lyoun in gold rycht awfull for to se;

 Wermen with in, that playnly wndrestud,

 The forray tuk the pray, and past the playn,

- Towart the park; bot power off the toun
 470 Wschyt agayn in awfull battaill boun,

 On athir syd assaileyt ferly sayr.
 In to the stour so fellonly thai wrocht,

 With him Craufurd, and Longaweill off mycht,
 And Rychard als, Wallace his cusyng wicht;

 Thus hapnyt thai amang the gret party.
 505 A cruell portar gat apone the wall,

 Rychard Wallace the turngreys weill has seyn;
 He folowit fast apone the portar keyn,

 Tuk wp the port, and leit in all the layff.
 515 Quhen Wallace men had thus the entré won,
 Full gret slauchtir agane thai haff begon;

 Lord Bowmont said; "He tuk bot for Scotland,
 "And nocht for Frans, that sall ye wndyrstand.
- 555 "Gyff our endentour spekis for ony mair,

 'For pryncipaly he band with ws the trew,
 'And now agayn begynnys a malice new.
 'Schyr king,' he said, 'gyff ye think eur to mak
 'On Scotland wer, on hand now ye sall tak,
- 565 'Quhill he is out, or ellis it helpis nocht.'
 As Wodstok said, the haill consaill has wrocht;
 Power thai raissyt on Scotland for to ryd,
 Be land and se; thai wald no langar byd.
 Thar land ost thai rayit weyll in deid;

- 570 Thar wantgard tuk the hardy erll to leid
 Off Glosister, that off wer had gret feill;
 Off Longcastell the duk demanyt weill
 The mydillward; on to the se thai send Schyr Jhon Sewart, that weyll the northland kend.
- 575 The knycht Wallang befor the ost in raid;
 In sic a way wyth ewyll Scottis men he maid,
 Mony castellis he gert sone yoldin be
 Till Inglissmen, with outyn mar mellé.
 Or the best wyst, that it was wer in playn,
- 580 Entryt he was in to Bothwell agane.
- Fol. 82 a Schyr Jhon Sewart, that com in be the se,
 Sanct Jhonstoun sone gat throw a jeperté.
 Dundé thai tuk, and putt Scottismen to dede;
 In Fyff fra thaim was nocht kepyt a sted;
- 585 And all the south, fra Cheuyot to the se.
 In to the west thar mycht na succour be;
 The worthy lord, that suld haiff gouernyt this,
 God had hym tayn, we trow, in lestand blyss:
 Hys son Walter, that bot a child than was,
- 590 Trew men him tuk, and couth in Arrane pass.
 Adam Wallace than wyst off no supplé,
 Till Rawchlé went, and Lindsay off Craggé;
 Gud Robert Boid maid no residens;
 For haisty desait, thai tuk thaim to defens.
- 595 Schyr Jhon the Graym in Dundaff mycht nocht bid,
 Succour he socht in to the forest off Clid.
 The knycht Sewart, a schyreff maid in Fyff
 Schyr Amer Brim; and gaiff, for term off lyff,
 The landis hail that Wallang aucht befor.
- 600 Rychard Lundy had gret dreid off thar schoyr;
 He likyt nocht for to cum to thar pess,
 For thi in Fyff thai wald nocht lat him cess.
 To pass our Tay as than it mycht nocht be,

For Inglissmen so rewlyt that cuntré.

- 605 Owt off the land he staw away be nycht,
 Auchtene with him that worthy war and wycht;
 And als his sone, that was off tendyr eild;
 Bot eftir sone he couth weill wapynnys weild.
 At Sterlyng bryg, quhar at the wach wes set,
- 610 Thar passyt he away with outyn let.
 In Dundaff mur Schyr Jhon the Graym he socht;
 A woman tald, as than befor was wrocht;
 And till a strenth he drew him on the morn.
 Laynrik was tain with young Thomas off Thorn;
- 615 So Lundy thair mycht mak no langar remayn:
 Besouth Tynto lugis thai maid in playn.
 Schyr Jhon the Graym gat wit that he was thair;
 Till him he past with outyn wordis mar.
 Wallang gart bryng fra Carlele cariage,
- 620 To stuff Bothwell with wyn and gud warnage.
 Lundy and Graym gat wyt off that awaill,
 Rycht sudanly thai maid thaim till assaill:
 Fyfty thai war off nobill chewalry,
 Agayn four scor off Ingliss cumpany.
- 625 Ane Skelton than kepyt the careage,
 All Brankstewat that was his heretage.
 Lundy and Graym met with the squier wicht;
 Feill Inglissmen to ded derffly thai dycht.
 Sexté was slayn apon the tothir sid,
- 630 And fyve off Scottis, so bauldly thai abid.
 Gret gud thai wan, bath gold and othir ger,
- 632 b Wittayll and horss that hapnyt in that wer.
 Syn thai haiff seyn weyll lang thai mycht nocht lest
 In to that land, tharfor thai thocht it best
- 635 To seik sum place, in strenth that thai mycht bid,
 For Sotheron men had plenyst on ilk sid.
 Lundeis luge thai left upon a nycht;

- In the Lennox the way thai passyt rycht
 Till erll Malcom, that kepyt that cuntré
 640 Fra Inglissmen, with help off thar supplé.
 Cetoun and Lyll in to the Bass thai baid;
 For Sotheroun folk so gret mastrys had maid,
 That all the south was tain in to thar hand.
 Gud Hew the Hay was send in to Ingland,
 645 And vthir ayris, to presoune at thar will.
 The northland lordis, saw na help cum thaim till,
 A squier Guthré amang thaim ordand thai,
 To warn Wallace in all the haist he may.
 Out off Arbroth he passit to the se.
 650 And at the Slus, land takyn son had he;
 In Flandrys land no residens he maid;
 In Frans he past; bot Wallace weill abaid
 On his purpos in Gyan at the wer:
 On Sotheroun men he had doyn mekill der.
 655 Quhill gud Guthré had gottyn his presens,
 He haistyt him sone, and maid no residens;
 He has him tald, with Scotland how it stud.
 Than Wallace said; "Thai tithingis ar nocht gud.
 " I had exampill, off tym that is by worn, 660 " Trewys to bynd with thaim that was maynsuorn:
 " Bot I as than couth nocht think on sic thing,
 " Be causs that we tuk this pess with thar king.
 " Be thar chansler the tothir pess was bwn,
 " And that full sair our forfadris has fwn;
 665 " Wndyr that trew aughtene scor thai gart de,
 " At noblis war, the best in our cuntré!
 " To the gret God my wow now her I mak,
 " Pess with that king I think neur for to tak.
 " He sall repent, that thai this wer began."
 670 Thus mowit he, with mony ryoll man,
 On to the king, and tauld him his entent.
 Till lat him pass the king wald nocht consent,

Quhill [Wallace] thar maid promyss be his hand,
 Gyff euir agayn he thocht to leyff Scotland,

675 To cum till him; his gret seyll he him gaiff
 Off quhat lordschip that he likit till haiff.

Thus at the king haisty leiff tuk he.

Na ma with him he brocht off that cuntré,

Bot his awn men, and Schyr Thomas the knycht.

680 In Flawndrys land thai past with all thar mycht.

F. 83 a Guthreis barg was at the Slus left styll;

To se thai went wyth ane full egyr wyll.

Bath Forth and Tay thai left and passyt by

On the north cost, [gud] Guthré was thar gy.

685 In Munross hawyn thai brocht hym to the land;

Till trew Scottis it was a blyth tithand.

Schyr Jhon Ramsay, that worthi was and wycht,

Fra Ochtyrhous the way he chesyt rycht,

To meite Wallace with men off armes strang;

690 Off his duellyng thai had thocht wondyr lang.

The trew Ruwan come als with outyn baid;

In Barnan wod he had his luyng maid.

Barklay be that to Wallace semblyt fast;

With thre hundreth to Ochtyrhous he past.

695 The later day off August fell this cace;

For the reskew, thus ordanyt wicht Wallace,

Off Sanct Jhonstoun, that Sothroun occupyt.

Fast towart Tay thai passyt and aspyt;

Or it was day wndyr Kynnowll thaim laid.

700 Out off the toun, as Scottis men till hym said,

That serwandys oysyt with cartis hay to leid;

So was it suth, and hapnyt in to deid.

Saxsum thar com, and brocht bot cartis thre.

Quhen thai off hay was ladand most byssé,

705 Guthré with ten in handys has thaim tayn,

- Put thaim to dede, off thaim he sawyt nayn.
 Wallace gert tak in haist thar humest weid,
 And sic lik men thai waillyt, weill gud speid;
 Four was rycht rud, Wallace hym selff tuk ane,
 710 A rwssyt clok, and with him gud Ruwane.
 Guthré with that, and als gud yemen twa,
 In that ilk soit thai graithit thaim to ga.
 Full sutelly thai coueryt thaim with hay,
 Syne to the toun thai went the gaynest way.
- 715 Fyfteyn thai tuk off men in armes wicht,
 In ilk cart fyve thai ordanyt owt off sycht.
 Thir cartaris had schort suerdis, off gud steill,
 Wndyr thar weidis, callyt furth the cartis weill.
 Schyr Jhon Ramsay baid with a buschement still,
- 720 Quhen mystir war to help thaim with gud will.
 Thir trew cartaris past with outyn lett,
 A tour the bryg, and entryt throu the yet;
 Quhen thai war in, thar clokis kest thaim fra,
 Gud Wallace than the mayster portar can ta
- 725 Wpon the hed, quhill dede he has him left;
 Syn othir twa the lyff fra thaim has reft.
 Guthré, be that, did rycht weyll in the toun;
 Fol. 83 b And Ruwan als dang off thar famen doune.
 The armyt men, was in the cartis brocht,
- 730 Raiss wp, and weill thar dawery has wrocht;
 Apon the gait thai gert feill Sothroun de.
 The Ramsais spy, has seyn [thaim] get entré,
 The buschement brak, bathe bryg and port has won:
 Into the toun gret stryff thar was begon.
- 735 Thai twenty men, or Ramsay come in playn,
 Within the toun had saxté Sotheroun slayn.
 The Inglissmen on till aray was gayn;
 The Scottis as than layser lett them get nayn;
 Fra gud Ramsay with his men entryt in,

- 740 Thai sawit nayn was born off Ingliss kyn.
 Als Longaweill, the wucht knycht Schyr Thomas,
 Prewyt weill than, and in mony othir place.
 Agayn his dynt few Inglissmen mycht stand;
 Wallace with him gret faith and kyndnes fand.
- 745 The Sotheroun part saw weill the toun was tynt,
 Fersly thai fled, as fyr dois out off flynt.
 Sum fled, some fell in to draw dykis deip,
 Sum to the kyrk, thar lywys giff thai mycht keip;
 Sum fled to Tay, and in small weschell yeid;
- 750 Sum derffly deit and drownyt in that steid,
 Schir Jhon Sewart at the west port owt past;
 Till Meffen wod he sped him wondyr fast.
 A hundreth men the kyrk tuk for succour,
 Bot Wallace wald no grace grant in that hour.
- 755 He slay bad all off cruell Sotheroun keyn;
 And said thai had to Sanct Jhonstoun enemys beyn.
 Four hundreth men in to the toun war ded.
 Sewyn scor with lyff chapyt out off that sted.
 Wyffis and barnys thai maid thaim fre to ga;
- 760 With Wallace wyll he wald sla nayn off tha.
 Riches thai fand, that Inglissmen had brocht new,
 Syn plenyst the toun with worthi Scottis trew.
 Schyr Jhon Sewart left Meffen forest strang,
 Went to the Gask with feyll Sotheroun amang;
- 765 And syn in Fyff, quhar Wallang schirreff was;
 Send currowris sone out throw the land to pass,
 And gaderyt men, a stalwart cumpany.
 Till Ardargan he drew him prewaly;
 Ordand thaim in bargan reddy boune.
- 770 Agayn he thocht to sailye Sanct Jhonstoun,
 Quhar Wallace lay, and wald no langar rest,
 Rewllyt the toun as that him likyt best.
 Schyr Jhon Ramsay gret captane ordand he,

Fol. 84 a Ruwan schirreff, at ane accord for to be.
 775 This charge he gaiff, gyff men thaim warnyng maid,
 To cum till him with outyn mor abaid:
 And so thai did, quhen tithingis was thaim brocht.
 With a hundreth Wallace furth fra thaim socht.

To Fyfe he past, to wesye that cuntré,
 780 Bot wrangwarnyt off Inglissmen was he.
 Schyr Jhon Sewart, quhen thai were passyt by,
 Fra the Ochell he sped him haistely;
 Vpon Wallace folowit in all his mycht,
 In Abyrnethy tuk luyng that fyrst nycht.
 785 Apon the morn, with fyftene hundreth men,
 Till Black Irnsyde his gydys couth them ken.
 Thar Wallace was, and mycht no message send
 Till Sanct Jhonstoun, to mak this jornay kend;
 For Inglissmen, that full sutell has beyn,
 790 Gart wachis walk, that nayn mycht pass betweyn.
 Than Wallace said, "This mater payis nocht me."
 He cald till him the squier gud Guthré,
 And Beset als, that knew full weyll the land;
 And ast at thaim, quhat deid was best on hand,
 795 "Message to mak, our pouer for to get;
 "With Sotheroun sone we sall be wndirset.
 "And wykked Scottis, that knawis this forest best,
 "Thai ar the causse that we may haiff no rest.
 "I dred fer mar Wallang, that is thair gyd,
 800 "Than all the layff that cummys on that syd."
 Than Guthré said; 'Mycht we get ane or tway
 'To Saynct Johnstoun, it war the gaynest way;
 'And warn Ramsay, we wald get succour sone.
 'Our suth it is, it can nocht now be don.
 805 'Rycht weyll I wait, weschell is lewynt nayn,
 'Fra the Wood hawyn, to the ferry cald Aran.'

Than Wallace said; "The water cald it is;
 "My self can swym, I trow, and fall na myss.

"But currours oyss, that gaynys nocht for me;

810 "And I leyff yow her, yet had I leur de.

"Throw Goddis grace we sall bettir eschew;

"The strenth is stark, als we haiff men inew.

"In Elchoch park, bot fourty thar war we,

"For sewyn hundreth, and gert feill Sothron de;

815 "And chapyt weill in mony wnlikly place;

"So sall we her, throw help off Goddis grace.

"Quhill men may fast, thir woddis we may hauld still;

"For thi, ilk man be off trew hardy will;

"And at we do so nobill in to deid,

820 "Off ws be found no lak eftir to reid.

F. 84 b "The rycht is ouris, we suld mor ardent be;

"I think to freith this land, or ellis de."

His waillyt spech, with wit and hardyment,

Maid all the layff so cruell off entent;

825 Sum bad tak feild, and giff battaill in playn.

Wallace said; "Nay, thai wordis are in wayn:

"We will nocht leyff that may be our wantage;

"The wod till ws is worth a yeris wage."

Off hewyn temyr in haist he gert thaim tak

830 Syllys off ayk, and a stark barrés mak,

At a foyr frount, fast in the forest syd,

A full gret strenth, quhar thai purpost to bid;

Stellyt thaim fast till treis that growand was,

That thai mycht weyll in fra the barrés pass;

835 And so weill graithit on athir sid about;

Syn com agayn, quhen thai saw thaim in dout.

Be that the strenth arayit was at rycht,

The Inglis ost approchyt to thair sycht.

Than Sewart com, that way for till haiff wend,

840 As thai war wount; so his gydis thaim kend.

- At that entré thai thocht till haiff passage;
 But sone thai fand that maid thaim gret stoppage.
 A thousand he led off men in armes strang,
 With fyve hundreth he gert Jhon Wallang gang
 845 With out the wod, that nayn suld pass thaim fra.
 Wallace with him had fourty archarys thra;
 The layff was speris, full nobill in a neid:
 On thair enemys thai bykkyr with gud speid.
 A cruell cwntyre was at the barrés seyn.
 850 The Scottis defens so sykkyr was and keyn,
 Sotheroun stud aw to enter thaim amang;
 Feill to the ground thai our threw in that thrang.
 A rowm was left, quhar part in frount mycht fayr;
 Quha entrit in, agayn yeid neuirmar.
 855 Fourty thai slew, that formast wald haiff past.
 All dysarayit the ost was, and agast;
 And part off hors throw schot to dede was brocht,
 Brak to a playn, the Sotheroun fra them socht.
 The Sewart said; "Allace, how [may] this be;
 860 "And do no harm? Our gret rabut haiff we."
 He tald Wallang, and askyt his consaill;
 "Schyrreff thou art, quhat may be our awaill?
 "But few thai ar that makis this gret debait."
 John Wallang said; 'This is the best I wait,
 865 'To cess her off, and remayn her besyd;
 'For thai may nocht lang in this forest byd;
 Fol. 85 a 'For fawt off fud, thai mon in the cuntré;
 'Than war mar tym on thaim to mak mellé.
 'Or thai be won be fors, in to this stryff
 870 'Feyll at ye leid sall erar loss the lyff.'
 Than Sewart said; "This reid I will nocht tak:
 "And Scottis be warnyt, reskew sone will they mak.
 "Off this dispyt amendys I think to haiff,
 "Or de thar for in nowmyr with the laiff.

- 875 " In till a rang myselff on fut will fayr."
 Aucht hundreth he tuk off liklyest that was thair;
 Syn bad the layff bid at the barrés still
 With Jhon Wallang, to rewyll thaim at his will.
 " Wallang," he said, " be forthwart in this cace;
- 880 " In sic a swar we couth nocht get Wallace.
 " Tak hym or sla; I promess the be my lyff,
 " That king Edwart sall mak the erll off Fyff.
 " At yon est part we think to enter in;
 " I bid no mar, might ye this barress wyn.
- 885 " Fra thai be closyt graithly amang ws sa,
 " Bot merwell be, thai sall na ferrer ga.
 " Assailye sayr, quhen ye wit we cum ner;
 " On athir sid we sall hald thaim on ster."
 Thus semlyt thai apon ane awfull wyss.
- 890 Wallace has seyn quhat was thair haill dewyss.
 " Gud men," he said, " wndirstud ye this deid,
 " Forsuth thai ar rycht mekill for to dreid.
 " Yon Sewart is a nobill worthy knycht;
 " Forthwart in wer, rycht worthy, wyss and wicht.
- 895 " His assailye he ordannys wondyr sayr
 " Ws for to harm, no mannys wyt can do mar.
 " Plesand it is to se a chyftane ga
 " So chyftanlyk; it suld recomfort ma
 " Till his awn men, and thai of worschip be,
- 900 " Than for to se ten thousand cowartis fle.
 " Sen we ar stad with enemyss on ilk syd,
 " And her on fors mon in this forest bid,
 " Than fray the fyrst, for Goddis saik, cruellye,
 " That all the layff off ws abayssyt be."
- 905 Crawfurd he left, and Longaweill the knycht,
 Fourty with thaim, to kepe the barrés wicht:
 With him saxté off worthy men in weid,

- To meit Sewart with hardy will thai yeid.
 A maner dyk in to that wod wes maid,
 910 Off thuortour ryss, quhar bauldly thai abaid;
 A downwith waill the Sothroun to thaim had.
 Son semblyt thai with strakis sar and sad:
 Fol. 85 b Scharp sperys, fast duschand on athir sid,
 Throw byrnys brycht maid woundis deip and wid.
 915 This wantage was, the Scottis thaim dantyt swa,
 Nayn Inglissman durst fra his feris ga,
 To brek aray, or formast entyr in.
 Off crystin blud to se it was gret syn,
 For wrangwis causs; and has beyn mony day.
 920 Feyll Inglissmen in the dyk deid thai lay.
 Speris full sone all in to splendrys sprang;
 With scharp suerdys thai hew on in that thrang:
 Blud byrstyt out throw fyn harnes off mail.
 Jhon Wallang als full scharply can assaill
 925 Apon Crawford, and the knycht Longaweill,
 At thar power keypt the barrés weill;
 Maid gud defens, be wyt, manheid, and mycht;
 At the entrê feyll men to dede thai dycht.
 Thus all at anys assaileit in that place,
 930 Nayn that was thar durst turn fra the barrace
 To help Wallace, nor none of his durst pass
 To reskew thaim, so feyll the fechtynge was.
 At athir ward thai handelyt thaim full hat;
 Bot do or de, na succour ellis thai wayt.
 935 Wallace wes stad in to that stalwart stour;
 Guthré, Besat, with men off gret walour,
 Rychard Wallace, that worthi was off hand.
 Sewart merweillyt, that contrar thaim mycht stand,
 That euyr so few mycht byd in battaill place,
 940 Agaynys thaim, metyng face for face.
 He thoct him self to end that mater weill;

- Fast pressyt in with a gud suerd off steill;
 Into the dyk a Scottis man gert he de.
 Wallace tharoff in hart had gret pyté;
 45 Amendis till haiff he followit on him fast,
 But Ingliss men so thick betwex thaim past,
 That apon him a strak get mycht he nocht:
 Wthyr worthy derffly to dede he brocht.
 Sloppys thai maid throu all that chewalry,
 50 The worthy Scottis thai wrocht so worthely.
 Than Sothron saw off thar gud men so drest,
 Langar to bid thai thocht it nocht the best.
 Four scor was slayn, or thai wald leyff that steid,
 And fyfty als was at the barrace deid.
 55 A trumpet blew, and fra the wod thai draw;
 Wallang left off, that sycht fra that he saw.
 To sailye mar thaim [thocht] it was no speid,
 Withowt the wod to consaill son thai yeid,
 The worthy Scottis to rest thaim was full fayn;
 86, 60 Feyll hurtis had, bot few off thaim was slayn.
 Wallace thaim bad of all gud comfort be;
 "Thankit be God, the fayrer part haiff we!
 "Yon knyght Sewart has at gret jornay beyn;
 "So fair assay I haiff bot seildyn seyn.
 65 "I had leur off Wallang wrokyn be,
 "Than ony man that is off yon menyhe."
 The Scottis all on to the barress yeid,
 Stanchit woundis that couth full braithly bleid.
 Part Scottis men had bled full mekill blud;
 90 For faut off drynk, and als wantyng off fud,
 Sum feblyt fast, that had feill hurtis thar.
 Wallace tharfor sichit with hart full sar.
 A hat he hynt, to get water is gayn;
 Othir refut as than he wyst off nayn.
 975 A litill strand he fand, that ran hym by;

- Off cler watter he brocht haboundandly,
 And drank him selff, syn said, with sobyr mud;
 "The wyn off Frans me thocht nocht halff so gud."
 Than off the day thre quartaris was went.
- 980 Schir Jhon Sewart has castyn in his entent,
 To sailye mar as than he couth nocht preiff;
 Quhill on the morn that mar men couth raleiff;
 And kep thaim in, quhill tha, for hungyr sor,
 Cum in his will, or ellis de tharfor.
- 985 "Wallange," he said, "I charge the for to bid,
 "And kep thaim in; I will to Coupar rid.
 "Thow sall remayn, with fyve hundreth at thi will,
 "And I the morn sall cum with power the till."
 Jhon Wallange said; 'This charg I [her] forsaik;
- 990 'Eftir this day all nycht I may nocht waik.
 'For, trastis weill, thai will ische to the playn,
 'Thocht ye bid als, or ellis de in the payn.'
 Sewart bad him byd, or wndyrly the blaym;
 "I the commaund, on gud king Eduuardis naym.
- 995 "Or thar to God a wow I mak befor,
 "And thai brek out, to hyng the heych to morn."
 Off that commaund Jhon Wallang had gret dreid;
 Sewart went fra thaim with nyne scor in to deid
 Next hand the wod, and his gud men off Fyff,
- 1000 That with him baid in all term off thair lyff.
 Wallace drew ner, his tym quhen that he saw,
 To the wod syd, and couth on Wallang caw;
- Fol. 86 b "Yon knyght to morn has hecht to hyng the hie.
 "Cum in till ws, I sall thi warrand be
- 1005 "In contrar him, and all king Eduuardis mycht.
 "Tak we hym quyk, I sall him hyng on hycht;
 "And gud lordschip I sall gyff the hereft
 "In this ilk land, that thi brothir has left."
 Wallange was wyss, full sone couth wndrestand,

100 Be lyklynes Wallace suld wyn the land ;
 And bettir him war in to the rycht to bid,
 Than be in wer upon the Sotheroun sid.
 With schort wysment to Wallace in thai socht.
 Than Sewart cryt, and said ; ‘ That beis for nocht ;
 105 ‘ And fals off kynd thow art in heretage ;
 ‘ Eduuard on the has waryt ewill gret wage.
 ‘ Her I sall byd, my purpos to fullfill,
 ‘ Othir to de, or haiff the at my will.”
 For all his spech, to pass he wald nocht spar ;
 120 Wyth full glaid hart Wallace resawyt thaim thar.

Be that, Ruwan and Ramsay off renown,
 Be a trew Scot, that past to Sanct Jhonstoun,
 Thaim warnyng maid, that Sewart folowit fast
 Apon Wallace ; than war thai sayr agast.
 125 Owt off the toun thai wschit with all thair mycht,
 With thre hundreth, that worthi war and wicht ;
 Till Black Irnsid assemblyt in that place,
 As Wallang was gayne in to gud Wallace.
 The knycht Sewart has weill thair cummyng seyn ;
 130 A fayr playn feild he chesynt thaim betweyn.
 Elewyn hundreth and four scor than had he ;
 The Scottismen war fyve hundreth and saxté.
 Thai war bot few, a playn feild for to tak.
 Out of the wod gud Wallace can thaim mak ;
 135 He wyst no thing off thaim that cummyng was ;
 Mar hardement was fra the strenth to pass.
 Bot quhen thai hard Ruwan and Ramsay cry,
 Off Ochtyrhous, blyth was that chewalry.
 Mycht thai off gold haiff brocht a kingis rent,
 140 To gud Wallace mycht nocht so weyll content.
 Than till aray thai yeid on athir sid,
 In cruell ire, in battaill bown to byd.

- Worthiar men than Sewart semblyt thar,
 In all his tym, Eduuard had neuirmar.
 1045 Bot Sewart saw his nowmyr was fer ma ;
 Hys power sone he gart dewyd in twa ;
 To fecht at anys, rycht knychtlik he thaim kend,
 In that jornay othir to wyn or end.
 The worthi Scottis ruschyt on thaim, in gret ire,
 Fol. 87a 1050 With cruell strakis, that flawmyt fers as fyr.
 Wallace and his, als Sotheroun that was thar,
 Few speris had, for feyll fechtynge and sar
 In to the wod at sailye all the day :
 Bot new cummyn men weill waillyt speris had thai.
 1055 In to the stour thai gart feill Sotheroun de ;
 Thar cruell deid gret merwell was to se.
 Thai worthi Scottis, that fyrst among thaim baid,
 Full gret slauchtir on Inglissmen thai maid ;
 In to the wod befor had prewyt weill,
 1060 Than on the playn thai sonyeit nocht adeill ;
 In curage grew, as thai war new begon ;
 Schort rest thai had fra ryssyng off the son.

 And thocht to help gud Wallace in his rycht.

1055 “ And tak the croun; till ws it war kyndar,

“ To bruk for ay, or fals Eduuard it war.”

The wryt he gat; bot yeit suffer he wald,

For gret falsheid that part him did off ald.

Mekill dolour it did him in his mynd,

1060 Off thair mysfayr; for trew he was and kynd.

 Bot Inglissmen was so gret maisteris thar,

 Quhill on a day he tuk sum hardines.
 Douglace he cald, and couth to Sterlyng fayr,
 Quhar king Eduuard was deland landis thair.
 He proferd him in to the kingis seruice
- 1090 To bruk his awin; fra he wist, in this wyss,
 Douglace he was, than he forsuk planlé,
 Swor be Sanct George; "He brukis na landis off me.
 "His fadyr was in contrar off my crown;
 "Tharfor as now he bidis in our presoun."
- 1095 To the byschop nane othir grant he maid;
 Bot as he plesd, delt furth thai landis braid.
 To the lord Soullis all hail the Merss gaiff he,
 And captane als off Berweik for to be.
 Olyfant than, that he in Sterlyng fand,
- 1100 Quhen he him had, he wald nocht kep his band,
 The quhilk he maid or he him Sterlyng gaiff.
 Desaitfully thus couth he him dissayff;
 In till Ingland send him till presoun strang:
 In gret distress he lewynt thar full lang.
- 1105 Quhen Eduuard king had delt all this regioun,
 His leyff he tuk, in Ingland maid him boun.
 Out off Sterlyng southward as thai couth ryd,
 Cumyn hapnyt ner hand the Bruce to bid.

- Thus said he; "Schyr, and yhe couth keip consaill,
 1110 "I can schaw her quhilk may be your awaill."
 109 a The Bruce ansuerd; 'Quhat euir yhe say to me,
 'As for my part sall weill conseillyt be.'
 Lord Cumyn said; "Schyr, knaw ye nocht this thing,
 "That off this realm ye suld be rychtwyss king?"
 115 Than said the Bruce; 'Supposs I rychtwyss be,
 'I se no tym to tak sic thing on me.
 'I am haldin in to my enemyss hand,
 'Wndyr gret ayth, quhen I com in Scotland,
 'Nocht [to] part fra him for profyt nor request,
 1120 'Na for na strenth, bot gyff ded me arest.
 'He hecht agayn to gyff this land to me;
 'Now fynd I weill it is bot sutleté:
 'For thus thow seis he delys myn heretage,
 'To Sotheroun part, and sum to traytouris wage.'
 1125 Than Cumyn said; "Will ye her to accord?
 "Off my landys and ye lik to be lord,
 "Ye sall thaim hawe, for your rycht off the croun:
 "Or and ye lik, schyr, for my warisoun,
 "I sall yow help with power at my mycht."
 1130 The Bruce ansuerd; 'I will nocht sell my rycht;
 'Bot on this wyss, quhat lordschip thou will craiff
 'For thy supplé, I hecht thou sall it haff.'
 "Cum fra yon king, schyr, with sum jeperté;
 "Now Eduuard has all Galloway geyffyn to me,
 1135 "My newo Soullis, that kepis Berweik toun,
 "At your commaund his power sall be boun.
 "My newo als, a man off mekill mycht,
 "The lord off Lorn, has rowme in to the hycht.
 "My third newo, a lord off gret renoun,
 1140 "Will ryss with ws, off Breichin the barroun."
 Than said the Bruce: 'Fayr thar sa far a chance,
 ['That we mycht get agayn Wallace fra France,]

' Be witt and force he couth this kynryk wyn.

' Allace, we haiff our lang beyn haldin in twyn!'

1145 To that langage Cumyn maid na record;

Off ald deidis in till his mynd remord.

The Bruce and he completyt furth thar bandis;

Syn that samyn nycht thai sellyt with thar handis.

This ragment left the Bruce with Cumyn thar,

1150 With king Eduuard haym in Ingland can far:

And thar remaynyt quhill this ragment war knawin,

Thre yer and mar, or Bruce persewyt his awin.

Sum men demys that Cwmyn that ragment send;

Sum men tharfor agaynys makis defend.

Fol. 109 b 1155 Nayn may say weill Cumyn was saklasing,

Beauss his wiff was Eduuardis ner cusing.

He serwyt dede be rycht law off his king,

So raclelsy myskepyt sic a thing.

Had Bruce past by but baid to Sanct Jhonstoun,

1160 Be haill assent he had resawyt the croune;

On Cumyn syn he mycht haiff done the law.

He couth nocht thoill, fra tym that he him saw;

Thus Scotland left in hard perplexité.

Off Wallace mar in sum part spek will we.

BUKE ELEUENTH.

- THE sayr trawail, the ernystfull besynes,
 The feill labour had in mony place,
 To wyn the land at the gud king him gaiff,
 In till his ryng he wald no Sotheroun saiff.
 5 In Gyan land Wallace was still at wer;
 Off Scotlandis loss it did his hart gret der;
 Off trew Scottis in mynd he had peté,
 He thocht to help quhen he his tym mycht se.
 Off set battaillis fyve he dyscumfyt haille,
 10 But jeperté and mony strang assaill.
 Syn thai forsuk, and durst him nocht abid;
 The Sotheroun fled fra him on athir sid
 To Burdeouss, in gret multiplye;
 Than com thai stufft with wictaill be the se.
 15 All Gyan land Wallace brocht till his peess;
 To Burdeouss yit he past or he wald cess.
 On out byggyngis full gret maister thai maid;
 Still saxté dayis at sar sailyie thai baid.
 Fortrace, and werk that was with out the toun,
 20 Thai brak, and brynt, and put to confusioun:
 Hagis, alais, be laubour that was thar,
 Fulyeit and spilt; thai wald no froitis spar.
 The Inglissmen maid gret defens agayn
 With schot and cast, for thai war mekill off mayn.
 25 Off gownnys thai war, and ganyies, stuffyt weill,
 All artailye and wapynnys off fyn steill;

- With men and meit within war buskit beyn;
 Thair gret capdane was wyss, cruell and keyn.
 Off Glosyster that huge lord and her,
 30 This erll had beyn weill vsyt in to wer,
 Kepyt his men be wit and hardement;
 Fol. 110 a With out the toun thar durst nane fra him went.
 The landis with out wer ner waistyt away,
 Wermen so lang in to the contré lay.
 35 In Wallace ost so scantyt the wictaill,
 Thai mycht nocht bid [na] langar till assaill.
 Than this wiss lord, the duk off Orlyance,
 To Wallace said; "Schyr, ye suld knaw this chance.
 " It standis our weill with this fals Sotheroun blud;
 40 " For on no wayis we can nocht stop thair fud.
 " The hawin thai haiff and schippis at thair will;
 " Off Ingland cummys enewch off wittaill thaim till.
 " This land is purd off fud that suld ws beild;
 " And ye se weill als thai forsaike the feild.
 45 " Thai will nocht fecht, thocht we all yher suld bid;
 " Ye may off pess plenyss thir landis wid.
 " My consaill is in playn, anent this thing,
 " At ye wald pass with worschip to the king.
 " Be his assent, ye may at lasar waill
 50 " With prouisioun agayn for till assaill."
 Wallace inclynd, and thankit this wyss lord.
 Than thai tranontyt all in a gud concord;
 Past wp in France with honour to the king,
 And schawit him haill the verité off this thing;
 55 And he tharoff in hart was wondyr glad.
 Franch men befor that hundreth yer nocht haid
 Off Gyan halff sa mekill in to thair hand.
 Wrytting be than was new cumyn off Scotland,
 Fra part off lordis and byschop gud Synclar,
 60 Besocht the king in [to] thair termys fair,

Off his gentrice, and off his gudlye grace,
 For thair supplé, to consaill gude Wallace
 To cum agayne, and bring thaim off bandoun,
 And tak to wer the croun off that regioun.

65 This wrytt as than he wald nocht till him schaw;
 Rycht laith he war for frendschip, feik, or aw,
 Wallace suld pass sa son fra his presens:
 To duelling place he tuk to residens.

In Schynnown still Wallace his duelling maid,
 70 And held about rycht likand landis braid.

A keyn capdane than clemyt in heretage
 Office off it, and gret landis in wage;
 Tharfor he thocht gud Wallace for to sla.
 Wndyr colour sic maistrie for to ma,

75 Lang tym he socht to get a day and place;

l. 110 b Said he desyrd in seruice to Wallace.

A tryst thai set with sexteyn on the sid;
 Fyfty thar by he gert in buschement byd
 Off men in armys. Quhen he with Wallace met,

80 Rycht awfully he bad thaim on him set.

Na armour had Wallace men in to that place,
 Bot suerd and knyff thai bur on thaim throw grace.
 Parteis beyn met ner a fayr forest sid,
 Rycht boustously this capdane said that tyd,

85 At Wallace held off his landis vnrycht.

Rycht sobyrly he said to that Franch knycht;
 "I haiff no land bot quhilk the king gaiff me;
 "My lyff tharfor has beyne in jeperté."

The knycht ansuerd; 'Thi lyff thow sall forlorn,
 90 'Or ellis that land, the contrar quha had suorn.'
 On bak he lap, and owt his suerd he drew;
 The buschement brak, quhen he that takyn schew.
 Gud Wallace thocht that mater stud nocht weill.
 He gryppyt sone a scherand suerd off steill,

- 95 And at a straik the knycht to ded he draiff;
 About sexteyn sone lappyt all the layff.
 Wallace and his so worthely thai wrocht,
 Full feill thai slew that sarest on them socht.
 The knychtis brodyr rycht stalwart was and strang;
 100 And thocht he suld be wengyt or thai gang.
 Off Wallace men sum part thai woundyt sair.
 Mawand thar was in till a medow fair
 Nyne stout carllis, all serwandis to that knycht;
 Sythis thai hynt, and ran in all thair mycht
 105 To the fechtaris. Or thai com ner that place,
 Off thaim persawyt rycht weill was gud Wallace.
 Sa awfull thing off sic he neur saw;
 Thaim to rasyt him selff can to thaim draw,
 In to the stour left his men fechtand still,
 110 To meit thai carllis that com with egyr will.
 The fyrst leit draw at Wallace with his sith;
 Deliuier he was, and heich our lappyt swyth,
 And awkwart straik that churl apon the hed;
 Derffly on ground he has him left for ded.
 115 The tothir he met, our lap his syth so keyn,
 On the schuldir als straik him in that teyn;
 Throuch all the cost the noble suerd doun schair.
 The thrid he met, with a rycht awfull fayr
 The groundyn syth at Wallace he leit draw.
 120 This gud chyftan cleyntyly our lap thaim aw.
 Fol. 111 a With his gud suerd he maid a hidwyss wound,
 Left thaim for ded, syne on the ferd can found;
 On the wan bayn with gret ire can him ta,
 Cleyffyt the cost rycht cruelly in twa.
 125 Thre formast sythis thus gud Wallace our lap,
 And four he slew; thai saw sic was his hap;
 [For] a man ay he slew at eurilk straik.
 The layff fled fast; thus can the power slaik.

- Wallace folowed, and sone the fyrst our tais ;
 130 Straik him to ded, that na forthyr he gais ;
 Syn sped him fast till his awn men agayn.
 Be than thai had the knychtis brothyr slayn.
 Sexté and sex sexteyn to ded has dycht,
 Bot saiff sewyn men at fled out off thair sycht ;
 135 Fyve malwaris als, that Wallace selff with met.
 To Franch men syn na sic trystis he set,
 Be causs that thai him brocht to sic a cace.
 The king hard tell weill chapyt was Wallace ;
 Send for him sone, and prayit him for to be
 140 Off his housshald, so leyff in gud sauffté.
 For weill he saw thai had him at inwye ;
 Still with him selff he gert him bid forthi.
 Twa yeris thus with myrth Wallace abaid
 Still in to Frans, and mony gud jorney maid.
 145 The king him plessed in all his gudly mane,
 Fra him he thocht he suld nocht part agayn.
 Lordys and ladiis honoryd him reuerently,
 Wrechys and schrewis ay had him at inwy.

- Twa campiowns that tyme duelt with the king,
 150 Had gret despyt at Wallace in all thing.
 To gid dyr ay yeid thir twa campiowns,
 Off felloun fors and frawart attentious.
 Rycht gret despyt thai spak oft off Scotland ;
 Quhill on a day it hapnyt apon hand,
 155 Wallace and thai was lewit all thaim allayn,
 Be awentur, in till a hous off stayne.
 Thai oysyt to ber na wapynnys in that hall,
 Thai trowyt thar for a myss thai mycht nocht fall.
 Thar commownd thai off Scotland scornfully.
 160 Than Wallace said ; “ Ye wrang ws owtragely,
 “ Sen we ar bownd in frendschip to your kyng ;

- " And he off ws is plessed in all thing.
 " Als Scottis men has helpyt this realme off dreid.
 " Me think ye suld geyff gud word for gud deid.
 165 " Quhat may ye spek off your enemys bot ill?"
 Fol. 111 b In lychtlynes thai maid ansuer him till ;
 And him dispysyt in thar langage als ;
 ' Ye Scottis,' thai said, ' has euir yeit beyne fals.'
 Wallace tuk ane on the face in his teyn
 170 With his gud hand, quhill ness, mouth, and eyn,
 Throuch the braith blaw, all byrstyt owt off blud ;
 Butless to ground he smat him quhar he stud.
 The tothir hynt to Wallace in that sted ;
 For weill he wend his falow had beyne ded.
 175 And he agayn in greiff him grippyt sayr,
 Quhill spretis failyeid ner ; he mycht do no mayr.
 The fyrst frek raiss, and smat on Wallace fast ;
 Bathe to the ded he brocht thaim at the last.
 Apon a pillar thair harnys owt he dang,
 180 Bot with his handis, syn owt at the dur thaim flang ;
 And said ; " Quhat dewyll mowyt yon churllys at me ?
 " Lang tyme in France I wald haiff lattyn thaim be."
 Traistis for trewth, thus war thai ded in deid ;
 Thocht Franchmen [now] likis it nocht to reid.
 185 Als I will cess and put it nocht in rym :
 Bettir tharis quha rycht can luk in tyme.
 Mony gret lord was displessyd in Frans,
 Bot the gud king, that knew all hail the chans.
 Oft gret dispyt off Scotland spokyn had thai.
 190 This passyt our, quhill eftir a nothir day.
 Was nayn off thaim that durst it wndirtak
 He had done wrang, nor tharfor battaill mak.
 This ryoll roy a hie worschip him gaiff ;
 As conquerour him honowryd our the layff.
 195 A fell lyoun the king has gert be brocht

With in a barrace, for gret harm that he wrocht,
Terlyst in yrn, na mar power him gaiff.

Off wodness he excedyt all the layff;
Bot he was fayr, and rycht felloun in deid.

200 In that strang strenth the king gert men him feid;
Kepyt him closs fra folk and bestiall.

In the court duelt twa squieris off gret wail,
At cusyngis war on to thir campounis twa,
The quhilk befor Wallace hapnyt to sla.

205 A band thai maid in prewa illusioun,
At thair power to wyrk his confusioun,
Be ony meyn, throw frawd or sutelté;
Eftir, tharfor, thai roucht nocht for to dé,

l. 112 a To ded or schaym sa that thai mycht him bryng.

210 Apon a tym thai went on to the king;
“This man,” thai said, “at ye sa welthfull mak,
“He seis nocht her bot he wald wndyrtak,
“Be his gret fors, to put to confusioun.

“Now he desyris to fecht on your lyoun;

215 “And bad ws ask at yow this battaill strang,
“Ye grant him leyff in that barrace to gang.”

Sadly agayn to thaim ansuerd the king;

‘Sayr me forthinkis at he desiris sic thing;

‘Bot I will nothir for greiff, nor gret plesance,

220 ‘Deny Wallace quhat he desiris off France.’

Than went thai furth, and sone met with Wallace;

A fygourd taill thai tald hym off this cace.

“Wallace,” thai said, “the king desiris that ye

“Doren battaill sa cruell be to se,

225 “And chargis you to fecht on this lioun.”

Wallace ansuerd in haisty conclusioun,

And said; ‘I sall, quhat be the kingis will,

‘At my power rycht glaidly to fullfill.’

Than passit he on to the king but mair.

- 230 A lord off court, quhen he approchyt thar,
 Wnwisytly sperd, with outyn prouisioun;
 "Wallace, dar ye go fecht on our lioun?"
 And he said; 'Ya, so the king suffyr me;
 'Or on your selff, gyff ye ocht bettyr be.'
- 235 Quhat will ye mar? this thing amittyt was,
 That Wallace suld on to the lyoun pas.
 The king thaim chargyt to bryng him gud harnas:
 And he said; "Nay, God scheild me fra sic cass.
 "I wald tak weid, suld I fecht with a man;
- 240 "Bot [for] a dog, that nocht off armes can,
 "I will haiff nayn, bot synglar as I ga."
 A gret manteill about his hand can ta,
 And his gud suerd; with him he tuk na mar;
 Abandounly in barrace entryt thar.
- 245 Gret chenys was wrocht in the yet with a gyn,
 And puld it to quhen Wallace was tharin.
 The wod lyoun, on Wallace quhar he stud,
 Rampand he braid, for he desyryt blud;
 With his rude pollis in the mantill rocht sa.
- 250 Aukwart the bak than Wallace can him ta,
 With his gud suerd, that was off burnyst steill,
 His body in twa it thruschyt euirilkdeill.
- Fol. 112 b Syn to the king he raykyt in gret ire,
 And said on lowd; "Was this all your desyr,
- 255 "To wayr a Scot thus lychtly in to wayn?
 "Is thar ma doggis at ye wald yeit haiff slayne?
 "Go, bryng thaim furth, sen I mon doggis qwell,
 "To do byddyng, quhill that I with yow duell.
 "It gaynd full weill I graithit me to Scotland;
- 260 "For grettar deidis thair men has apon hand;
 "Than with a dog in battaill to escheiff.
 "At you in France for euir I tak my leiff."
 The king persawyt Wallace agrewyt was,

- So ernystfully he askyt leiff to pass ;
 265 Rewid in his mynd at it was hapnyt sa,
 Sa lewd a deid to lat him wndyrta.
 Knawand the worschip, and the gret nobilnace
 Off him, quhilk sprang that tym in mony place,
 Hwmbly he said ; ‘ Ye suld displess you nocht ;
 270 ‘ This ye desyryt, it mowyt neur in my thocht.
 ‘ And, be the faith I aw the croun off France,
 ‘ I thocht neyr to charge you with sic chance
 ‘ Bot men off waill, at askyt it for yow.’
 Wallace ansuerd ; “ To God I mak awow, 275 “ I likyt neur sic battaill to be in ;
 “ Apon a dog na worschip is to wyn.”
 The king consawyt how this falsheid was wrocht.
 The squiers bath, was till his presens brocht,
 Coud nocht deny quhen thai com him befor ;
 280 All thair trespas thai tald with outyn mor.
 The king commaundyt thai suld be don to ded ;
 Smat off thair hedys with out ony rameid.
 The campiounis, lo, for inwy causlace,
 To sodand dede Wallace brocht thaim throu cace ;
 285 The squiers als, fra thair falsheid was kend,
 Inwy thaim brocht bathe till a sodand end.
 Lordis, behald, inwy the wyle dragoun,
 In cruell fyr he byrnys this regioun.
 For he is nocht, that bonde is in inwy ;
 290 To sum myscheiff it bryngis hym haistely.
 Forsaik inwy, thow sall the bettir speid.
 Heroff as now I will no forthir reid ;
 Bot in my mater, as I off for began,

- 295 Quhen Wallace saw thai had him at inwy,
 Langar to byd he coud than nocht apply.

- Bettir him thoct in Scotland for to be,
 And awntur tak othir to leiff or de.
- Fol. 113 a Till help his awn he had a mar plesance,
 300 Than thar to byd with all the welth off France.
 Thus his haille mynd, manheid, and hye curage.
 Was playnly set to wyn out off bondage
 Scotland agayn fra payn and felloun sor;
 He woude he suld, or ellis de tharfor.
- 305 The king has seyn how gud Wallace was set;
 The lettir than him gaiff with outyn let,
 The quhilk off lait fra Scotland was him send.
 Wallace it saw, and weill thair harmys kend;
 Be the fyrst wryt tharto accordiall,
- 310 Thaim to supplé he thoct he wald nocht fail.
 Quhar to suld I her off lang process mak?
 Wallace off France a gudly leiff can tak.
 The kyng, has seyn it wald nocht ellis be,
 To chawmyr went, and mycht nocht on him se;
- 315 Gret languor tuk quhen Wallace can ramuff:
 That king till him kepit kyndnes and luff.
 Jowallis and gold, his worschip for to saiff,
 He bad thaim geyff, als mekill as he wald haiff.
 Lordys and ladyis wepyt wondyr fast,
- 320 Quhen Wallace thar so tuk his leyff, and past.
 Na men he tuk bot quhilk he hydder brocht;
 Agayn with him gud Longaweill furth socht:
 For payn nor blyss that gud knyght left him neuir.
 For cace befell, quhill ded maid thaim deseuyr.
- 325 Towart the Sluce in gudly fer past he;
 A wesshell gat, and maid him to the se.
 Aucht schipmen feit, and gudly wage thaim gaiff;
 To Scotland fur; the Fyrth off Tay thai haiff.
 Apon a nycht Wallace the land has tane
- 330 At Ernyss mouth, and is till Elchok gane.

- He gert the schip in cowert sail away;
 So out off sycht thai war or it was day.
 At Elchok duelt ane, Wallace cusyng der,
 At Craufurd hecht; quhen thai the houss com ner,
 335 On the baksyd Wallace a window fand,
 And in he cald. Sone Craufurd com at hand,
 Fra tym he wyst that it was gud Wallace.
 In till his bern he ordand thaim a place;
 A mow off corn he bygit thaim about,
 340 And closyt weill, nane mycht persawe without,
 Bot at a place, quhar meit he to thaim brocht,
 And bedyn to, als gudly as he mocht.
 A dern holl furth, on the north syd, thai had
 To the watter, quhar off Wallace was glad.
 345 Four dayis or fyve in rest thai soiornd thar,
 Quhill meit was gayn; than Craufurd bownd for mar
 Till Sanct Jhonstoun, thar purwyance for to by.
 Inglissmen thocht he tuk mar boundandly
 Than he was wount at ony tym befor;
 350 Thai haiff him tane, put him in presone sor.
 Quhat gestis he had, to tell thai mak raquest.
 He said, it was bot till a kyrkyn fest.
 Yeit thai preiff sone the cumyng off Wallace;
 Knowlage to get thai kest a sutell cace.
 355 Thai latt him pass with thing that he had bocht;
 Syn eftir sone, in all the haist thai mocht,
 To harnes yeid the power off the toun.
 Aucht hundreth men with Butler maid thaim boun,
 Folowed on dreich, quhill at this man com hame.
 360 Wallace him saw, and said, he serwit blame.
 " In my sleping a fell visioun me tauld,
 " Till Inglissmen that thow suld me haiff sauld."
 Craufurd him said, he had bene turment sair
 With Inglissmen, that had him in dispair;

- 365 ' Tharfor ryss wp, and for sum succour se,
 ' I dreid full sair, thai set wachis on me.'
 The worthi Scottis thai graithit thaim in gud weid;
 Thar wapynnys tuk, syn off that houss furth yeid.
 Thus sodandly the fell Sotheroun thai saw;
- 370 To few thai war to bid agayn thaim aw,
 At keynly com with yong Butler the knycht.
 Than Wallace said; " A playn feild is nocht rycht;
 " Bot Elchok park is ner hand her besid,
 " The fyrst sailyie we think thar to abid."
- 375 Nynetene thai war, and Craufurd, with gud will,
 The twentyd man, the nowmer to fullfill.
 The park thai tuk; Wallace a place has seyn
 Off gret holyns, that grew bathe heych and greyn.
 With thuortour treis a maner strenth maid he;
- 380 Or that war wone, thai trowit to gar feill de.
 The wod was thyk, bot litill off breid or lenth;
 Had thai had meit, thai thocht to hald that strenth.
 The Inglissmen passyt to Craufurdys place,
 Fand in the bern the lugeyng off Wallace;
- 385 Than Crawfordis wyff in handys haiff thai tayne,
 And ast at hyr quhat way the Scottis war gayne.
 " Rycht weill thai trowyt at Wallace suld thar be;
 " Off France in Tay he was cumyn be the se."
 Scho wald nocht tell, for bost, nor yeit reward.
- 390 Than Butler said; ' Our lang thow has beyn spard?'
 Thar with he grew in matelent and ire,
 And gert thaim byg a bailfull braid brym fyr.
 The Sotheroun suor tharin scho suld brynt be.
 Than Wallace said; " Scho sall nocht end for me;
 Fol. 114 a 395 " Gret syn it war yon saikless wicht to sla.
 " Or scho suld end, in faith thar sall de ma."
 He left the strenth, and the playn feild can ta;
 On lowd he cryt, and said; " Lo, her I ga.

- “ Thinkis thow no schaym for to turment a wyff?
 400 “ Cum fyrst to me, and mak end off our stryff.”
 Fra Butler had apon gud Wallace seyn,
 Throuch auld malice he wox ner wod for teyn;
 Apon the Scottis schup thaim all with gret mayn:
 Bot Wallace son the strenth he tuk agayn.
 405 A fell bykkyr the Inglissmen began,
 Assailyeid sayr with mony cruell man:
 Bot thai with in, war nobill at defens,
 Maid gret debait be force and wiolens.
 At the entra fyftene thai brocht to ded;
 410 Than all the lawe, ramowit fra that sted,
 Yeid till aray agayn to sailye new.
 Wallace beheld, quhilk weill in weir him knew:
 “ Falowis,” he said, “ agayn all at this place
 “ Thai will nocht sail: but thus standis the cace;
 415 “ Yon knycht thinkis for to dewid his men
 “ In seir partis, the suth ye sall weill ken,
 “ Agayn on ws to preiff how it may be.
 “ Ws worthis now sum wayis for thaim to se,

 With thai fyfté he had vencust nyne scor,
 And syn he past, withoutyn tary mor,
 925 Till Wygtoun sone, and that castell has tayne;

 And how he had resawyt Eduuard the Bruce.
 The commouns suor thai suld cum neur mar

 Thus Wallace thryss has maid all Scotland fre;
- 960 Than he desyryt in lestand peess to be.
 For as off wer he was in sumpart yrk,

1020 Apon a syll he saw besyd him stand,

The bak off ane he byrstyt in that thrang;

* Two or three words, apparently eucharistic, which have been added here, are mutilated in the MS.

NOTES ON WALLACE.

NOTES ON WALLACE.

NOTES ON THE FIRST BOOK.

*His forbearis, quha likis till wondrestand,
Of hale lynage, and trew lyne of Scotland, &c.—V. 21.*

Of auld linnage, &c. Edit. 1594; olde, 1620; old, 1648, 1673, and 1714.

Go reid the fyrst rycht lyne of the fyrst Stewart. MS.—V. 34.

But both the rhyme and sense point out the word in Roman characters as an error of the copier. It also disagrees with all the copies I have seen, except that of 1714.

Till hald of hym the toun.—V. 64. MS.

This is obviously another error, and opposed to all the copies.

And thar he gat ymage of Scotland swne. MS.—V. 116.

It is homage in all the copies, except that of Perth.

And Bruce, out of Scotland.—V. 134.

All the copies before that of 1714 connect this with v. 140;—

That office than he brukyt bot schort tyme.

The editor of the first edition I have seen might have overlooked the six intervening lines, by fixing his eye on the conclusion of v. 134, which closes with the same words as that of v. 140—of Scotland. But the sense requires these lines; as no office was given to Bruce, but merely his heritage.

*Schir Ranald knew weill a mar quiet sted,
 Quhar Wilyham mycht be bettir fra thair fede,
 With his wncle Wallas of Ricardtoun,
 Schir Richard hecht, that gud knycht off renoun.*—V. 353.

“Riccartoun is evidently a corruption of Richardtoun. It is generally supposed to have been so called from a Sir Richard Wallace, who lived in the vicinity of the village, and who is said to have been uncle to the celebrated patriot, Sir William Wallace. Of his house no vestige now remains; the place, however, where it stood is well known. The village of Riccartoun is within one English mile of the market-place of Kilmarnock.” V. Riccartoun, Stat. Acc. V. 117.

And with the sword awkwart he him gawe.—V. 407.

In Edit. 1594,—ane ackwart straik him gaif.

This is followed by subsequent editions. The line, as it stands in MS. is both clumsy and nonsensical. But perhaps Blind Harry used this for athwart; as it occurs in the same sense, II. 109.

Went till his eyme, and tauld him of this drede. MS.—V. 437.

Of the deid, Edit. 1594. Of the deed, Edit. 1620.

This is more in character, than to suppose that Wallace, after so chivalrous an achievement, should run to his uncle, and tell him in what terror he was for the vengeance of the English. The term here used, indeed, seems to reduplicate on the phrase which occurs v. 434, “this worthi werk.”

NOTES ON THE SECOND BOOK.

Aboundandely Wallace amang thaim yeid;
The rage of youth maid him to haf no dreid.—V. 27.

This is most probably for abandounly; signifying, “without regard to danger,” as it is indeed explained in the following line. In Edit. 1594, it is rendered,—All but abaissing; 1620 and 1648, abasing.

He bar a sasteing in a boustous poille.—V. 33.

A sting signifies a pole; but this sasteing must have been something fixed in a larger poille or pole. Norw. sjaastang is explained, "a pole wherewith skins are taken off or laid on smoky vents." Sjaa itself signifies the skin taken from the stomachs of animals, of which parchment is made. V. Hallager Ordsamling. But as Scottish say signifies a water bucket, this may refer to the pole used for carrying it. The following definition might seem to throw light on this singular term. "So or soa, a tub with two ears to carry on a stang." Ray's Collection of North Country Words. The term was most probably pronounced saysting; as a, in our old writers, must often have been sounded ai.

The Aperse of Scotland left in cayr.—V. 170.

As this has no meaning, I have altered it, according to the reading of Edit. 1594, 1620, and 1648:

The Aperse of Scotland is in greit cair.

Celimus was maist his geyeler now.—V. 234.

In editions Cellinus. In MS. the initial letter is wanting, as is generally the case in MSS. which were afterwards to be illuminated. But from the copies it appears probable that it was C. This name is certainly given figuratively, or in reference to some jailor, celebrated in the romances then in vogue. Or could the Minstrel allude to Celaeno, one of the fabled harpies? If so, Cellinus would perhaps be the original reading.

*Thomas Rimour in to the Faile was than,
With the mynystir, quhilk was a worthi man:
He wysyt off to that religious place.—V. 288.*

This passage has been strangely misunderstood. So early as 1594 it had been made to bear quite a different meaning:—

*Thomas Rymour withouttin faill was than
With the minister, &c.*

This error has been followed in subsequent editions. In Edit. Perth, 1790, it is, in to the ayle; although it had been properly given, in to the Faile, Edit. 1714.

This was a cell or priory of the Cluniacenses in Kyle, Ayrshire, depending on Paisley. Spottiswoode writes it Feale. "Our history," he says, "only remarks, that the prior of this place was one of those who hindred the castle of Dumbarton from being surrendered to the English, anno 1544, in opposition to the Earl of Lenox, then governor of it." But besides this curious passage, which shows that it was an ancient foundation; it may be added, that "the right of the patronage of the kirk of Fale, in the county of Ayr," is given to James de Lindsay, apparently the ancestor of the Earls of Crawford, in a charter by Robert II. Registr. Mag. Sigill. p. 172. N. 13. The miln of Fail, and the crofthead of Fail, in the lordship of Failfurd, are mentioned in a retour regarding William Wallace, heir of William Wallace, minister of Failfurd, A. 1617. Inquis. Retour. Ayr, N. 162.

Thar man that day had in the merket bene.—V. 297.

In Edit. 1594, 1620, 1714, and Perth, it is that man; in 1648 and 1673, this man; either of which would immediately refer to Thomas of Ercildon. But thar, i.e. their man, respects the servant of the religious fraternity of Faile, as appears from v. 299, which cannot respect True Thomas;

His mastyr speryt, quhat tithingis at he saw.

NOTES ON THE THIRD BOOK.

*And fra the tyme that he of presoune four,
Gude souir weide dayly on him he wour:
Gude lycht harness, fra that tyme, wysyt he euir.*—V. 83.

Instead of And fra the tyme, read, Ay fra the tyme, as in MS.

It is remarkable that in all the copies, without exception, as far as I know, it is somer or summer weid, or weed. Of what use could this have been to Wallace, when in "sodeyn stryff?" The term is the same with E. sure, i.e. secure armour, although light.

*His face he keptit, for it was euir bar,—
In to his weid, and he come in a thrang.*—V. 91.

I have pointed this passage according to what seems the sense. Having so many enemies, when he was accidentally "in a crowd, he muffled up his face," that his features might not be recognised. Hamilton of Gilbertfield, although in many instances he has given an air of ridicule to this ancient poem, by the grossness of his phraseology, seems to have hit the true sense here, which is totally lost by the mode of punctuation in most of the editions. He renders it;—

His face, when he came in among strange folk,
He held it best to hide within his cloak.—P. 42.

Send twa skowrrouis to wesy weyll the playn.—V. 103.

Scurriours, Edit. 1620. In that of Perth, thowrrouis; but in MS. it may be read thowrrouis, t or c being put for s. We have skourioris, IV. 431.

The knycht Fenweik conwoide the caryage.—V. 117.

—The knycht Fenweik, that cruell was and keyne;

He had at dede off Wallace fadyr beyne.—V. 169.

“Among other antiquities there may be mentioned, a place called Beg, above Allinton, where the brave Wallace lay in a species of rude fortification with only fifty of his friends, yet obtained a complete victory over an English officer of the name of Fenwick, who had two hundred men under his command. This gallant hero, it is well known, had several places of retirement towards the head of this parish and in the neighbourhood, some of which retain his name unto this day; Wallace-hill in particular, an eminence near the Galla-law, and a place called Wallace-Gill, in the parish of Loudoun, a hollow glen, to which he probably retired for shelter when pursued by his enemies.” P. of Galston. Stat. Acc. II. 74.

Schir Amar Wallange, a fals traytour strange, &c.—V. 261.

The Minstrel, it has been said by Lord Hailes, “always speaks of Aymer de Valloins, Earl of Pembroke, as a false Scottish knight.” Annals, I. 245. But, as Kerr has observed, although he designs him “a false traitor,” &c. his country is no where mentioned; unless this should be viewed as implied in what is said, B. VII. 1097, concerning his forsaking “his awne land for euirmar.” Kerr views this, however, as referable to his quitting Bothwell, the heritage of Moray, which had been given to Valloins. V. Hist. Bruce, I. 115.

NOTES ON THE FOURTH BOOK.

So sodeynly at Hesilden he saw

The Perseys sowme, in quhilk gret ryches was.—V. 26.

In MS. that Hesilden; but I have followed the judicious alteration made in Edit. 1714. In that of 1594 it is completely changed:

Sa suddainlie that time himself he saw, &c.

This is adopted by Hart, Edit. 1620.

Hesilden is evidently a local name, and must be the same place that is now called Hexilton-head, a farm, situated on high ground, in the parish of Mearns, on the direct road from Ayr to Glasgow, about nine miles to the south-west of the latter. This appears unquestionable, from the necessity under which Sir Ranald Crawford was laid, in consequence of his sumpter-horse being carried off by the English, of sleeping that night at Mearns, v. 70.

Schyr Ranald was wiss, and kest in his entent;
And said, " I will byde at the Mernys all nycht."

Schir Ranald said, ' That is bot litill der.'—V. 60.

In MS. her, which is followed by Edit. 1714. But I prefer der or deir, the reading of 1594, signifying "injury, loss." In Edit. 1620, deare.

Befor Persye than seir men brocht war thai:
Thai folowit him of felouny that was wrocht.—V. 122.

Befoir the Persie and his men brocht were thai.—Edit. 1594.

It is the same as given by Hart.

The phrase "folowit him of," signifies, pursued him for. It frequently occurs in this sense in our old statutes.

For thai war strang: yeitt he couth nocht thaim dreid.—V. 179.

Strang here signifies, "strange; persons with whom he was not acquainted."

Thocht they were strangers, &c. Edit. 1594. Though they were strangers, 1620.

A bown Lekle, &c. MS.—V. 211.

It is Lekkie in all the editions; which is still the name of the place, (V. Stat. Acc. XVIII. 98. 116.) and was so in the time of Robert Bruce. Robertson's Ind. 8, 90.

On Gargownno was byggyt a small peill, &c.—V. 213.

"A little southward of the village there is a conical height called the Kier-hill, which is evidently artificial, and seems to have been a military work. There are remains of a ditch or rampart of a circular form, which proves that it is not of Roman origin. It is probably of later date, and appears to have been the place from which Sir William Wallace sallied forth on the night when he took by surprise the Peel of Gargunnoch." Stat. Acc. XVIII. 116, 117.

Wallace with hyr in secré maid him glaid.—V. 403.

I have retained the word as in MS. although it is secret in all the copies. Perhaps it might be from O. Fr. en secré.

Wemen and preistis wpon the wall can wepe.—V. 480.

In MS. wpon Wallace. But the reading of Edit. 1594 is preferable; especially as they did not then know that their enemy was Wallace. Perhaps it might originally be, "wpon the wallis," whence the blunder might easily be made, as the word would be read as two syllables.

No man was thar that Wallace bow mycht draw.—V. 550.

In MS. we find all as the last word in the preceding line, and drall here. But the error has arisen from the resemblance of w to ll.

To Cargyll wood thai went that samyn nycht.—V. 677.

In MS. Gargyll. But it is Cargill, Edit. 1594; and this must be the true reading, Shortwoodshaw being in the parish of Cargill. V. Stat. Acc. XIII. 532. This is evidently spoken of as the same with Cargyll-wood.

NOTES ON THE FIFTH BOOK.

In Gyllisland thar was that brachell brede.—

So was scho vsyt on Esk and on Ledail;

Quhill scho gat blude no flëyng mycht awail.—V. 25.

Gilderland, Edit. 1594; Gelderland, 1620, 1648, 1673, &c., also 1714. But this must be Gillesland or Gilsland, a barony in Cumberland. The Minstrel having said that the hound was bred here, immediately speaks of her being used to track in Esk and Liddisdale, in the vicinity of Cumberland. So late as the reign of James I. of England, there is an order dated A. 1616, that no less than nine bloodhounds should be kept on the Border, upon Esk, and other places mentioned. V. Pennant's Tour, 1772 ; I. 77, II. 397.

Bellenden, after Boece, gives a particular description of these blood-hounds, which agrees with the facts mentioned above, and has considerable interest.

“The thrid kynd is mair than ony rache. Red hewit or ellis blak with small spraingis of spottis, and ar callit be the peple sleuthhundis. Thir doggis hes sa meruellous wit, that thai serche theuis, and followis on thaym allanerlie be sent of the guddis that ar tane away. And nocht allanerlie fyndis the theif, bot inuadis hym with gret cruelté. And thocht the theuis oftymes cors the watter, quhair thai pas, to caus the hound to tyne the sent of thaym and the guddis, yit he serchis heir and thair with sic deligence, that be his fut he fyndis baith the trace of the theiff and the guddis. The meruellous nature of thir houndis wil haue na faith with vncouth peple. Howbeit the samyn ar rycht frequent and ryfe on the bordouris of England and Scotland. Attour it is statute be the lawis of the bordouris, he that denyis entres to the sleuthound in tyme of chace and serching of guddis, sal be haldin participant with the cryme and thift committit.” Discription of Albion, chap. XI.

This extract throws light on a passage in The Bruce, where the king is made to refer to the vulgar idea as to the means necessary for making the blood-hound lose his scent ; although the statement given by Boece opposes the opinion which had been generally received.

Bot Ik haiff herd oftymys say,
That quha endland a watter ay
Wald waid a bowdraucht, he suld ger
Bathe the slouth hund, and his leder,
Tyne the sleuth men gert hym ta.

THE BRUCE, B. v. 317.

John Hardyng has given a curious account of the means used by Edward I. for taking Bruce, similar to that here said to have been employed against Wallace.

The king Edward with hornes and houndes him soght,
With menne on fote, through marris, mosse, and myre,
Through wodes also and mountens [wher they fought]
And euer the kyng Edward hight men greate hyre,
Hym for to take and by might conquere;
But thei might hym not gette by force ne by train,
He satte by the fyre when thei [went] in the rain.

In the stanza immediately following he indeed ascribes the death of Edward to his disappointment, in never being able to get our king into his hands :—

The kyng Edward for anger fell in accesse,
And homeward came full sycke and sore annoyed.—
At Burgh vpon the sande he died anone, &c.

Chronicle, p. 303, 304.

*Kerlé beheld on to the bauld Heroun,
Vpon Fawdown as he was lukand doune.—V. 145.*

This appears to have been the head of the ancient family of Heron, who held Ford Castle in Northumberland. In the reign of Henry III. it was in possession of Sir William Heron, who was governor of the castles of Bamborough, Pickering, and Scarborough, lord warden of the forests north of Trent, and sheriff of Northumberland for eleven successive years. V. Hutchinson's Northumb. II. 19. This castle has attracted much attention, as having been the scene of the enchantments of its fair mistress, by means of which our infatuated James IV. was disarmed before the fatal battle of Flodden; and it has acquired additional celebrity from the no less bewitching Muse of the author of Marmion.

To Dawryoch he knew the forss full weill.—V. 265.

This is Dalreoch, on the south bank of the Earn, four or five miles west from Forteviot. A bridge across the Earn is called that of Dalreoch. By the forss seems to be meant ford. V. Etym. Dict. in vo.

*Our thwort the Kerss to the Torwode he yeide.—
The rone wes thik that Wallace slepyt in.—V. 319—357.*

“In Dunipace parish is the famous Torwood, in the middle of which there are the remains of Wallace's Tree, an oak which, according to a measurement, when entire, was said to be about twelve feet diameter. To this wood Wallace is said to have fled, and secreted himself in the body of that tree, then hollow, after his defeat in the north.” Stat. Acc. III. 336.

This “is still dignified by the name of Wallace's Tree. It stands in the middle of a swampy moss, having a causeway round its ruins; and its destruction has been much precipitated by the veneration in which the Scottish hero has been long held, numerous pieces having been carried off, to [be] convert[ed] into various memorials of the champion of Scotland.” Kerr's Hist. Bruce, I. 127.

*Throuch the Oychall thai had gayne all that nycht,
Till Airth ferry, or that the day was brycht.—V. 411.*

In MS. it is Qwenys ferry; but the word first written has been scraped out, and Qwenys substituted on the head margent above it. The term deleted seems to have been erd; most probably written by mistake for Airth, in a copy which may have been taken from recitation. The term

Qwenys indeed is apparently in the same hand with the rest of the MS.; but the transcriber, thinking only of erd as signifying the earth, had indulged the idea that it must be an error. As the companions of Wallace were on their way to Dunipace in quest of him, to have gone from Gask to Queens-ferry would have been to take a very circuitous course without any apparent necessity. Airth is the reading of editions 1594, 1620, 1648, and 1673. In Edit. 1714 it is Queens-ferry, as would seem on the authority of the MS.

*In Dundaff mur that sammyn nycht he raid.
Schir Jhone the Grayme, quhilk lord wes of that land,
Ane agyt knycht had maid nane othir band;
Bot purchest pess in rest he mycht bide still, &c.—V. 436.*

The castle of Dundaff, of which there are still some remains, was situated in Stirlingshire, near the source of Carron. This old knight, by some called David, by others John, was proprietor not only of Dundaff, but of the lands of Strathblane and Strathcarron. V. Nimmo's Stirlingshire, p. 358. A fabulous antiquity has been ascribed to this family; it having been asserted that the wall of Antonine vulgarly received the name of Graham's Dike, because in a very early period of our history it was penetrated by a valorous chief, from whom those of this celebrated name had their origin. We have no written evidence of the existence of this family before the reign of David I., when William de Grahame appears as witness to the charter of the foundation of Holyrood-house. Sir J. Dalrymple's Coll. p. 397. From it originated many distinguished families, as that of Montrose, Menteith, Fintry, Balgowan, &c. It was the son of this "agynt knycht" who was the faithful friend of Wallace, and who fell at the battle of Falkirk.

"Quhat worth of him? I pray you graithlye tell."—V. 498.

By misapprehension, in all the printed copies, word; as if the question were, "What intelligence is there concerning him?" But the meaning is, "What became of him?"

*Bot weyle I wait, quhar gret ernyst is in thoct,
It lattis wer in the wysest wys be wrocht.—V. 642.*

i. e. "Where there is great anxiety of mind, it prevents the carrying on of war in the wisest" or "most proper manner."

The meaning is lost in Edit. 1594,—

It lettis weir that in wise men is wrocht.

Edit. 1620.

It letteth war, that in wise men is wrought.

*The trewth I knaw off this, and hyr lynage;
I knew nocht hyr, tharfor I lost a gage.—V. 654.*

That is, "I know the character and descent of this lady; but being a stranger to my former sweetheart, at Perth, I lost my stake." Hyr in v. 655 is opposed to this in the preceding line.

*To the Corhed with out restyng he raid.—V. 724.
At the Corheid full fayne thair wald haif beyne.—V. 816.*

I prefer this to Torhed, Edit. 1714 and Perth. It agrees equally well with the MS.; and it is that of 1594 and of the other old editions. Besides, I find Corheid given as the name of a property in Annandale, belonging to the Johnstouns, Inquis. Return. A. 1608, N. 63; but no such place as Torheid in Dumfries-shire.

In the Knok wood he lewynt all bot thre.—V. 735.

In the parish of Kirkmichael, county of Dumfries, there is "a small fort in the Knock Wood, called Wallace's House, said to have been thrown up by Sir William Wallace, after he had slain Sir Hugh of Moreland and five of his men, at a place still named, from that event, the sax corses, i. e. the six corpses." Stat. Acc. I. 63. It has been ingeniously remarked, that "the sax corses more probably signify six crosses, in allusion to some religious monument so decorated." Kerr's Hist. Bruce, I. 125.

*Ane Kyrk Patryk, that cruell was and keyne,
In Esdail wood that half yer he had beyne.
With Ingliss men he couth nocht weyll accord.—V. 920.*

This, it appears, was the ancestor of the Kirkpatrick of Closeburne, who appear on record so early as the year 1141. Alexander II. grants a confirmation charter of Closeburne to one of this name, A. 1332, which is still in the possession of the family.

Kirkpatrick Sharpe of Hoddam is a descendant of the Closeburne family in the fourth generation; the name of Sharpe having been added, as attached, by the deed of the possessor, to the estate of Hoddam.

*For Jhonstoune send, a man off gud degre:
Secund dochtir forsuth weddyt had he Off Halidays, nere neuo to Wallace.—V. 1050.*

This was the ancestor of the Marquisses of Annandale.

Thai trew that he has found hys name agayne.—MS. V. 1092.

NOTES ON THE SIXTH BOOK.

Than passit was wtass off Feuiryher.—V. 1.

In MS., wotast; Edit. 1594, &c. octaues of Februar; octaves, Edit. 1714.

*—Nympheus, in beldyn off his bow,
With oyle and balm fullfillit off suet odour,
Faunis materis, as thai war wount to gang, &c.—V. 12.*

In Edit. 1594, l. 14, it is thus given,—

Canettis in trace as they wer wont to gang.

In Edit. 1620,—Caneittis, &c.; in that of 1714, Famous. In MS. it may be read either Famus or Faunis. Although I cannot make sense of the line, there seems to be an allusion to the Favns of heathen mythology; as the illiterate Minstrel might allude to the Nymphs in the term Nympheus.

*Begynnyng band, with graith witnes besyd,
Myn auctor sais, scho was his rychtwyss wyff.—V. 47.*

After ver. 72, a whole stanza is found in Edit. 1594 and 1620, which does not appear in MS.

This vther maid wedded ane Squyar wicht,
Quhilk was weil knawin cummin of Balliols blude,
And thair airis be lyne succeeded richt
To Lammintoun and vther landis gude.
Of this mater the richt quha vnderstude,
Heirof as now I will na mair proceid;
Of my sentence schortlie to conclud,
Of vther thing my purpois is to reid.

I hesitate very much as to the authenticity of this stanza. It would not of itself be a sufficient proof that it is wanting in MS., because we meet with similar deficiencies; but it does not tally well with the stanza preceding, which speaks only of a child, that is, most probably, one to the exclusion of others. As little does it agree with the stanza immediately following in the copies which have adopted it; for it begins with these words;—

Rycht gudly men come of this lady ying, &c.

For this supposes either that there was but one young lady referred to, or that she, who is previously mentioned as having been married to Squire Shaw, had no family.

It has been said, that Wallace “left no legitimate issue; but had a natural daughter, who married Sir William Baillie of Hoprig, the progenitor of the Baillies of Lammington.” Caledonia, I. 579. From the reference here made in a foot-note to Crawford’s Hist. Renfrew, 61, and Ruddiman’s Index Dipl. Scotiæ, 121, one might have supposed that these writers had brought some proof of the illegitimacy of this daughter. But it does not appear that the idea of illegitimacy had once entered into the mind of Crawford. He merely says of Wallace: “He left issue only one daughter, who was married to Sir William Baillie of Hoprig,” &c.; adding, “the lands of Elderslee returned to the family of Craigie.” Ruddiman merely says; “Reliquisse unam filiam Willelmus dicitur, quam uxorem duxit D. Willelmus Baillie de Hoprig,” &c.

The only thing that has the semblance of a proof that Wallace was not married, is what follows in the same note. “The estate of Ellerslie went to the Wallaces of Ricardton, as his nearest male heirs.” But their being male heirs might be the reason of their inheriting this property. Besides, it does not seem fully ascertained, whether our illustrious champion was ever personally vested in these lands. It is admitted by the author of Caledonia, in a preceding note, p. 578, that “both Wyntoun and Harry concur in speaking of the great Wallace as the second son of Sir Malcolm.” Lord Hailes says: “He was the younger son of a gentleman in the neighbourhood of Paisley. Such is the opinion generally received.” Annals, I. 245. It must be admitted, however, that Bower, in his continuation of Fordun, says that “Andrew, the elder brother of William, and honoured with the order of knighthood, being guilefully slain by the English, William succeeded to a sufficient patrimony in lands for his state, which he left to be held by his posterity.” Scotchchron. II. Lib. xi. c. 28.

Unless we should suppose the Minstrel determined to lie in the face of evidence, his appeal, in the passage quoted, to his auctor, shews the general belief of the country at the time of his writing, and even during the life of Mr. John Blair, to whom he seems to appeal, that Wallace was married. Now, it is well known that Blair was the bosom friend and the faithful associate of Wallace; and, being a priest, it may reasonably be conjectured that he was the person who celebrated the marriage.

Pinkerton remarks, "that the murder of Wallace's wife, which seems the first cause which excited him to arms," (he means, most probably, after remaining for several months in peace,) "was committed at Lanark by Heselrig or Hislop, governor of the castle" of Lanark, "whom Wallace after slew. See Fordun, XI. 28. Henry the Minstrel in this instance accords with history, and with tradition; a large cave in Cartland Craigs near Lanark, where Henry says that Wallace lurked, being called Wallace's Cave to this day. It is remarkable that Sir D. Dalrymple should have omitted this important circumstance, for which Fordun [Bower, his continuator,] was surely good authority." The Bruce, II. 20, N.

The "important circumstance" referred to must be that of Wallace having slain the governor of the castle of Lanark; for Bower does not say that the reason of this was the murder of the wife of Wallace. But undoubtedly this was a remarkable omission on the part of our learned and accurate annalist.

I do not say, that the account given by Bower of the slaughter of Hesilgir, or, as he calls him, Hesliope, amounts to a proof of the marriage of Wallace, or even certainly intimates the reason of the deed; but it authenticates the fact of Wallace having been at Lanark at this time, and renders it highly probable that he had met with some special excitement. According to the testimony of Bower, it was from this time forward that he openly appeared as the avenger of the wrongs of his country.

The memory of Wallace is still so fresh in the town of Lanark, that the inhabitants point out the place where he was wont to lodge.

"Tradition tells that the house where Wallace resided was at the head of the Castlegate, opposite the church, where a new house has lately been erected. It also acquaints us, that a private vaulted archway led from this house to Cartlane Craigs, but seemingly without the smallest probability." P. Lanark, Stat. Acc. XV. 33.

*And thai oft syss feill causis till him wrocht,
Fra that tyme furth, quhilk mowit [hym sa sar,
That neur in warld out of his mind was brocht.]—V. 78.*

In MS. ver. 79 is;

Fra that tyme furth, quhilk mowit hyr fer mar.

The following line, as printed in the text, which is the concluding one of the stanza, is totally omitted. Most probably it had been wanting in the

MS. from which Ramsay copied; as he seems to have altered the three last words of ver. 79, so as apparently to complete the sense, by transferring the language, which obviously regards Wallace, to his wife. I have given the reading of Edit. 1594. It is the same in Hart's, with a slight change of the orthography.

He salust thaim, as it war bot in scorn;

“Dewgar, gud day, bone Senyhour, and gud morn!”—V. 131.

It is thus given in Edit. 1594 and 1620;

Dew gaird, gude day bon Senyhour, and gude morne.

Fr. Dieu garde, a salutation, God save you.

Gud deyn, dawch Lard, bach lowch banyoch a de.—V. 140.

Gud euin daucht Lord, Ballanch, Banyenochade.—Edit. 1594.

Good euin daucht Lord, Ballanch, Banyenochadie.—Edit. 1620.

As the former salutation consists of a ridiculous mixture of French and Scottish, this seems to be composed of Scottish and Gaelic. Gud deyn is evidently for “Good evening.” Dawch Lard may signify lazy laird. The latter words have been viewed as Gaelic, l'ail, luibh, beannach a De, “if you please, God bless you!” V. Etym. Dict. vo. DAWCH.

Off gret statur, and sum part gray wes he;

The Inglissmen cald him bot Grymmysbé.—V. 311.

Bot Grymmysbé, i.e. by no other name; and this, it appears, was a nickname, from his gray or grim complexion.

The awfull ost, with Eduuard off England,

To Beggar come, with sexté thousand men.—V. 342.

This is the mode in which Ramsay gives the name of Biggar, a village in Lanarkshire. “There is a tradition of a battle having been fought at the east end of the town, between the Scots, under the command of Sir William Wallace, and the English army, who were said to be 60,000 strong, wherein a great slaughter was made on both sides, especially among the latter.” Stat. Acc. P. Biggar, I. 336.

A yong squier was brothir to Fehew.—V. 363.

It is Schir Hew, Edit. 1594 and 1620; the same in that of 1714. But in Edit. 1648, it is, as here, Fehew. In MS. Schyr hew seems to have been first written, and afterwards deleted, the letter s or f being left singly, with a blank before hew. But in ver. 397, it is clearly Fehew; as also in B. VIII. 1010, 1067, 1081, where the fate of this squire is referred to. Whether such a person ever existed, I can find no trace in the Fœdera, or in any history of that period. For the honour of Wallace, it may well be supposed that the whole story is fabulous.

Off Anadderdaill he had thaim led that nycht.—V. 536.

This denotes Annandale. But it seems to be an error of the copier, for Ananderdaill, the more ancient designation of this district, watered by the river Annan.

—*Haistit thaim nocht, bot sobyrly couth fair
Till Turnberny; thar captane was at Ayr
With lord Persie, to tak his consaill hail.*—V. 835.

In Edit. 1594, 1620, 1714, and Perth 1790;

To Turnburie that captane was of Air.

This passage does not seem to have been hitherto given intelligibly, in any one edition. Turnberny has still been viewed as the name of the person who was “captain of Ayr.” But this deprives the passage of any reasonable meaning. How could this supposed person be “captain of Ayr” with Lord Percy, who had the charge of the whole district? Thus, also, these words, “to tak his consaill hail,” according to the construction, apply equally well to Wallace and his troops, as to the supposed “captain of Ayr.” But Turnbery is the name of a place, particularly mentioned in The Bruce, V. Note, III. 829. The line must have been written as given in this edition. At Aire is the reading, Edit. 1648 and 1673; and what has been rendered that, in MS. may be read thar, i.e., their. This shews the reason why the Scots did not hurry on, but went sobyrly to Turnbery. They had learned that their captain, the captain of those who had the defence of “Turnbery castle,” as it is denominated by Barbour, was at Ayr with Lord Percy, to take his advice about the state of public matters.

Apon the morn in Cumno sone thai socht.—V. 846.

This is Cumnock, in Ayrshire, whence two parishes now take their name.

*He will nocht bow to na part off your kyn.
Sufferyt ye ar, I trow yhe may spek weill.*—V. 884.

In Edit. 1594 and 1648;—to na prince of your kin.

Instead of Sufferyt, it is Assouerit, i. e. assured, having security, Edit. 1594 and 1620; and ridiculously, All ordered, Edit. 1648 and 1673. Soueryt is adopted, Edit. 1714. This term is more adapted to the sense than that of MS., as illustrated by the words that follow, expressive of Wallace's strict adherence to any safe conduct given by him.

Wallace said; "Schyr, we jangill bot in wayne."—V. 920.

In MS. it is "nocht in wayne;" which contradicts the obvious design of the language of Wallace. In Edit. 1594 and 1620;

—— we jangill all in vaine.

It seems most probable, that in the more ancient MS. whence Ramsay took his copy, bot had been written indistinctly, and read by Ramsay as no, the contraction for nocht.

NOTES TO THE SEVENTH BOOK.

*Than demyt he, the fals Sotheroun amang,
How thai best mycht the Scottis barownis hang.
For gret bernys that tyme stud in till Ayr,
Wrocht for the king, quhen his luyng wes thar;
Byggyt about, that no man entir mycht,
Bot ane at anys, nor haiff off othir sicht.
Thar ordand thai thir lordis suld be slayne.*—V. 23.

Here the Minstrel introduces his account of the savage transaction ascribed to Edward I., in causing the greatest part of the barons of the west of Scotland to be hanged, without trial, under the semblance of peace; and of the vengeance taken by Wallace, in what has been usually called "the burning of the BARNES OF AYR."

Before examining this account, I may observe, that instead of For gret bernys, as in MS., Edit. 1594 reads, Four greit barnis; and that of 1620, to the same purpose, Foure greit barnes. Perhaps I ought to have adopted this reading, especially as the conjunction for, with which ver. 25 commences, does not seem necessary as marking the connection with the words preceding.

The story of the destruction of these buildings, and of the immediate reason of it, is supported by the universal tradition of the country to this day; and local tradition is often entitled to more regard than is given to it by the fastidiousness of the learned. Whatever allowances it may be necessary to make for subsequent exaggeration, it is not easily conceivable that an event should be connected with a particular spot, during a succession of ages, without some foundation.

Sir D. Dalrymple deems this story "inconsistent with probability." He objects to it, because it is said "that Wallace, accompanied by Sir John Graham, Sir John Menteth, and Alexander Scrymgeour, constable of Dundee, went into the west of Scotland to chastise the men of Galloway, who had espoused the part of the Comyns and of the English;" and that, "on the 28th August 1298, they set fire to some granaries in the neighbourhood of Ayr, and burned the English cantoned in them." Annals, I. 255, N. Here he refers to the relations of Arnold Blair, and to Major, and produces three objections to the narrative. One of these is, that "Comyn, the younger of Badenoch was the only man of the name of Comyn who had any interest in Galloway, and he was at that time of Wallace's party." The other two are; that "Sir John Graham could have no share in the enterprize, for he was killed at Falkirk, 22d July, 1298;" and that "it is not probable that Wallace would have undertaken such an enterprize immediately after the discomfiture at Falkirk." Although it had been said by mistake that Graham and Comyn were present, this could not invalidate the whole relation; for we often find that leading facts are faithfully narrated in a history, when there are considerable mistakes as to the persons said to have been engaged.

But although our annalist refers both to Major and Blair, it is the latter only who mentions either the design of the visit paid to the west of Scotland, or the persons who are said to have been associates in it. The whole of Sir David's reasoning rests on the correctness of a date, and of one given only in the meagre remains ascribed to Arnold Blair. If his date be accurate, the transaction at Ayr, whatever it was, must have taken place thirty-seven days afterwards. Had the learned writer exercised his usual acumen here, had he not been resolved to throw discredit on this part of the history of Wallace; it would have been most natural for him to have supposed that this event was post-dated by Blair. It seems, indeed, to have been long before the battle of Falkirk. Blind Harry narrates the former in his Seventh, the latter in his Eleventh Book. Sir David himself, after pushing the argument from the date given by Blair as far as possible, virtually gives it up, and makes the acknowledgment which he ought to have made before. "I believe," he says, "that this story took its rise from the pillaging of the English quarters, about the time of the treaty of Irvine, n 1297, which, as being an incident of little consequence, I omitted in the course of this history." Here he refers to Hemingford, T. I. p. 123.

Hemingford says, that "many of the Scots and men of Galloway had in hostile manner made prey of their stores, having slain more than five hundred men, with women and children." Whether he means to say that his took place at Ayr, or at Irvine, seems doubtful. But here, I think, we have the nucleus of the story. The barns, according to the diction of Blind Harry, seem to have been merely "the English quarters," erected by order of Edward for the accommodation of his troops. Although denominated arns by the Minstrel, and horreas by Arnold Blair, both writers seem to have used these terms with great latitude, as equivalent to what are now called barracks. It is rather surprising, that our learned annalist should view the loss of upwards of five hundred men, besides women and children, with that of their property, "as an incident of little consequence," in a great national struggle.

Major gives nearly the same account with that of Blair. Speaking of Wallace, he says: "Anglorum insignes viros apud horrea Aerie residentes nocte incendit, et qui a voraci, flamma euaserunt ejus mucrone occuberunt." Fol. LXX.

There is also far more unquestionable evidence as to the cause of this severe retaliation than is generally supposed. Lord Hailes has still quoted Barbour as an historian of undoubted veracity. Speaking of Crystal of Seton, he says:—

It wes gret sorow sekyrly,
That so worthy persoune as he
Suld on sic maner hangyt be.
Thusgate endyt his worthynes.
And off Crauford als Schyr Ranald wes,
And Schyr Bryce als the Blar,
Hangyt in till a berne in Ar.

The Bruce, III. 260. V. Note.

This tallies very well with the account given by the Minstrel.

*Four thousand haill that nycht was in till Ayr.
In gret bernys, biggyt with out the toun,
The justice lay, with mony bald barroun.*

Wallace, VII. 334.

The testimony of the Complaynt of Scotland, a well known national work, written A. 1548, concurs. Speaking of the king of England, the writer says:

Ony of you that consentis til his fals conques of your cuntre, ye sal be recompenssit as your forbears var at the blac perliament at the bernis of Ayre, quhen kyng Eduard maid ane conuocatione of al the nobillis of Scotland at the toune of Ayre, vndir colour of faitht and concord, quha comperit at his instance, nocht heffand suspitione of his tresonabil consait. Than thai beand in his subiectione vndir colour of familiarite, he gart hang, cruelly and dishonestly, to the nummer of sexten scoir of the maist nobillis of the cuntre, tua and tua ouer ane balk, the quhilk sextene scoir var cause that the Inglismen conquest sa far vithtin your cuntre." Compl. Scotl. p. 144.

The author refers to this as a fact universally acknowledged among his countrymen, although, it must be recollected, no edition of the Life of Wallace was printed for more than twenty years after this work was written. He introduces it again, as a proof of treachery and cruelty, which still continued to excite national feeling.

"Doubtles thai that ar participant of the cruel inuasione of Inglis men contrar thar natyue cuntre, ther craggis sal be put in ane mair strait yoik nor the Samnetes did to the Romans, as kyng Eduard did til Scottis men at the blac parlament at the bernis of Ayr, quhen he gart put the craggis of sexten scoir in faldomis of cordis, tua and tua, ouer ane balk, of the maist principal of them," &c. Ibid. p. 159, 160.

*Schir Ranald fyrst, to mak fewté for his land,
The knycht, went in, and wald na langar stand.—
Schyr Bryss the Blayr next with his eyne in past;
On to the ded thai haistyt him full fast.—V. 205.*

Schir Ranald is Sir Reginald Craufurd of Loudoun, maternal uncle to Wallace. He was heritable sheriff of the county of Ayr. The granddaughter, the heiress of the property, was married to Sir Duncan Campbell, the son of Sir Donald of Redcastle, from whom the noble family of Loudoun is descended. Reginaldus de Craveford is one of the persons chosen on the part of Robert Bruce to judge between him and John Baliol, as to their respective claims, A. 1292. V. Fœdera, II. 555. But whether this was the Ranald here mentioned, or his father, who was then alive, is doubtful; because our author gives the name of Ranald to his father, while others call him Hugh. John and Hugh de Craufurd are mentioned in two rescripts of Edward I., as barons received under his protection, A. 1255. Ibid. I. 559. 567.

Schyr Bryss the Blayr was the ancestor of the Blairs of that ilk in Ayrshire. There was a Bryce Blair of Blair in the seventeenth century; whence it appears that this ancient christian name was retained in the family. V. Craufurd's Renfrew, p. 203. Nisbet, I. 211.

It deserves observation, that these are the two persons particularly named by Barbour, among those who suffered that cruel martyrdom for liberty which was inflicted by the English tyrant. Syr Brice is the reading of Edit. 1594 and 1620: and I am now convinced that the name ought to have stood Bryce in the Bruce, B. III. ver. 265; as it is corrected in the extract made in the preceding Note. But I was misled by the appearance of the letter y in the MS., which differs so much from its usual form, as at first view to resemble u.

Sir D. Dalrymple remarks; "Barbour says that Sir Brice Blair was executed in company with Sir Reginald Crawford; but he erroneously supposes this to have happened in Scotland." Ann. II. 19, N. Kerr follows him in this assertion. Hist. Bruce, I. 284.

But our worthy senator is so averse to give credit to anything that tends to confirm what he calls "the famous story of the Barns of Air," that he prefers the single testimony of Matthew of Westminster to that of Barbour; not to mention the later but concurrent one of the Minstrel. The English historian says that Reginald de Crawford, with Thomas and Alexander de Brus, "brothers of the pseudo-king," having been defeated and taken prisoners, were presented to Edward at Carlisle, "wounded and half-dead, and that he immediately ordered their execution;" and that "to this their heads bare witness, being placed on the castle and gates" of that city. Hist. p. 458.

It is surprising, however, that the difference of the dates did not make Sir David hesitate to oppose the united testimony of our oldest Scottish writers on this point; especially as the account given by Matthew of Westminster is, by his own confession, at variance with that of Robert of Langtoft. The butchery at Ayr is said to have taken place, A. 1298; this at Carlisle in the year 1306-7, about nine years after. The fact seems to be, that the Reginald he refers to was the son of the other Reginald who had suffered in "the blac parliament" at Ayr. It was he who left a daughter, his only child and heir, who, as is mentioned above, was married to Sir Duncan Campbell. V. Nisbet's Ragm. Roll. p. 18.

*The third entrit, that peté was for thy,
A gentill knycht, Schyr Neill off Mungumry.*—V. 213.

Worthi occurs in the line; but this word being under-dotted, gentill appears on the margin. The latter is the reading of Edit. 1594, and of 1620. This person seems to have been one of the family now represented by the Earl of Eglinton. One of this family had the same christian name in the reign of James IV. V. Nisbet, I. 375.

*Kerlé turnyt with his mastir agayne,
Kneland and Byrd, that mekill war off mayne.*—V. 249.

All the editions have Boyd. It appears, however, from ver. 287, that Boyd was left in the town:

*'Der wicht,' he said, 'der God, sen at thou knew
'Gud Robert Boid, quhar at thou can him se.'*

Besides, the name Byrd occurs B. VIII. 233, where the person thus denominated is conjoined with Boyd:

Boyd, Bercla, Byrd, and Lauder, that was wycht.

In Edit. 1594, 1620, and 1648, this is Baird, apparently the ancestor of the Bairds of Newbyth, descended from Baird of Auchmedden, a very ancient family. To this family, as proprietors in Lanarkshire, Fergus, John, and Robert Bard, mentioned in Ragman Roll, are supposed to have belonged. V. Nisbet's Rem. p. 42. 46. Robert de Boyd was ancestor of the family of Kilmarnock.

*At the Roddis thai mak full mony ane,
Quhilk worthy ar, thocht landis haiff thai nane.*—V. 403.

This refers to the knights of St. John then made at Rhodes.

*In all the world na grettar payne mycht be,
Than thai with in, insufferit sor to duell, &c.*—V. 442.

This, if not from O. Fr. ensuairé, wound up, lapt in, may be equivalent to ensured; as the Minstrel uses sufferance for soverance or assurance.

Till Crage Vuyn with thre hundir he yeid.—V. 649.

To Craghumyre, Edit. 1594, 1620, 1648, and 1673. Cragunyn, 1714; Crage Vyum, Edit. Perth. As this is connected with Lochow, it may be Crage Ewan in Lochdochart, as laid down in Bleau's Atlas.

Fast vpon Aviss that was bathe depe and braid.—V. 654.

This is obviously the word in MS. But I suspect that it is an error for Awfe, which occurs in Edit. 1594, 1620, 1648, and 1673. It is undoubtedly the river Awe that is meant, whence the name of Locharwe or Lochow.

*Dunkan off Lorn his leyff at Wallace ast;
On Makfadyane with worthi men he past.*—V. 861.

In MS. it is lyff, apparently denoting life, which would render the passage self-contradictory. In Edit. 1594 and 1620, leive; 1648, leave. The meaning is; "Duncan asked permission of Wallace to pursue Macfadyane."

Of nobill blud, and als haille ancestré.—V. 893.

The term is not ancestré in MS. but may be read imcrasé, intrasé, uncrasé, or untrasé. But as neither of these give any known sense, I have retained the word which occurs in all the editions. The only word that seems to have any resemblance is O. Fr. entraisser (s'), s'animer, s'exciter; Gl. Roquefort.

Tharfor I will bot lychtly ryn that cace.—V. 918.

Edit. 1594, rais; i. e. as in Edit. 1648, race; which is a more natural mode of expression.

A trew squier, quhilk Rwan hecht be nayme.—V. 1009.

Ruthuen, Edit. 1594, i. e. Ruthven, the ancestor of the unfortunate family of Gowrie. As it is said that Wallace made him captain and hereditary sheriff of Perth, it deserves observation that his descendants for several generations seem almost exclusively to have possessed authority in that town. V. Cant's Hist. Perth, vol. II.

At Crummadé feill Inglissmen thai slew.—V. 1085.

This is Cromartie, Edit. 1594, &c.

*Hew Kertyngayme the wantgard ledis he,
With twenty thousand off likly men to se.*—V. 1171.

This refers to the battle of Stirling-bridge. He is called Kirkinghame in editions. But the person meant was Cressingham, an ecclesiastic, who was the king's treasurer, "a pompous and haughty man," says Hemingford, who hurried on the battle in opposition to the counsel of Lundie and others. Hist. p. 118. 127. 129.

*In Jedwort wod for saiffgard he had beyne.—
Jedwort thai tuk; and Ruwan lewit he,
At Wallace will captane off it to be.*—V. 1277. 1289.

It is Jedbrugh in Edit. 1594 and 1620. The name of this place assumes a great variety of forms; Gedword, Geddeworde, Gedewrde, Geddewerde, Gedworth, Gedeworth, Gedewurth, Gedewrze; Jedworth, Jedwurth, Jed- word, Jedwort, Jedewrth, Jedwod, Jeddeburch. V. Macpherson's Geogr. Illustr. The latter is merely the modern name. The vulgar, and indeed almost universal, pronunciation, q. Jethart, points out what was the original designation. Here were two monasteries, one of them founded so late as A. 1513; the other was established in the year 1147. Another place, not far distant, retains the name of Auld Jedworth. According to Simeon of Durham, these two Jedworths were built by Ecgred, bishop of Lindisfarn, about the year 840. Dec. Script. 13. 28. 119. 121. Simeon writes it Geddeword.

The name, it has been conjectured, might be traced to the Gadeni, a tribe who anciently inhabited the whole tract of country that lies between Northumberland and the river Tiviot. Stat. Acc. I. 1. But the Gadeni have been placed, with far more probability, in Dunbartonshire. V. Pinkerton's Enquiry, I. p. 35. 224. 320. It is obvious, that the name of the place is formed from that of the stream, which probably claims a British origin. Gwyth signifies a channel or drain. But whatever might be the origin of Ged, or Jed, Ecgred having chosen this river as the seat of his mansion, had given it a name by adding the Saxon term weorth, or worth, denoting a possession, or hamlet; Fundus, prædium; vicus; Lye. In the same manner the names of many places in England have been formed; as Wortham, Worthington, Wandesworth, Kenelworth, &c. Old German wart, and Alemannic werts, signify locus.

NOTES ON THE EIGHTH BOOK.

- “ *He had sic message seyldyn seyne,

 “ Her is gret faute off a gud prince or kyng.
 “ That kyng off Kyll I can nocht wudirstand;
 “ Off him I held neuir a fur off land.”—V. 18.*

That Corspatrick, Earl of Dunbar, used this provoking language, appears highly probable; as it is certain from other documents that, “when summoned by the guardian of Scotland, to attend a convention at Perth,” he “contemptuously refused. Blind Harrie is supported by the Tower Records.” Caledonia, II. 246.

I need scarcely say, that the earl had given Wallace this contemptuous designation, as being a native of the district of Kyle in Ayrshire.

“ *In lyff or dede, in faith, him sall we haiff,
 “ Or ger him grant quhom he haldis for his lord;
 “ Or ellis war schaym in story to racord.”—V. 44.*

In MS. schapin; but undoubtedly from inadvertency. It had perhaps been written schaym.

Edit. 1594,—Cokholme; followed by 1620, and other editions. But Macpherson says that Gorkhelm, here mentioned, is “in Etrik forest.” Geogr. Illustr.

*Was nayne sa strang, that gat off him a strak,
 Eftir agayne maid neuir a Scot to waik.*—V. 285.

In Edit. 1594, wraik, i. e. wreck. Perhaps this is the true reading. As in MS., it may signify, “to be deficient,” or “wanting,” as used for waik. Here we have the double negative, common in Scottish.

*This ryall ost, but restyng, furth thai rid,
 Till Browis feild, &c.*—V. 493.

In Edit. 1594, Brokis feild; Edit. 1648, Browes. D. Macpherson refers to Browis-feld as in Teviotdale. Geogr. Illustr.

*Gud Lundy than till hym he callit thar,
 And Hew the Hay, off Louchowort was ayr.*—V. 581.

“Richard de Lundie, Lundin, or London, was a powerful baron in the shire of Fife. He brought five hundred men to Wallace’s aid in the encounter with Macfadyan near Craigmare, in Perthshire.—Lundie, having become dissatisfied with some of the Scottish leaders, was on the side of the English in the battle of Stirling Bridge, September 11, 1297.

“In a charter by King William the Lion to the town of Perth, 1210, one of the witnesses is Robert de London, the king’s son. This natural son of the king had married the heiress of Lundin in Fife, and from her lands took his surname. Richard was their lineal descendant.

“In 1679, the family of Lundie, because of their descent, obtained liberty to bear the royal arms of Scotland. Afterwards the heiress married John Drummond, Earl of Melfort,” second son of James, Earl of Perth. This family is now represented by the Hon. R. P. Burrel Drummond of Perth.

I have extracted the greatest part of this note from those added to the Perth Edit. of Wallace, by my worthy friend the late Reverend James Scott of Perth, well known as an accurate and indefatigable antiquary. V. also Nisbet, I. p. 64. 107.

Hew the Hay seems to be the same person who afterwards married a sister of King Robert the Bruce, the widow of Laurence Lord Abernethy. He was descended from William Hay of Errol, and was ancestor to the family of Tweeddale. V. Nisbet, I. 182. He is designed Hay of Locharret, or Lochquharret, county of Edinburgh. The ancient orthography was Lochuswerword, Locherworn. Sir James Dalrymple's Coll. Pref. 76 ; also Locherward, Ind. Chart. I. 26,—16. 9. 13.

*All Mydlame land thai brynt wp in a fyr,
Brak parkis down, distroyit all the schyr.*—V. 945.

In MS. mydlen. This I have explained as signifying middle, or denoting lands lying in the interior of a county or district. V. Etym. Dict. But I have here adopted the reading of Edit. 1594. Wallace being represented as at this time in Yorkshire, this is probably the honour or town of Middleham in the northern part of this county. In Bleau's Atlas, it is written Midlam. It afterwards belonged to the Nevilles, who were Earls of Richmond.

*Amang noblis gyff euyr ony thar was,
So lang throw force in England lay on cass,
Sen Brutus deit, but battaill, bot Wallace.*—V. 962.

In editions Brutus : i. e. he who is called the Brute.

*Than had we nayn bot ladyis to repruff.
That sall he nocht, be God that is abuff.
Vpon women I will na wer begyn.*—V. 1437.

In Edit. 1594, ver. 1438 is thus given ;

That sall not be, be God that sitis abufe.

This might at first view seem to correspond better with the preceding line, as signifying the determination of Wallace to make no retaliation on the female sex for the treachery of men ; but as the author perhaps refers back to what is said in v. 1435, as to the king breaking any truce, made by women, as soon as he found it convenient, and then proceeds to declare that he would make no war on them, I have retained the verse as it is in MS. Thus, it expresses a determination that Edward should have no opportunity of acting so treacherous a part.

*A harrold went, in all the haist he may,
Till Tawbane waill, quhar at the Scottis lay.*—V. 1497.

In Edit. 1594, Auane. The place is the same mentioned before, v. 1170, Sanct Awbarwnys, i. e. St Albans. If we might suppose the Tantonie bell to be a corruption of “St Antony’s bell,” we could easily account for the introduction of the letter T here, as an abbreviation for Sanct.

*We ask her als, be wertu off this band,
Our ayris, our king, be wrang led off Scotland.*—V. 1517.

In Edit. 1594;—

Our awin young king, be wrang led fra Scotland.

Ayris is the word in MS. This may be an erratum for ayr, in singular, as Bruce is thus designed, v. 1342—our ayr, i.e. “heir of our kingdom.” But I have retained it in plural, as by ayris the Minstrel might not only mean the king, but the heirs of noble families, then kept prisoners in England; as Randell, Lorn, Bowehane, &c. mentioned in connexion.

*In the Leynhouss a quhyll he maid repayr—
Twa monethis still he duelt in Dunbertane.*—V. 1595. 1599.

In Edit. 1594,—Lenox, vulgarly pronounced Lenness. The mention of Dunbertane immediately after shows that this district is meant. V. Note on the Bruce, B. II. 40.

His purpos was to se the king off France.—V. 1696.

It is undoubtedly a problematical question, whether Wallace ever was in FRANCE. Some, among whom we must reckon our historian Major, think that this is improbable. The Minstrel, it must be acknowledged, has interspersed so much fable in his narrative, as to bring discredit even on what might otherwise have been readily admitted as fact. It seems unlikely that Wallace should have left his native country twice; and the exploits ascribed to him while in France must generally be rejected, especially those said to have been performed by him in Guienne; because it is incredible that, if he had done so much injury to the English in their recent conquests there, not the slightest notice should have been taken of this by any of their historians.

But I do not see the same reason for deeming it improbable that he should ever have been in France.

1. From the great intercourse between Scotland and France, as well as from the great celebrity of the achievements of our hero, it seems very natural to suppose that Philip King of France should express an earnest desire to see him, and even send him an invitation to this purpose; and not less so, that while his hands were tied up, during a truce or peace with Edward, he should take the opportunity of gratifying his curiosity, in visiting that kingdom to which so many of his countrymen had been accustomed to resort, as one that had been long in a state of amity and alliance with their own. He might be the more disposed to a temporary change of place, from the envy which his valorous deeds had excited among the nobles of Scotland.

2. The story concerning the capture of Sir Thomas Charteris of Longueville is in so far supported by the known fact that there was a race of this name at Kinfauns; and that a two-handed sword is still shown in the castle of Kinfauns, which tradition has uniformly ascribed to this Longueville. Henry Adamson, in his Muse's Threnodie, speaking of this castle, describes it as the place,—

—————which famous Longoveil
Sometime did hold; whose ancient sword of steele
Remaines unto this day, and of that land
Is chiefest evident.— Book VI. p. 156.

3. In the Scotichronicon it is said, that “after the battle of Roslin, Wallace, having gone on board a ship, sought to France;” that “he acquired great fame there from the dangers to which he had been exposed, not only from pirates while at sea, but afterwards from the English in France; and that this is attested by certain songs in France as well as in Scotland.” The author goes so far as to assert, that Philip had applied to Edward for a truce between him and the Scots, that Philip might have a pretence for retaining Wallace for some time longer in France. Lib. XI. c. 34. MSS. Cupr. et Perth.

4. It is worthy of remark, that Major, after having mustered up several arguments against the probability of Wallace having ever been in France, at once seems to throw them all aside as of little weight, and in conclusion speaks like a man who had hitherto reasoned against his own secret convictions, acknowledging that he is unwilling expressly to deny that Wallace had been there. He closes the account with these remarkable words: Nolo tamen ob has ratiuncululas constanter inficias ire ipsum oras Galliaë visitasse. Hist. Fol. LXXIV, a.

It would appear most probable, that the Charterises of Amisfield, now represented by the Earl of Wemyss and March, were connected with those of Kinfauns; from the similarity of their armorial bearings, if not also from their possession of Elcho, in the immediate vicinity of the latter. There was, however, one family of rank of this name settled in Scotland before the time assigned for the arrival of Longueville. Andrew de Charteris, who is said to have been the ancestor of the Amisfield family, swore fealty to Edward, A. 1296, and William de Charteris in 1306. V. Nisbet, Rem. Ragm. Roll, II. 23. Fœdera, II. 1015.

—Erest in weyr to Sanct Jhonstoun couth fair.—V. 1697.

Neirest but weir, &c. Edit. 1594. This makes nonsense of the passage, and has been an early alteration. Wallace did not go nearest to Perth, but went to the town itself. The meaning must be, "In the earliest part of spring." V. VEIR, Etym. Dict.

NOTES ON THE NINTH BOOK.

The barge, be that, with a full werlik far, &c.—V. 136.
In Edit. 1594, it is;

The barge began with ane full weirlyke fair.

The language is defective as in MS. But began is scarcely the term that we could suppose the Minstrel to use. He would more probably have said;

The barge, be that, com with full werlik far.

I have therefore adhered to the reading of MS. borrowing the word in brackets in the next verse, from the edition quoted above.

"For my trespas I wald mak sum ramed."
Wallace wist weyll, thocht he war brocht to ded;
And off his lyff sum reskew mycht he mak.—V. 153.

The passage, as here given from the MS., is evidently deficient in sense. It is given more intelligibly in Edit. 1594.

For my trespas I wald mak sum remeid,
Monie saikles I haue gart put to deide.
Wallace wist weill, thocht he to deith was brocht,
Fra thame to chaip on na wyse nicht he nocht.
And of his lyfe sum reskew nicht he mak,
Ane better purpois syne sone than can he tak.

*Ane Skelton than kept the careage,
A Brankstewat that was his heretage.*—V. 625. MS.

In Edit. 1594, and 1648;

All Brankistnahait hail, that was his heritage.

A Brankstewat seems an error for All Brankstewat. Both in MS. and in editions, the name has been evidently corrupted. I suspect that it ought to be Branthwaite. For the Skeltons were a family of considerable antiquity in Cumberland. John de Skelton was knight of the shire in the reign of Edward II. Armathwaite was the designation of their property. But Richard Skelton, sheriff of Cumberland, in the reign of Henry VI., lived at Branthwaite. Brankistnahait, and Brankistewat, have been originally Brankisthwaite. Thwaite forms the termination of many local names in the north of England. Grose explains it; "The shelving part of the side of a mountain." Hutchinson's account corresponds: "Down the river of Dudden stands the manor of Thwaites, between the river and the mountains, and the ancient seat of Joseph Thwaites of Ulnerigg, Esq., and the place being a stony mountainous country, is not everywhere altogether fit for tillage, meadow, and pasture. But in several parts and pieces, as they are marked by nature, differing in form and quality of soil, or otherwise, by the inhabitants inclosed from the barren wastes of the fells; such pieces of land are now, and were of old, called Thwaites in most places of the shire, sometimes with addition of their quality, as Brackenthwaite, of ferns; Swithwaite, of rushes; Stonythwaite, of stones; Brentwaite, of its steepness; Brunthwaite, of burnt with the sun, &c." Hist. of Cumberland, I. 531, 532. 494.

I do not find any similar term in AS. conveying the idea of a stony place. The signification has perhaps been originally more general, as denoting any place separated from another, as are those "inclosed from wastes;" from thweot-an, excindere, q. "a place cut off" from another.

*A squier Guthré amang thaim ordand thai,
To warn Wallace in all the haist he may.
Out off Arbroth he passit to the se.*—V. 647.

This is understood as referring to the ancestor of the Guthries of Guthrie; and it is a strong presumption of the justness of the idea, that Arbroath is the harbour most contiguous to the seat of this ancient family. He is afterwards in different passages designed "the gud Guthré," a character which, from all that I have seen, appears to have descended to his posterity.

In Barnan wod he had his luyng maid.—V. 692.

Birname, Edit. 1594. This is evidently Birname wood, that has derived such celebrity from its connection with the history of Macbeth.

“The hill of Birnam, rendered classic ground by the magic pen of Shakespeare, rises with a rude and striking magnificence to an elevation higher than that of the Sidla hills in Forfarshire, opposite to it. A round mount at the bottom of Birnam hill in the south-east, is worthy of remark. It is faced with steep oaks [q. rocks?] except for a few yards where it was fortified by art. This eminence has been known for time immemorial, by the names of Court-hill, and Duncan’s-hill, and is believed to have been on some occasions occupied by the unfortunate Scottish king of that name. It looks full in the face, at the distance of about twelve miles, the celebrated Dunsinan-hill, the seat and fortress of Macbeth.” Stat. Acc. VII. 355. 374.

Fersly thai fled, as fyr dois out off flynt.—V. 746.

The reading in MS. is, Freschly thai ferd. But to this no meaning can be attached. I have therefore given it as in the editions. But I suspect that there has been some corruption of the original here, as fled is introduced in the next line.

Till Ardargan he drew him prewaly.—V. 768.

This, I suppose, must be the place now called Ardargie, in the Ochil Hills, parish of Forgandenny, Perthshire.

*Apon the morn, with fystene hundreth men,
Till Black Irnsyde his gydys couth them ken.*—V. 785.

“All round this monastery [Lindores, Fife,] was Earn-side-wood, where Wallace defeated the English. It was anciently four miles in length, and three in breadth; now there is nothing but some few shrubs to the east of the abbey.” Sibbald’s Hist. Fife, P. iv. sect. 9. p. 406.

It is added in a note: “Of this wood no vestige remains. The place where it is said to have grown lies along the shore of the Frith, a considerable way below the junction of the Tay and the Earn. The name seems to countenance the tradition, that the Earn alone once flowed by the bottom of the hills of Fife, and did not unite for several miles below this with the Tay, whose course was then along the foot of the hills, forming the northern boundary of the Carse of Gowrie, which lying thus betwixt two rivers, was frequently overflowed, and only became habitable, when, in a great inundation, the Tay burst into the Earn, where they now join."

In A. Blair's Relationes, this battle is said to have been fought on the 12th of June 1298.

*Rycht weyll I wait, weschell is lewynt nayn,
Fra the Wood hawyn, to the ferry cald Aran.—V. 805.*

Macpherson thinks that this is perhaps the same with Portnebaryan, mentioned by Wyntoun, q. "the haven of bread;" arran signifying bread in Gaelic, and barra in Welsh, Cornish, and Armoric. V. Geogr. Illustrations. Shall we add another supposition,—that Portnebaryan had been the ancient name of Port-on-craigs, a ferry to the eastward of Woodhaven. The latter still retains its ancient name. It lies opposite to Dundee.

—In that jorney othir to wyn or end.—V. 1048.

The whole passage to ver. 1057, Thai worthi Scottis, &c. is wanting in Edit. 1594, and subsequent editions. Both verses, 1049 and 1057, beginning in a similar manner, the intermediate ones must have been overlooked by some transcriber for the press. In MS. ver. 1050 is; The cruell strakis, &c. But as the sense requires it, I have substituted with, as in Edit. 1714, followed by that of Perth, 1790.

*The lord Cwmyn, that erll off Bouchane was,
For auld inwvy he wald [let] na man pass
That he mycht let, in gud Wallace supplé.—V. 1253.*

According to Henry, his son John Comyn, younger of Badenoch, served himself heir to this envy; as he attributes to him, in a special manner, the loss of the battle of Falkirk. But the account which he gives of this battle disagrees with that of the English writers, who give not the slightest hint of such variance among the chieftains, as, had it really taken place, could not have been totally unknown to their opponents.

William, one of this family, was Chancellor to King David I., and in the year 1140, by the grant of the Empress Maud, was made Bishop of Durham. Crawford's Officers, p. 7. So powerful did it become, that in the reign of Alexander III. there were three earls and one lord of this name, besides thirty knights of landed property. Nisbet, I. 367.

I need scarcely say that Comyn was competitor with the elder Bruce for the crown, as boasting the same blood. This ancient and honourable family is now represented by Sir William Cumyn Gordon, of Altyre and Gordons-town, Baronet.

*A cruell captane intill Erth duelt thar,
In Ingland born, and hecht Thomlyn off Wayr.—V. 1283.*

It is Erth also in Edit. 1594; Airth in that of 1620, and those of a later age.

“The tower at Airth was built before Sir William Wallace’s time. This tower is in good repair; it makes part of the house of Airth, and bears the name of Wallace’s Tower.” Stat. Acc. III. 493, 494.

Alexander de Airth, or Erth, is one of those whose names are recorded in the Ragman Roll. V. Nisbet, Rem. p. 23.

“The Erths of that ilk were once a very considerable family in this shire, being proprietors of Airth, Elphingstone, Carnock, and Plean. We find Adam de Erth mentioned among the commissioners who were appointed, in 1248, to ratify an agreement with England, concerning the regulations called the Border-laws. Bernard de Erth, who was probably a son of this Adam, married before 1271, one of the three daughters and co-heiresses of Finlaus de Campsie, a cadet of the family of Lennox.” Nimmo’s Stirlingshire, p. 516, 517. In the reign of James I. the eldest daughter of William Airth married “a son of the ancient family of Clackmannan, who thereupon came into possession of the lands of Airth. The family of Erth, like others, took their surname from their lands; but it is now quite extinct in this country.” Ibid.

*Than to Faslan the worthy Scottis can pass,
Quhar erll Malcom was bidand at defence.—V. 1518.*

In editions it is Falkland. But this being so distant from the earl’s district, and from Dunbarton, where Wallace was immediately before, it must be an error. Macpherson places Faslan near the head of the Gairloch, above Roseneath, Dunbartonshire. V. Hist. Map of Scotl. In the passage, ver. 1514, Wallace and his party are said indeed to take their course thither from Roseneath, now a well known seat of the noble family of Argyle.

*And eftir sone thar wncle couth thaim ta,
Gud Robert Keth, had thaim fra Glaskow toun;
Atour the se in Frans he maid thaim boun.—V. 1558.*

This exactly tallies with the account given by Godscroft. V. p. 20.

*A mariage als thai gert ordane him till,
The lady Ferres.—V. 1566.*

In editions Ferres. On this head Godscroft says; “His next wife was an English lady called Ferrar, or Ferrais, of which name we find the Earls of Darbie to have been in the days of King Henry the Third." Hist. Dougl. p. 16. In the Fœdera they are designed De Ferrariis.

The Sanchar was a castell fayr and strang.—V. 1577.

Sanguhair, Edit. 1594. But here, and in the rest of the narrative, I have replaced what must have been the original term, as in Edit. 1620 and 1648, Sanguhair. "The wattyр of Craw," ver. 1606, must be the rivulet now called Crawick, which falls into the Nith. V. Stat. Acc. VI. 451. There we are informed, that "the old castle of Sanguhair had been a building of considerable magnitude and extent;" and that "it is said to have been for some time in the possession of the English in the reign of Edward I., and to have been recaptured by Sir William Douglas," as is here related. Ibid. p. 460, N.

And Fhonstoun als, that duelt in [to] Housdaill.—V. 1790.

This, in editions, is rendered Eskdaill. But this is undoubtedly a mistake. Housdaill is evidently the asperated pronunciation of the name of that district called Eusdaill, as being watered by the river Erwes, which joins the Esk at Langholm. V. Bleau's Atlas, p. 47. This seems to have been the ancestor of the Marquisses of Annandale.

*Thir thre capdanis he stekit in that stound,
Off Durisdeyr, Enoch, and Tybur mur.*—V. 1806.

"The vestiges of Tiber's castle, which has been a large building, are to be seen on the banks of the Nith. A small part of the wall next the river remains. Fosses are visible, and some entrenchments where it was most accessible. It is supposed that the barony of Tiber is named from Tiber, or Tiberius. There is a Roman encampment too. The English had a garrison in this castle in the time of Sir William Wallace, who took it by surprise." Stat. Acc. P. of Penpont, I. 209.

NOTES ON THE TENTH BOOK.

*In till a playn set tentis and palyon,
South hald Fawkyrk.*—V. 89.

I have hesitated whether this be not an erratum for half or half, frequently used by our old writers in the sense of quarter; but have retained the term as in MS. Edit. 1594 has,—

South the Faukirk, &c.

If hald be the original term, it may lead us to the sense of the common termination in vulgar language, as in Southilt, Wessilt. V. EASSILT, Etym. Dict. Thus it might be resolved, "Hald," or hold, "to the south of Falkirk." Isl. halld-a signifies, viam dirigere; Haldorsoni Lex.

The lauch way till Enrawyn thai ryd.—V. 622.

Innerauyn, Edit. 1594; Inneravin, Edit. 1648. More properly Inver-avon, a village near the mouth of the river Avon in Stirlingshire, a little to the south of Kinneil. V. Nimmo's Map of Stirlingshire. The rhyme requires that this should be pronounced as a word of four syllables.

For weill thai wyst, that it was Jhon off Lyn, Scottis to slay, he said, it was no syn.—V. 803.

It is not improbable that there might be, in that age, some dreaded English pirate, denominated perhaps from Lynne in Norfolk, especially as it is said that his ship was not seen by Wallace and his companions till they were opposite to the mouth of the Humber. But I have not met with any historical traces of him.

*The Roman [bukis] that than was in Scotland,
He gart be brocht to scham, quhar thai thaim fand;
And, but radem, thai brynt thaim thar ilkan;
Salysbery oyss our clerkis than has tane.*—V. 1003.

The Roman bukes that then war in Scotland,
He gart thame beir to cume quhar thai thaim fand, &c.—Edit. 1594.

The Roman bookes, &c.

Hee gart them beare to Scone where they them fand.—Edit. 1620.

Although the essential term, bukis, has been omitted by Ramsay, the MS. alone makes sense of the passage. Hart's emendation is equal in absurdity with the reading of Edit. 1594. By the Salysbery oyss, I need scarcely say, those missals are meant which were formed secundum usum Sarisburiensem. This agrees with the account given by Bellenden.

"He brint all the Cronikles of Scotland, with all maner of bukis als weill of deuyne seruyce as of othir materis; to that fyne that the memorye of Scottis suld peris. He gart the Scottis wryte bukis efter the use of Sarum, and constranit thaym to say efter that use." Cronikle, Fol. CCIX, a. Libros sacros Anglico ritu conscribi jussit. Boeth.

*Schir Jhon Ramsay and Rowan than fled north,
To thair cusyng that lord was off Fyllorth.
Quhilk past with thaim throw Murray landis rycht;
So fand thair a gentill worthi knyght
At Climace hecht, full cruell ay had beyn,
And fayndyt weill amang his enemys keyn.—V. 1021.
The knyght Climés off Ross com sodeynly
In Murray land with thair gud chewalry.—B. XI. v. 743.*

It appears that this knight belonged to the county of Ross; and it has been conjectured that he was a son or brother of the Earl of Ross, who was at this time a prisoner in England. V. Notes to Perth Edit. p. 25, 26. In Edit. 1594 and 1620, it is in both places Clement.

NOTES ON THE ELEVENTH BOOK.

A mow off corn he bygit thaim about.—V. 339.

This is given according to Edit. 1594, &c. In MS. it is gyhyt. But this must certainly be an error; unless we should suppose it to be from AS. gehyd, "tectus, abditus, absconditus, hid, hidden, covered." Somner.

*Fra Butler had apon gud Wallace seyn,
Through auld malice he wox ner wod for teyn.—V. 401.*

We have here one proof, among many in our old national works, of the danger of editors rashly venturing to change the language. In Edit. 1594, it is;—

Fra Butteller had on feild gude Wallace seyne, &c.

The editor had supposed that seyn apon, being an obsolete phrase in his time, must of necessity be improper. He had not known that it is very ancient, being pure Anglo-Saxon. The verb is used in a neuter sense; and seyn apon signifies beheld, looked upon. Thus on se-on is, intueri, aspicere in. On that wundor seon; Istud miraculum intueri.

*Quhen thai com ner, a nobill knycht it was,
The quhilk to name hecht Elyss off Dundass.—V. 533.*

This is the ancestor of the ancient house of Dundas of that ilk. Helias, or as here written Elyss, seems to have been a common name in this family. The first on record is Helias, son of Uchtred, who got the lands of Dundas, A. 1124, in the reign of Alexander I. One of the same christian name appears as witness to a charter in the reign of Alexander II. Serle de Dundas, probably the father of our Elyss, is mentioned in Ragman Roll. V. Nisbet's Remarks, p. 34, 35, and Heraldry, I. 275.

*And Schyr Jhon Scot ek, a worthi knycht,
In to Straithern a man off mekill mycht.—V. 535.*

“He was probably a descendant of the family of Scott of Balweary in Fife.” This “family continued till the reign of Charles I.,” and “is now represented by the Scotts of Ancrum, in Roxburghshire.” Notes to Edit. Perth, p. 49.

*Schyr Jhon Menteth in till his wit has fund,
How he suld best his purpos to fullfill, &c.—V. 948.*

The account given of the treachery of MENTETH is one of these points on which Sir D. Dalrymple shews his historical scepticism. He introduces it in language calculated to inspire doubt into the mind of the reader; observing that “the popular tradition is, that his friend Sir John Menteth betrayed him to the English.” Annals, I. 281. It is rather strange that he should express himself in this manner, at the very moment that he quotes the Scotichronicon on the margin; as if this venerable record, when a modern should be disposed to adopt a theory irreconcilable with its testimony, were entitled to no higher regard than is due to “popular tradition.”

He adds; “Sir John Menteth was of high birth, a son of Walter Stewart Earl of Menteth.” I can perceive no force in this remark, unless it be meant to imply that there never has been an instance of a man of noble blood acting the part of a traitor. On the same ground we might quarrel with all the evidence given of the conspiracies formed against Robert Bruce; and even call in question the murder of that amiable and accomplished prince James I.

But “at this time,” we are told, “the important fortress of Dumbarton was committed to his [Menteth's] charge by Edward.” Here, it would seem, the learned writer fights the poor Minstrel with his own weapons. For I find no evidence of this fact in the Fœdera, Hemingsford, or the Decem Scriptores ; and Lord Hailes has referred to no authority ; so that there is reason to suspect, to use his own language, that he here "copies" what "is said by Blind Harry, whom no historian but Sir Robert Sibbald will venture to quote." If Harry's narrative be received as authority, it is but justice to receive his testimony as he gives it. Now, in the preceding part of his work, he represents Menteth as holding the castle of Dunbarton at least with the consent of Wallace, while acknowledged as governor of Scotland. It would appear, indeed, that the whole district of the Lennox had been entrusted to him.

In the Leynhouss a quhill he maid repayr ;
Schyr Jhon Menteth that tym was captane thar.—B. VIII. 1595.

But even at this time there was something dubious in the conduct of Menteth. While he retained the castle, the English held the town under Edward.

In peess thai duelt, in trubyll that had beyn,
And trewbut payit till Ingliss capdanis keyn.
Schir Jhon Menteth the castell had in hand :
Bot sum men said, thar was a prewa band
Till Sotheroun maid, be menyys off that knycht,
In thar supple to be in all his mycht.—B. IX. 1393.

It is perfectly conceivable, that, although it was known to Wallace that Menteth had some secret understanding with the English, this artful man might persuade him that he only wished an opportunity of wreaking the national vengeance on them, or at least of more effectively serving the interest of Wallace when he saw the proper time. Although Wallace had been assured that Menteth had taken an oath of fealty to Edward, he would have had no more reason for distrusting him than for distrusting by far the greatest part of the nobility and landholders of Scotland, who, as they believed, from the necessity of despair had submitted to the usurper.

John de Menteth is designed by Arnold Blair immanis proditor ; and the writer proceeds to curse him as if with bell, book, and candle. Relations, p. 8.

Sir David aims another blow at this account in the following words: "That he had ever any intercourse of friendship or familiarity with Wallace, I have yet to learn." But the truth is, the worthy judge does not seem disposed to learn this. It is difficult to say what evidence will satisfy him. The incidental hints, in the preceding part of the poem, in regard to Wallace's connection with Menteth, all perfectly agree with the mournful termination. Such confidence had he in him, according to the Minstrel, that he not only resided in Dunbarton castle for two months, while Menteth had the charge of it, but gave orders for building "a house of stone" there, apparently that he might enjoy his society.

Twa monethis still he duelt in Dunbertane ;
 A hous he foundyt apon the roch off stayne ;
 Men left he thar till bygg it to the hycht.—B. VIII. 1599.

But independently of the testimony of Blind Harry, Bower expressly asserts the co-operation of Menteth with Wallace, Graham, and Scrymgeour, in the suppression of the rebellious men of Galloway. In hoc ipso anno [1298], viz., xxviii die mensis Augusti, dominus Wallas Scotiæ custos, cum Johanne Grhame, et Johanne de Menteith, militibus, necnon Alexandro Scrimzeour constabulario villæ de Dundee, et vexillario Scotiæ, cum quinquagētis militibus armatis, rebelles Gallovidiensis punierunt, qui regis Angliæ et Cuminum partibus sine aliquo jure steterunt. These words, which seem to be a quotation in the Relationes of Blair from the Scotichronicon, are not found in the MSS. from which Goodall gave his edition. They appear to have formed the commencement of the xxxii. chapter of the eleventh book, one of the two chapters here said to be wanting. Now this, whether it be the language of Bower, or of Blair, could not have been borrowed from the Minstrel, for the circumstance is overlooked by him. It seems to refer to that period of the history of Wallace, in which he is said to have made a circuit through Galloway and Carrick.

Fra Gamlis peth the land obeyt him haill
 Till Ur wattir, bath strenth, forest, and daill.
 Agaynis him in Galloway hous was nayne, &c.—B. VI. 793.

It is to be observed, that John Major expressly affirms the treachery of Menteth, as acting in concert with Aymer de Valloins, Earl of Pembroke. He says that Menteth was considered as his most intimate friend ;—ipsi Vallaceo putatus amicissimus. Hist. Fol. LXXIII. Now, although he rejects many of the transactions recited by Blind Harry “as false,” so far is he from insinuating the slightest hesitation as to this business, that he formally starts an objection as to the imprudence of Wallace in not being more careful of his person, and answers it by remarking, that “no enemy is more dangerous than a domestic one.” He differs from the Minstrel, in saying that Wallace was “captured in the city of Glasgow.”

It may be added, that Bower expressly asserts that Wallace, “suspecting no evil, was fraudulently and treacherously seized at Glasgow by Lord John de Menteth.” Scotichron. XII. 8. Bower again refers to the treacherous conduct of Menteth towards Wallace when afterwards relating a similar plan which he had laid for taking King Robert Bruce prisoner, under pretence of delivering up to him the castle of Dunbarton, on condition of his receiving a hereditary right to the lieutenancy of the Lennox. V. Lib. xii. c. 16. 17. Vol. II. 243. These two chapters are not in all the MSS., but are found in those of Cupar, Perth, and Dunblane. Now, Bower was born

A. 1385. Ibid. II. 401. The date assigned to the Scotichronicon, as published with his continuation, is 1447, and that to the Minstrel's poem 1470. V. Pinkerton's Maitland Poems, Intr. LXXXVI. LXXXIX. It is therefore impossible that Bower could have borrowed the account given of Menteth from Blind Harry. Bower was born, indeed, only eighty or eighty-one years after the fact referred to; and, considering the elevation of the character of Wallace, and the great attachment of his countrymen even to this day, as well as the multitude of his enemies, it is totally inconceivable that a whole nation, learned and unlearned, should concur in imputing this crime to one man without the most valid reasons.

Wyntown finished his Cronykil A. 1418. He, it is generally believed, was born little more than fifty years after the butchery of our magnanimous patriot. Sir D. Dalrymple could not, one would suppose, reasonably object to his testimony. Let us hear it.

A thousand thre hundyr and the fyft yhere

CRON. VIII. c. 20.

I shall only add an important proof from the Lanercost MS., referred to in the Preliminary Remarks. "Captus fuit Willelmus Waleis per unum Scottum, scilicet per dominum Johannem de Mentiphe, et usque London ad Regem adductus, et adjudicatum fuit quod traheretur, et suspenderetur, et decollaretur, et membratim divideretur, et quod viscera ejus comburentur, quod factum est; et suspensum est caput ejus super pontem London, armus autem dexter super pontem Novi Castri super Tynam, et armus sinister apud Berwicum, pes autem dexter apud Villam Sanctis Johannis, et pes sinister apud Aberden." Fol. 211. Mentiphe is obviously an erratum for Mentithe.

*A spy thai maid, and folowed him but let Till Robrastoun, was ner be the way syd,
 And bot a howss guhar Wallace oysyt to byd.*—V. 996.

i. e. Only one house, where he was wont to conceal himself, while waiting for Bruce.

"At Robroystone, in this parish, [Cadder, Lanarkshire] on the 11th September 1305, Sir William Wallace was betrayed and apprehended by Sir John Monteath, a favourite of King Edward I. of England. After he was overpowered, and before his hands were bound, it is said he threw his sword into Robroystone Loch. An oaken couple or joist, which made part of the barn in which the Scottish hero was taken, is still to be seen in this neighbourhood, and may yet last for ages." Stat. Acc. VIII. 481, 482.

*Rycht suth it is, a martyr was Wallace,
Als Osauold, Edmunt, Eduuard, and Thomas.*—V. 1307.

In Edit. 1620, these lines are thus varied:—

Wallace was martyred, the trueth to you to tell,
As were Osweld, Edmond, Edward with paine fell.

Osauold must be Osuald, the King of Northumbria, who, having embraced Christianity, was slain by Penda the pagan king of Mercia. Bed. Hist. Eccl. III. 9. Eng. Martyrol. p. 213, 214. Edmunt is St Edmund, King of the East Angles, barbarously slain by the Danes of Northumbria for confessing Christ. Martyrol. p. 319. Eduuard seems to be St Edward, King of the West Saxons, slain at the instigation of his step-mother. Ibid. p. 72. Thomas is most probably the well-known Thomas a Becket.

Wyntown informs us that even in his day, long before that of the Minstrel, various works were written recording the deeds of Wallace; but he concludes that these fell short of the truth, as to their extent at least.

Of his gud dedis and manhad
Gret gestis, I hard say, ar made:
Bot sa mony, I trow, noucht
As he in-til hys dayis wroucht
Quha all hys dedis of prys wald dyte,
Hym worthyd a gret buk to wryte;
And all thai to wryte in here

CRON. VIII. c. 15. ver. 79.

The character given to Wallace, by Andro Hart, is worthy of being preserved:

“This was the end of this worthy man’s life, who, for high spirit in enterprising dangers, for fortitude in execution, comparable in deed to the most famous chiftains amongst the ancients, for loue to his natiue country second to none, he onely free, the rest slaues,—could neither bee bought with benefites, nor compelled by force to leaue the publike cause which he had once profest; whose death appeared more to be lamented, that being inuincible, to his enemy he was betrayed by his familiar, that in no case should have done so.” Pref. to Life of Wallace, p. 14.

Such is the affectionate remembrance of this illustrious defender of the liberties of Scotland, that his name is retained in many other places besides those mentioned in the preceding Notes.

On the hill of "Couthboanlaw, now by corruption called Quothquanlaw, —the common people, to this day, point out with much fond admiration, Wallace's Chair, where he had his abode, and held conferences with his followers, before the battle of Biggar. The chair is a large rough stone, scooped in the middle." P. Libberton, Lanarkshire, Stat. Acc. II. 235. This is called Quodquen in a charter of the Duke of Albany. Robertson's Ind. 167, 21.

In the town of Ayr they still point out the ancient tower* in which Wallace was imprisoned, and so cruelly treated, that he was at length thrown down from the battlements as dead. Common tradition gives the same account of this barbarous conduct as the Minstrel has done:

Quhen thai presumyt he suld be werray ded,
 Thai gart serwandys, with outyn langer pleid,
 With schort awiss on to the wall him bar ;
 Thai kest him our out of that bailfull steid,
 Off him thai trowit suld be no mor ramede,
 In a draff myddyn, quhar he remannyt thar.—B. II. 252.

The building still bears his name, and appears to be the very same as it was in his time. It has been more fully brought into notice by the allusion of a poet, who, whatever were his defects, had power to stamp a deathless name on the subject of his muse, although it had not been otherwise entitled to this distinction.

The drowsy Dungeon-clock had number'd two,
 And Wallace-Tower had sworn the fact was true.
 BURNS'S Brigs of Ayr.

"In one of the hills above Wandel mill there is Wallace's Camp, so called from that great Scotch warrior, who encamped here." The walls of the castle of Lamington "still remain some stories high, very thick and strong. It was built by a laird of Lamington, of the ancient and honourable name of Baillie, with whom the aforesaid Sir William Wallace was allied by marriage; in proof of which, and as a piece of curiosity, Wallace's chair is now in Bonnington, in the possession of Lady Ross Baillie, the representative of the family of Lamington, being removed from the tower of that place. The chair is remarkably broad and stout." P. of Lamington, Stat. Acc. VI. 557, 558. V. Note on B. VI. 47, above, p. 374, &c.

I have seen this chair at Bonnington, which is of oak, the posts of it at least, and otherwise corresponding with the description given in the Statistical Account. I am informed that there is a rock in the Pap Craig, a part of Tinto, which is still called Wallace's Chair; and that another in the parish of Symington bears the same name, in a place called the Castlehill.

* This building was taken down in 1835 and rebuilt.

On the estate of Gladswood, parish of Mertoun, Berwickshire, are still pointed out what are called the Camp-braes, where, according to the harmonious voice of popular tradition, Wallace had his camp before one of his battles. It has had two ditches with ramparts; and being situate on the neck of land at the confluence of Leader with the Tweed, might have been rendered almost unassailable, in that age, by a line of communication between the two rivers.

“On the west side of Clatto-moor, are the traces of a camp. It is generally believed to have been occupied by a part of Agricola’s army, and afterwards by Alpin, Wallace, and Monk. Tradition reports that ‘Wallace pitched his camp on Clatto-hill, and ground his corn at Philaw’s mill,’ which is about half a mile from the place where the traces of the camp are seen.” P. Strathmartin, Forfarshire, Stat. Acc. XIII. 99.

“Tradition says, that the Figget Whins, formerly a forest, afforded shelter and a place of rendezvous to Sir William Wallace and his myrmidons, when they were preparing to attack Berwick.” P. Duddingstone, county of Edinburgh, Stat. Acc. XVIII. 877.

“On the face of the hill” of Kinnoul, “there is a cave in a steep part of the rock, which, it is said, will contain about a dozen of men. It is called the Dragon-hole. There is a tradition among the common people, that Sir William Wallace hid himself in this hole of the rock, when he absconded for some time.” P. Kinnoul, Perthshire, Stat. Acc. XVIII. 560.

The same useful work contains an anecdote, which, at least from the circumstances, is worthy of insertion here. The article was written A. 1795 or 1796.

“There is a very respectable man in Longforgan, [Perthshire,] of the name of Smith, a weaver, and the farmer of a few acres of land, who has in his possession a stone, which is called Wallace’s Stone. It is what was formerly called in this country a bear stone, hollow like a large mortar, and was made use of to unhusk the bear or barley, as a preparation for the pot, with a large wooden mell, long before barley-mills were known. Its station was on one side of the door, and covered with a flat stone for a seat, when not otherwise employed. Upon this stone Wallace sat on his way from Dundee, when he fled, after killing the governor’s son, and was fed with bread and milk by the goodwife of the house, from whom the man, who now lives there, and is proprietor of the stone, is lineally descended, and here his forbears (ancestors) have lived ever since, in nearly the same station and circumstances, for about 500 years.” Stat. Acc. XIX. 561, 562. This refers to what is related in Book I. 257, &c.

In the castle of Dunbarton they pretend to shew the mail, and, if I mistake not, also the sword of Wallace. If he was confined in that fortress by Menteith, before being sent into England, as some have supposed, it is not improbable that his armour might be left there. The popular belief on this head, however, is very strong; of which I recollect a singular proof, which took place many years ago, and of which I was an eye-witness. In the procession of King Crispin, at Glasgow, his majesty was always preceded by one on horseback, appearing in armour, as his champion. In former times, this champion of the awl thought it enough to wear a leathern jerkin, formed like one of mail. One fellow, however, was appointed, of a more aspiring genius than his predecessors, who was determined to appear in real mail; and who, having sent to Dunbarton castle, and hired the use of Wallace's armour for a day, made his perambulations with it through the streets of Glasgow. I can never forget the ghastly appearance of this poor man, who was so chilled and overburdened by the armour, that, as the procession went on, he was under the necessity of frequently supporting himself with a cordial. It was said that he took to bed immediately after the termination of this procession, and never rose from it. From that time forward, his successors in office were content to wear the proper badge of their profession.

It is generally admitted that our hero was the son of Sir Malcolm Wallace of Ellerslie in Renfrewshire, by the daughter of Sir Ranald Crawford, High Sheriff of Ayr, of whom the Minstrel says;

Malcolm Wallas hir gat in mariage,
That Eirisié than had in heretage,
Auchinbothé, and other syndry place.—Book I. ver. 27.

It appears that the metre, corresponding with the modern pronunciation, requires that this word should have been accented as above.

Ellerslie, also written Elderslee, is about three miles to the south-west of Paisley, Renfrewshire. The old house, called by Crawford, "the castle," is still habitable. Near it is a tree, which, according to the account I received on the spot, was planted by Wallace himself: but this, like most other traditions, assumes a very different aspect, according to Semple's narration. "The large oak-tree," he says, "called Wallace's Tree, is still growing, standing alone in a little enclosure, a few yards south from the great road between Paisley and Kilbarchan, being on the east side of Elderslee rivulet, the manour of Elderslee being a few yards distant from the rivulet. They say that Sir William Wallace and 300 of his men hid themselves upon that tree among the branches (the tree being then in full blossom) from the English. The tree, indeed, is very large, and well spread in the branches, the trunk being about twelve feet in circumference." Crawford's Renfrewshire, p. 260.

About the year 1769, Ellerslie was sold to Alexander Speirs, Esq., who took his designation from it, by Archibald Campbell, Esq., W.S., who had married Helen Wallace, a lady lineally descended from a collateral branch of the family of Wallace.

Auchinbothé is in some old writings called Auchinbothie-Wallace, as distinguished from the lands of Auchinbothie-Blair. Thus, in an old Valuation Book, made A. 1654, in the time of Cromwell, we have the following account:—"The 5 mark (land) of Auchinbothie-Wallace subdivydit as s^d is, Mastar [the proprietor]

33 lib. 6sh. 8d. Feuars 366 lib. 13sh. 4d. 400 0 0

The 5 m^k land of Auchinbothie-Blair 383 6 8"

It is supposed that Auchinbothie-Blair belonged to Blair, the companion of Wallace, who was of the Blairs of that ilk in Renfrewshire. The lands of Thornley, in the same county, are said to be designed, in some old writs, the lands of Thornley-Blair, alias Thornley-Wallace; and it has been also supposed that these lands had been given by Wallace to his companion of this name. But the latter is undoubtedly a mistake; for in our records Thornylé or Thornley, as it is also written, appears as the property of the Wallaces till the time of Robert III., when it was given, by John Wallace of Craigie, to the Abbey of Paisley. Ind. Chart. 142, 80. V. also 97, 324.—131, 25.

The Valuation Book above quoted also mentions Wallace of Neilston-side, Wallace of Dungraine, Wallace of Bardrairie, &c. I am informed that there is now no proprietor of this name in the county of Renfrew, excepting Wallace of Kelly, in the parish of Innerkip, whose ancestors resided in that of Neilston.

In the Edinburgh Evening Courant of May 19, 1817, it is said that "the statue of Sir William Wallace, erected by the Earl of Buchan at Dryburgh, was designed exactly from the authentic portrait of him, painted in water-colours during his residence in France, which was purchased by the father of the late Sir Philip Ainslie of Pilton, knight. The hero is represented in the ancient Scottish dress and armour, with a shield hanging from his left hand, and leaning lightly on his spear with his right."

I shall conclude these miscellaneous notices with the just and beautiful reflection made by a statistical writer. After remarking that the principle cascade, in one of the rivulets in the parish of Greenock, "bears the name of Wallace, our brave and disinterested patriot," he subjoins: "How many monuments, far more durable than statues or columns, has grateful posterity bestowed throughout Scotland on this distinguished friend of liberty! In this part of the country, steep precipices, high falls of water, huge rocks, and Roman stations and encampments, not unfrequently bear his name." Stat. Acc. V. 566.

The editor takes the liberty of subjoining, as a slender tribute to the memory of one to whom our country owes so much, a few verses written a considerable number of years ago, in consequence of a visit to a place in the vicinity of Lanark, which has acquired celebrity from having afforded Wallace a temporary shelter from the fury of his enemies.

ADDRESS TO CARTLANE CRAIGS.

Ye Cartlane Craigs, your steepy sides
 Let Nature's votaries explore,
 To learn what fossils here she hides,
 Or find some plant unknown before.

A far more precious vein I seek;
 And here, I know, 'twas once conceal'd;
 A simple—that can nerve the weak,
 And prowess to the fearful yield.

Blest Freedom flourish'd in this wild,
 When banish'd from each cultur'd spot:
 Expiring Albin saw, and smil'd,
 And all her wounds and woes forgot.

And still the rugged rock, fair plant,
 Hath been thy lov'd, thy native soil;
 Remote from Luxury's deadly haunt,
 Thy dwelling 'mongst the sons of toil.

Thy arms entwiv'd around the rock,
 And shrouded by a fleece of snow,
 The tyrant-tempest thou canst mock,
 That rudely strives to lay thee low.

Ye towering cliffs, your form upright,
 The awful frown ye downward send,
 Seem to portray that faithful knight,
 Who to his foes would never bend.

I love thy gloom, thou cavern drear;
 Such magic influence quite unfelt,
 Where lordly domes their turrets rear;
 —Here Freedom and her First-born dwelt.

Hence bursting, like the wrathful blast,
 That issues from thy hollow glade,
 To hostile Lanark Wallace pass'd,
 And low the haughty Southeron laid.

But why a pledge so precious left?
 Thou, Chieftain, might'st thy foes have known
 —Of life thy lovely partner's reft,
 Of life—far dearer than thy own.

Base Hesilrig, I hate thy name!
 Thy crime a Pompey's praise would mar:
 A woman slay!—thou soldier's shame!
 With women only could'st thou war.

Yet worthy thou of such a lord;
 And school'd his purpose to fulfil,
 No right who knowledg'd, but the sword,
 No reason, save his sovereign will:

The forms of justice, if employ'd,
 Who still her sacred essence scorn'd;
 Each faithful witness first destroy'd,
 Then Falsehood's base-born brood suborn'd.

An ancient kingdom, could he think,
 The scourge of his,—might thus be won?
 Thy name, crown'd traitor, still shall stink,
 While Albin boasts one freeborn son!

Thou, Edward, many a traitor vile,
 —Thy kindred true—didst aggrandize:
 Nor force, nor flattery,—dastard guile
 Alone, could Wallace make thy prize.

Him—who could not be taught to crouch,
 Nor grace, nor justice, thine to save:

Thou knew'st our Lion ne'er would couch,
While Wallace liv'd his keeper brave.

*His name, who Scotia's fetters broke,
Shall never lose its power to charm,
Who liv'd to shield her,—dying spoke
The weakness of her spoiler's arm.*

ADDITIONAL NOTE TO BOOK FIFTH.

*Wpon the morn to the Gilbank he went;—
For his deyr eyme, yong Auchinlek, duelt thar,
Brothyr he was to the schirreff off Ayr.—V. 467.*

It bears the name of Gilbanke in Edit. 1594 and 1648. In the Sixth Book, v. 226, the same person is designed Awchinlek off Gilbank.

Macpherson mentions Gilbank, in his Geographical Illustrations, referring to Blind Harry; but he marks it as a place “the exact position” of which “is not known.”

But there is a property, distant only about half a mile from the Fall of Stonebyres, below Lanark, which still bears the name of Gillbank, as it is designed in Forrest's Map of Lanarkshire. There is another place called Gill, belonging to Lockhart of Lee, on the north side of the Mouse, opposite to Jarviswood, about half a mile above Cartlane Craigs. Here are the remains of a very old castle, the walls of which are very thick. It is seated on a promontory betwixt two gullies. It has been suggested, that this might be the place referred to, as there are no vestiges of ancient building at Gillbank. But the claim undoubtedly belongs to the latter; as it not only retains the name, but in our old deeds, although with a change of orthography, is conjoined with a place called Auchinleck.—Terrae de Stanebyres, Auchinlek, Greinrig, Teathes, et Kilbank. Inquis. Retornat. Com. Lanark, (149,) A. 1625. It is given as the property of the Marquis of Hamilton. The same places are mentioned, with the addition of Over Auchinlek, ibid. (239.)

This place had been honoured to be the head-quarters of our hero, while he resided in this part of the country, at least before his open attacks on the English. For it is said;

In Laynrik oft till sport he maid repair.
Quhan that he went fra Gilbank to the toune,
And he fand men that was off that falss nacioune,
To Scotland thair dyde neuir grewance mar.—B. V. v. 567.

“Yong Auchinlek” could be eyme or uncle to Wallace, only on the supposition that his father had married Wallace’s maternal grandmother, the widow of Sir Reginald (or Hugh) Crauford. His chief property was in Ayrshire. The heirs male failing, James IV. gave the lands of Auchinleck to a younger son of Boswell of Balmuto. Thus the family of Boswell of Auchinleck is lineally descended from Auchinleck of that ilk. V. Nisbet, I. 60.

So late as the year 1617, there was a gentleman of this name who held half of the property of Tweedie, in the barony of Stonehouse, distant only a few miles from Gillbank.—Jacobus Auchinleck, haeres Jacobi Auchinleck de Twedie, avi,—in baronia de Stanchous. Inquis. ut sup. (117.) It is probable, from the vicinity, Stonehouse being only about six miles from Gillbank, that he might be a descendant from that Auchinleck who is celebrated by the Minstrel. Gillbank is now the property of a gentleman of the name of Thomson.

ADDITIONAL NOTE TO BOOK SIXTH.

—————*Syne couth to Braid wood fayr,
At a consaill thre dayis soiornyt thai.
At Forest kyrk a metyng ordand he;
Thai chesd Wallace Scottis wardand to be.*—V. 765.

The tradition at Biggar is, that it was in the old church there that Wallace was chosen Guardian of Scotland. But this seems to be a mistake. For we have no proof of the erection of a church there till the year 1545, when the college of this place was founded by Malcolm Lord Fleming. Spottiswood’s Relig. Houses, c. 19.

The opinion that by the Forest kyrk we are to understand Selkirk, has far greater probability. Thomas Crawford, in his MS. History of the House of Douglas, says that this meeting was held “at the Forest Kirk in the sheriffdom of Selkirk.” Comment. in Relat. A. Blair, p. 22. Keith, in his List of Parishes, thus mentions Selkirk: “Vulg. Selkirk, alias the Forrest.” Catalogue of Bishops, p. 223.

In a deed of David, the son of Malcolm, (while he was yet Earl of Huntington) founding an abbey here, which was afterwards translated to Kelso, it is called Scelechyrca and Selechyrche. Sir J. Dalrymple’s Collect. p. 403. The name, it is said, in Celtic, “signifies the kirk in the wood or forest; expressing thus, in one word, the situation of the place itself, and the state of the surrounding country.” Statist. Acc. II. 434. But there seems to be no authority for this etymon. The last part of the word is undoubtedly from Anglo-Saxon circ, circe, cyrc, cyric, church. Mr Chalmers's derivation is highly probable. "As the occasion of the church in the forest," he observes, "arose from the circumstance of the king's having a hunting-seat here, the place of his worship may have been called Sele-chyrce, from the Saxon Sele, a hall, a prince's court." This idea receives a considerable degree of confirmation from what follows: "When a second church was built, nearly on the same site, after the establishment of the monastery at this hunting-seat, the prior place was distinguished by the name of Selkirk-Regis, while the village of the monks was called Selkirk-Abbatis." Caledonia, II. 963.

ADDITIONAL NOTE TO BOOK NINTH.

A werlik toun so fand thai in that land,

—In Schynnown still Wallace his duelling maid.—B. XI. 69.

I can find no place in Guienne, bearing any nominal resemblance. Henry's geography, of France especially, could not be expected to be very accurate. He had most probably heard of Chinon, a village in Touraine, near Saumur, which was indeed held by the English, and which might be viewed as on the way from Paris to Guienne. Here Henry II. of England died; and here, also, that singular writer Rabelais was born.

EXPLANATION OF THE VIGNETTE IN THE TITLE-PAGE OF THIS VOLUME.

As the cruel and unmerited fate, which terminated the bright career of Wallace, appeared to that ingenious gentleman who furnished me with this design, to be the object on which the mind especially rests in contemplating the history of his life, he has given to the block the principal place here. To this melancholy symbol, the crown of laurel, which, as we learn from the English chroniclers, was contemptuously put on the head of the hero during his trial at Westminster, is with great propriety transferred. Before it appears the fatal axe; also, the target of Wallace, together with the sword of his faithful friend Longueville, exactly copied from that preserved under this name in the house of Kinfauns. The headless body appears from behind. In the back-ground, rays of light are seen to dart forth, giving ground of hope that the dark clouds, which envelope this dismal scene, should be dispelled; and intimating, according to the sense of the inscription, that this cruel act of the tyrannical Edward, by which he hoped to extinguish the spirit of liberty in our native land, should only excite it anew,—the fall of Wallace being immediately succeeded by the intrepid appearance of Bruce, as asserting his claim to independent royalty.

By some of my learned friends, who are acquainted with the manuscripts of the preceding poems, I may be censured, perhaps, because I have rendered the contraction f by ss, instead of making it to denote is. I have not done so unadvisedly; and I could not have acted otherwise without sacrificing my own conviction. I preferred this mode for several reasons.

Another well known contraction, totally different in form, is used throughout these manuscripts, where there can be no doubt that is is meant. Had I adopted a different plan, I would have been laid under the necessity of rendering the contraction in a variety of modes. I must frequently have viewed it as signifying se. But here, in many places, I met with an obstacle that seemed insurmountable;—a different contraction being employed for denoting a word of this form, sometimes in the same verse, as in The Bruce, B. VIII. 353.

The king thus, that wes wycht and wys,
And rycht awise at diuiss, &c.

Here both contractions occur. If I did not give to the sign so ambulatory and indefinite a character, I must often have used a double i, where it could not be supposed that the writer meant to introduce it. Thus I must have given maïss, makes, in the form of maïis; raïss, arose, as raïis; cheïss, choose, as cheïis; pass, a strait and steep passage, as pais; and leïss, loss, as leïis, &c. &c.

The rhythm, as well as the sense, would also, in different instances, have materially suffered. Thus, in B. IX. 259, where we read;

And with all thair mycht schot egrely
Amang the horsis men, that thar raid;

It would have been,

Amang the horsis men that thar raid.

In reading these poems, it must be observed, that, although is, the mark of the plural, is more generally to be viewed as a distinct syllable, this rule does not apply universally. Scottis, for example, is sometimes to be read Scott-is; at other times, when the rhythm requires an abbreviation, as if Scots. Even monosyllables are occasionally to be lengthened; as armes, denoting armour, must at times be pronounced armés. The same liberty seems to have been taken by Chaucer and other old English poets.

In the following Glossary, I do not pretend to explain all the words that may stumble a reader who is not well acquainted with our ancient language; for this would have almost required a volume. But I have not overlooked a single term that seemed to demand attention. For further elucidation, and for the explanation of some words that may have been overlooked here, I beg leave to refer to my Dictionary of the Scottish Language. It will greatly aid the reader of these works, if he recollect that many common words appear here under a disguised orthography, especially by the frequent use of w for v.
